JACK DEMPSEY AND CARPENTIER TO FIGHT HERE

FOUR CONFERENCES HELD

Final Session Scheduled for This Week—Cochran, Rickard and Brady Combine.

BOUT MAY BE IN THIS CITY

Negotiations for a boxing bout for the world's heavyweight championship between Jack Dempsey, the title-holder, and Georges Carpentier, the light heavyweight champion of the world, have progressed so far that a match between them is virtually assured.

A series of conferences have been held by Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager; François Descamps, Carpentier's business representative; Tex Rickard, the Madison Square Garden promoter; William A. Brady, theatrical producer, and Charles B. Cochran, the English sporting and theatrical promoter. According to Jack Kearns, a final conference of all interested parties will be held tomorrow or Wednesday, and at this time, it is understood, the definite arrangements will be completed. Although Kearns did not say so in so many words, he strongly intimated yesterday that only a few minor details remain to be agreed upon. Kearns did say that he was reasonably sure that the contracts would be drawn up and signed before Carpentier leaves this country a week from next Saturday for France.

Four meetings were held by the three promoters and boxers' managers last week. It is understood that all of the main points were agreed upon at the conferences and Kearns admits that the negotiations have gone along so favorably that there is little likelihood of a serious hitch. There is every reason to believe that the articles will be signed at the next meeting.

May Sign This Week.

When questioned about the probability of the match being brought off in the immediate future, Kearns readily vouchsafed the information that the meeting tomorrow or Wednesday would probably be the final session. This can mean but one thing—that the contracts will be drawn up at that time and that if they are not actually signed at the meeting they will be within the next few days.

When and where the bout will be held is a matter of conjecture. Judging by what Kearns intimated, both Dempsey and Carpentier are extremely anxious to meet in this country and if possible in this city. They appreciate the fact that a bigger gate could be obtained at Madison Square Garden than anywhere else. This will depend entirely upon the way in which the authorities—the New York State Boxing Commission and the License Committee—view the bout. If the governing bodies of the sport in this State regard the match favorably there is not the slightest doubt that it will be held here.

Under existing conditions it is probable that the bout will not be held before the first of the year. It is understood that at all of the meetings that have thus far been held only dates between next January and June have been considered. This has been due to two reasons. Carpentier wants to return to France for a while, and the persons concerned are anxious to give the machinery of the new Walker law ample time in which thoroughly to establish the sport in this State before attempting to stage what undoubtedly will prove the biggest boxing attraction that has ever been held, both from a financial viewpoint and world-wide interest.

The matter of Carpentier's return to this country to prepare for his biggest test has been discussed at some length and it is said that he is anxious to remain with his family in France over the Christmas holidays.

No Bout Before February.

This would mean that Carpentier could not return to the United States before January. Since both of the boxers would demand at least a month's training, possibly six weeks, in which to prepare for their meeting in the ring, it is evident that the match could not possibly be held before the middle of February at the earliest. It is certain that there is not the remotest chance of the fight being put on before the first of the year.

Carpentier's two invasions of this country have convinced him that in the United States the most money is to be earned in the ring. While it is well known that London and Paris would bid high for the event, past ventures have proved that if the match was held in either of those cities it would not draw the tremendous sum that would be realized in this country, especially in this city. Therefore, Carpentier is extremely anxious to meet the champion in a fifteen-round bout to a decision in New York. This being true, only the edict of the boxing officials of this State can keep the match out of New York.

Rickard, Cochran and Brady have apparently decided to pool their interests in staging the match. The fact that the

MILAN, Oct. 24.—Threatened imposition of wartime conditions in respect to food is about to take place. Decrees were issued today prohibiting from Nov. 1 all public sale of meat or serving of meat dishes in restaurants from Wednesday afternoon till Saturday morning of each week.

Since the outbreak of the great war the Italian people have never enjoyed the luxury of white bread. The Government is indisposed to purchase foreign grain as well as to import chilled meats; so the present unpleasant-tasting black bread is to give place to a still worse admixture.

From the same date food tickets are to be introduced anew, and the secret hoarding of commercial stocks will be treated as a crime.

MINERS' CHIEFS MEET PREMIER

MAY ACCEPT HIS CONDITION

LONDON, Oct. 23.—"Conversations" between the miners and the Government were resumed this morning and are to be continued tomorrow, so the prospect of a speedy termination of the miners' strike is considered tonight to be much more hopeful.

Both sides were pledged not to discuss what took place today and the Government is careful not to use the word "negotiations," but enough progress was made for the miners to summon a meeting of their executive committee this afternoon to lay before them what had occurred at the Downing Street meeting.

Robert Smillie, Frank Hodges, Herbert Smith, leader of Yorkshire miners, and Robson, treasurer of the Miners' Federation, arrived at the Prime Minister's residence at 11 o'clock and conferred there with Lloyd George, Bonar Law, Sir Robert Horne and other officials. Their talk lasted for two hours and it is understood "explored" suggestions put forward in the House of Commons on Tuesday by William Brace for the contrivance or some formula which would give the miners the rise in wages they want and the Government a definite guarantee of increased output. As the miners' delegates left it was noted that Smillie and Hodges seemed to be in particularly good spirits.

The meeting of the miners' executives at their headquarters lasted an hour and a half and then the miners leaders left to meet the Prime Minister at Downing Street again tomorrow.

It cannot yet be assumed that a full formal conference between the miners' executives and the Government will necessarily follow today's and tomorrow's conversations, but the decidedly cheerful mood of Smillie and Hodges after today's Downing Street meeting is taken as a hopeful sign that the conversations tended to remove stumbling blocks between the two parties as a preliminary to such full conference being arranged.

It has come out today that the railroad men's postponement of the strike was occasioned not only by doubt as to how completely the order to come out would be obeyed, but also by the very definite attitude the miners' leaders took toward the idea when the miners and the railroaders met yesterday. Smillie and his colleagues informed the National Union of Railway Men's executives that they thought their strike threat was a tactical blunder and that the miners preferred to manage their own affairs without interference.

J. H. Thomas, addressing a mass meeting of railway men in London tonight, gave it as his view that it was unwise for any single section of the labor movement to strike in order to assist the miners. Other members of the Railway Executive Committee did not take that view, he said, and honestly thought the best way to help the miners was for the railway men to strike at once. He, however, did not believe a railway strike would really help the miners.

It had been said in the press that he had made a statement that if the Executive Committee called a strike he would not lead it. "My mind was made up some time ago," said Thomas, "as to what I was going to do, and everybody knew it." The times, he added, were too critical for personal recrimination, ill-feeling or bitterness.

In conclusion Thomas said it was the duty of railway men to see that while the negotiations were taking place between the Government and the miners no man should do anything that might weaken the miners' cause or render the negotiations more difficult.

An enthusiastic reception was accorded to Thomas and he was loudly cheered as he left the hall.

Until the miners' executives are brought face to face with the Prime Minister and his colleagues actual progress toward peace may seem slow and it is pointed out that in any case the strike is likely to continue through this week. Even if an agreement is reached

TRIED TO BUY HYLAN IN COURT HOUSE JOB WITH LABOR VOTES

Support of 115,000 in Brindell's Union Offered for Signing Stone Contract.

POLITICIANS UNDER CLOUD

Said to be in Alliance with Employers and Labor Leaders.

SCHOOL CONTRACTS NEXT

City May Annul Them if Evidence of Corruption Is Verified.

An attempt was made recently to bribe Mayor Hylan to sign the $2,372,000 limestone contract for the new County Court House by promising that if he did so his administration would obtain whenever necessary the enthusiastic indorsement of 115,000 members of unions affiliated with Robert P. Brindell's Building Trades Council.

Information to this effect has come into the possession of the Lockwood Joint Legislative Committee on Housing, whose three sessions in the City Hall last week revealed conditions of a scandalous nature in the building trades.

It was learned yesterday that the attempt to reach Mayor Hylan and induce him to sign the contract quickly and before revelations pending could become generally known will be one of the subjects to be probed by Samuel Untermyer when he resumes his examination of witnesses before the committee on Thursday at the City Hall. The knowledge in the possession of the committee that a bold attempt to exert pressure was made on the Chief Executive of the city was one of the causes that impelled the committee to advance the date of its next session from Nov. 4 to the latter part of this week.

The committee did not make known the name of the man who made the promise to the Mayor, but it was learned that his name has been mentioned prominently in connection with the inquiry. He will be called on to explain his offer and he will be asked to tell how he proposed to deliver the indorsement of the workers in the building trades to the Hylan administration.

Political Alliance to be Bared.

The inquiry promises to reveal an alliance or a league between certain political interests and leaders in the building trades, both employers' representatives and ostensible leaders of masses of workingmen.

It is understood that the promise made meant that if the Mayor decided to make a campaign for re-election when his term expires, the forces of workingmen in the building trades would be placed at his disposal.

Mayor Hylan did not sign the contract, which was to have gone to Henry Hanlein. Instead, an investigation of the limestone bid and the building combine and its relation to organized labor followed, with the result that at the suggestion of the Mayor and pursuant to a resolution prepared by him, contracts aggregating $5,000,000 for work on the new County Court House were thrown out by the Board of Estimate on Friday.

As a result of recommendations made by Samuel Untermyer, associate counsel to the Lockwood Committee, in a letter to Mayor Hylan, it is believed that a large number of contracts for school buildings and other structures will be cancelled on the ground that the building combine prevented competition, as required by law. If this is done, the city may be in a position to recover hundreds of thousands of dollars of which it has been mulcted through the fixing of excessive prices by the combine which "rigged" the bids.

School Contracts Under Scrutiny.

An investigation of conditions surrounding the award of contracts for the school buildings will be pressed rapidly by Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield. It was said that twenty-seven new school buildings, involving an expenditure of about $12,000,000, were to have been finished in mid-September, when the Fall school term opened. The structures were not completed because of troubles similar to those which held up the completion of other structures. The principal cause for delay, according to witnesses before the Lockwood Committee, was the calling of strikes on buildings by walking delegates of unions. Ephraim B. Levy, a builder, told the committee that he gave George Backer, his building superintendent, $25,000 which was to go to Brindell and his "committee" in order that men on strike would return to work after they left the job without real grievances.

The delays due to the working of the building combine and labor troubles, it was said, held up work on four new school buildings in Brooklyn, Queens and the Bronx for such a long time that the buildings, which were very much needed, were not ready for occupancy last month.

Hettrick Cards Referred to Schools.

Several of the cards introduced in evidence by Mr. Utermyer during his examination of John T. Hettrick, the lawyer, of 165 Broadway, who testified that he was "counsel" for contractors in the plumbing, cut stone, heating and ventilating lines, were cards that referred to work on schools.

Hettrick testified that according to the rules of the code of practice of the plumbers, cut stone contractors and heating contractors, from 1 to 4 per

MacSwiney Near End, Prison Doctor Says; Lord Mayor Unconscious Throughout Day

LONDON, Oct. 24.—The Press Association this evening attributed to the prison physician the statement that Lord Mayor MacSwiney could not live much longer.

MacSwiney spent a quiet night and this morning was still unconscious, says the bulletin issued by the Irish Self-Determination League at 4 P. M. today, the seventy-third day of the Mayor's hunger strike.

"He opened his eyes occasionally," adds the bulletin, "staring sometimes at Father Dominic, but gave no sign of recognition even when Father Dominic spoke to him. He lies quietly, moaning as if in pain.

"The restrictions suddenly imposed on the Mayor's relatives, limiting or prohibiting their access to the Mayor and removing their facilities for communicating with friends outside, continue in force. Misses Mary and Annie MacSwiney remained in the waiting room of the prison all day yesterday and refused to leave. Shortly after 10 o'clock last night an inspector and several constables entered the room and put them out by force.

"Mrs. MacSwiney was allowed to be with her husband a little more than an hour yesterday. This extra strain and the fatigue placed on her has brought on an indisposition and she was unable to visit the prison this morning. She hopes to be sufficiently recovered to make a visit this afternoon."

The League's bulletin at 7 o'clock tonight stated that Mayor MacSwiney was still unconscious. Neither his wife nor other relatives, except his brother, who visited him for a few minutes, were allowed to see the Mayor, the bulletin reported.

DRIVERS ASK RISE; BOSSES ORDER CUT

STRIKE OF 50,000 LOOMS

Men Demand $7 a Week Increase; Owners Say They Must Work Longer or Get Less.

A movement to reduce wages or increase hours as a step in wage reduction was started yesterday at a meeting of truck owners and representatives of commercial organizations as a counterstroke to the demands of the union truck drivers and chauffeurs for an increase, which the truck owners say would amount to 40 per cent.

The answer of the truck owners is virtually an ultimatum. Resolutions passed at the meeting, which was held at the Waldorf, declared labor must share with merchants and manufacturers the burden of a normal adjustment of prices and it was asserted that the first step should come in the trucking business, which has an important relation to all business.

"We want concessions from labor now," one of the truck owners said. "Labor must open its eyes. We don't care whether it means an open shop with us or not. It is a question of the survival of the fittest."

Reply to Be Drafted Tomorrow.

The details of the concessions which will be demanded of the labor organizations are in the hands of a committee, which will meet tomorrow and decide the exact terms of the new contract which the truck owners will present to the International Brotherhood of Teamsters in reply to its demands for wage increases. John J. Riordan, President of the Merchant Truckmen's Bureau and head of the United States Trucking Corporation, who presided at the meeting, asserted that the truck owners would insist on either a ten-hour day at the same wages, with fractional pay for less than an hour's work, or a decrease in pay.

Co-operation between the commercial organizations represented at the meeting—the Merchants' Association, the New York Chamber of Commerce, the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, the Bronx Board of Trade, the Queens Chamber of Commerce and the New York Board of Trade and Transportation—was urged at the meeting, with the idea of forming a permanent organization to deal with intracity transportation problems.

Text of the Resolution.

The resolution presented by the concessions committee of the truck owners and which was unanimously adopted, read:

"Whereas, wages now paid in trucking throughout this city are higher than those paid in other cities, which fact handicaps local merchants when in competition and further is a detriment to the trucking industry because of the diversion of business to other cities.

"Whereas, in combating the high cost of living merchants have made generous contribution through material price reduction, but no corresponding wage decrease has been contributed by labor, therefore be it

"Resolved, That labor should share with capital the burden of restoring a normal adjustment of prices, and that it is the sense of this meeting that substantial concessions should be obtained from labor in order to make possible a lower cost for trucking in the City of New York."

Arthur G. McKeever, President of the Ajax Trucking Company, presented the resolution. A committee of employers was appointed by Mr. Riordan to meet at the City Club on Tuesday. The committee includes Mr. Riordan, J. R. McDonald, W. J. MacCormack, E. R. Lowe, John A. C. Johnson, Ernest R. Taroff, H. L. Kuhst, E. R. Baker, S. A. Mangen, Arthur Williams, Isaac Seaman, Isaac Goldburg, T. H. Murphy and William Lowden.

Strike of 50,000 Men Threatened.

The agreement under which the teamsters are now working expires on Nov. 1. About 50,000 truckmen are affected by it. Members of the union said last night that if the truck owners persisted in their stand a strike would be the inevitable result. The local unions involved are 807, 202 and 285 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

Speakers at yesterday's meeting said that a reduction of wages or an increase in hours was necessary in the fight to lower the cost of living.

J. S. Lincoln, Traffic Manager of the Merchants' Association, said that the

$350,000 FIRE RUINS BROADWAY BUILDING

CAPTAIN FALLS WITH FLOOR

Seven Firemen Face Death from Back-Draught — Risk Lives to Save Two Kittens.

Fire which caused $350,0000 damage swept, for nearly four hours yesterday morning, the entire length of a three-story building running from Seventh Avenue to Broadway in West Fifty-first Street. It destroyed Floyd Grant's auction salesrooms and antique shop at the southwest corner of Seventh Avenue and wrecked Custena's Lakewood Restaurant on the Broadway corner, as well as several other business places.

Capt. Francis Ford of Engine 24 was injured when he was carried down in the collapse of a first floor, and seven other firemen were caught in a back draft of flames, but escaped unharmed.

A great crowd gathered soon after the first whisp of smoke was noticed. The auction rooms appeared to be the seat of the blaze, but these were locked and untenanted. A negro opened the alarm box in Seventh Avenue, but did not pull the hook, so that the fire had gained great headway before an alarm was turned in. A second call was made soon afterward.

When Deputy Chief Martin reached the scene the flames were licking their way to the roof. Martin turned in two more alarms, which summoned two water towers and additional apparatus, and for the next three hours ten engines pumped water on the blaze.

With the Winter Garden adjoining, the Capitol Theatre across Broadway and the immense barns of the New York Railways Company opposite in Seventh Avenue, the efforts of the firemen chiefly were directed to checking the spread of the flames. Either because the fire had smoldered through Saturday night in a boiler room beneath the auction rooms, where it was later found to have originated, or because of the delay caused by the negro's failure to sound the alarm at once, the building with its valuable store of furniture, engraving equipment, restaurant fixtures, foodstuffs, automobile tires and haberdashery was doomed from the start.

Antiques and Paintings Destroyed.

The Grant concern occupied the second and third floors of the building. On the first floor, which is slightly below the level of the street, was the Weber haberdashery establishment, and next to it the automobile tire shop of Dunklin & Marks. George Schroeder, President of the Floyd Grant Company, said that a sale of many antiques and paintings, including some masters, was to have been held in the auction rooms today. Schroeder estimated the damage to his stock at $25,000, that to the part of the building occupied by the auction rooms at $50,000. The damage to both tire shop and haberdashery was estimated at $25,000.

Abutting the premises occupied by the auctioneer on the Fifty-first Street side, in the same building, is the Lakewood Restaurant, which fronts on Broadway. Max Blech, manager of the restaurant, said that his fixtures were worth $50,000 and his stock of food, most of which was destroyed by water, he valued at $3,000. The Lakewood opened a confectionery branch adjoining the Winter Garden in Broadway on Saturday. Considerable damage was done there.

Above the restaurant, the dermatological parlors of the Woodbury Soap Company were ruined. Peyton C. McCargo, head of this establishment, reported that about $25,000 worth of damage was done. Damage to the Green Engraving Company's plant on the third and top floors was estimated at between $30,000 and $50,000.

Firemen used the roof of the Winter Garden as a defensive point, sending many little panes of glass in the skylight near the balcony to the chairs below. A deluge of water followed and the lobby and stairs were badly soiled. The structure, however, was not touched by the flames. J. J. Shubert, manager of the Winter Garden, who was present, said that the regular Sunday concert and vaudeville would be held last night. The Winter Garden, he said, had been protected from the flames by a thick fire wall. The stocks of several stores under the Winter Garden were badly smoked and damaged by the intense heat from the building adjoining.

While firemen directed a vigorous attack from the Fifty-first Street side, Captain Francis Ford of Engine 34 led his men into the showrooms of the auction concern and with them worked his way to a point where the flames were roaring and the smoke was thick. He

HARDING DEMANDS DEMOCRATS ANSWER CAMPAIGN CHARGES

He Accuses Administration of Loss of Life and Treasure by Unpreparedness.

HITS 'OVERCENTRALIZATION'

Asserts That He Himself Has Outlined in His Speeches "a Definite Constructive Policy."

RESTATES HIS POSITION

Declares He Has Given a "Conscientious and Practical Proposal" on the League.

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, Ohio, Oct. 24.—In a "communication to the American people," issued today, Senator Harding called upon the Democratic Party to answer before Election Day charges against the Administration, which he said he had raised during his campaign for the Presidency.

Among the charges the Senator enumerated, and which he contended the Democratic Party had failed to explain, were: Sacrifice of thousands of lives and billions of treasure through military unpreparedness fostered to win votes in the 1916 election; unpreparedness for peace, mismanagement of the railways, grotesque inefficiency, overcentralization of power, unnecessary taxation and unsound industrial policies.

Senator Harding stated that his campaign on both the front porch and the rear platform had been devoted to outlining the policies he would pursue if he were President. He had endeavored, he said, to deal with every one of the "dominant issues," and had sought to give each a clear answer. Yet, seldom in the history of our country has there been such an avoidance of this duty upon the part of any candidates as has been evident among our opponents."

He restated his own position on various issues. Concerning the League of Nations he said:

"As to our foreign policy and America's full expectation of becoming a member of a wise association of nations with the preservation of our own independence and national spirit, I have given a conscientious and practical proposal.

"I have stated that I am wholly against the proposal to approve our membership in the League of Nations, as our opponents insist that it shall be written. Even in the hand of our opponents that program is impossible. Even were our opponents to be elected it would result in a hopeless blockade as a sequel to the one which the President of the United States has carried on since the Peace Treaty was submitted to the representatives of the people for approval."

Text of Harding's Statement.

Senator Harding's statement follows:

"I believe that the men and women of this country are entitled to receive from any political party seeking their support a clear answer upon the predominant issues which effect the future course of America.

"Seldom in the history of our country has there been such an avoidance of this duty upon the part of any candidates as has been evident among our opponents.

"The American people are satisfied that the conduct of our domestic affairs has been grossly mismanaged. They hunger for a constructive American policy. It has been my sense of obligation to treat with clarity and definition the Republican plan for putting our house in order.

"I call upon the Democratic Party to answer the charge that its management of domestic affairs had brought us to the brink of an industrial crisis in 1914 from which only world war saved us, and is even now leading us toward another precipice.

"There has been no answer to the well known fact that they have cost America untold billions of dollars and the precious lives of our sons by unpreparedness for war persisted in for political expediency.

"They have made no answer to the charge that they were equally unprepared for peace and reconstruction.

"They have made no answer to the charge that their experiment with the

Marburg Declines a Place On New Shipping Board

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Theodore Marburg of Baltimore, who was appointed a member of the Shipping Board by President Wilson a few days ago, has declined the appointment, it was learned at the White House tonight. Mr. Marburg's letter of declination will not be made public until after it has been shown to the President. The understanding, however, is that Mr. Marburg has declined on account of his health.

Mr. Marburg was appointed as a Republican member of the board. It has been pointed out, however, that he has come out against his party because of its stand on the League of Nations, and it has been intimated that League opponents in the Senate would have opposed his confirmation if the nomination had gone to the Senate. Mr. Marburg contributed $200 to the Democratic Campaign Fund, according to the report by that committee just filed.

RYAN'S $25,000 TOPS DEMOCRATIC GIFTS

Broker, Moved by Cartoon He Calls 'Blasphemous,' Sends Second Subscription.

Indignation over a cartoon in the current issue of Harvey's Weekly brought a contribution of $25,000 to the Democratic National Committee from Allan A. Ryan yesterday. The subscription is the largest received from an individual by either the Democratic or Republican National Committee. The largest single subscription hitherto reported was one of $20,000 from H. A. Wroe, of Austin, Texas, to the Democratic National Committee. Mr. Ryan had already contributed $5,000 to the Democratic national campaign fund and his additional contribution increases his total to $30,000.

In a letter to George White, Democratic National Chairman, Mr. Ryan complained bitterly of the cartoon. His letter reads as follows:

My Dear Mr. White: The methods used against the Democratic ticket have been infamous from the beginning, but it remained for George Harvey in the current number of his purchased and prostituted journal called Harvey's Weekly to add sacrilege and shame to the campaign methods of the party he is supporting and disgrace to the cause of the candidate he claims to have nominated.

On page 27 of this sheet I observe a cartoon entitled "Having Difficulty in Hanging the Masterpiece." It represents Governor Cox, libelously caricatured, standing on a ladder labeled "Public Confidence." In his arms he has a picture. I hope that all who love the faith their mothers imparted to them, who stand for our Christian civilization, who have reverence for God and His works, will see what is in that picture which appeals to George Harvey as suitable for a political cartoon. It represents Uncle Sam as "the greatest he-angel" (to quote the Harvey phrase), with a lampoon of the Sacred Heart of Jesus enveloping his figure, and above him are printed these words: "Professor Wilson's League of Nations. The Immaculate Conception."

This journal which thus defiles the purest article of Christian faith is a by-product of the Senatorial cabal. The men who pay its bills are by pledge or secret contribution the heaviest supporters of the Harding campaign. With their money Christianity is mocked and sacrilege is committed in the name of the Republican Party. I hope the decent, godly people of this Nation will visit the desired beneficiaries of this cartoon with the rebuke of defeat.

I have today subscribed $25,000 to your cause in the hope that the League of Nations may be saved and its blasphemous enemies be defeated.

Yours sincerely,

ALLAN A. RYAN.

H. PULITZER ESCAPES DEATH IN AIRPLANE

PARIS, Oct. 24.—Herbert Pulitzer, youngest son of the late Joseph Pulitzer of New York, had a narrow escape from death yesterday when an airplane in which he was flying with the French pilot, the Marquis des Champs de Boishebert, a former Army flyer, fell five miles from Dijon. The airplane started from le Bourget Field, near Paris.

Mr. Pulitzer merely suffered abrasions and bruises, but the pilot was pinned underneath the machine and died in a hospital half an hour later. The mechanic was unhurt.

The accident occurred when the pilot, who was not sure of his whereabouts and was going 100 miles an hour, attempted to land, the airplane striking a tree. When the machine fell Mr. Pulitzer and the mechanic were thrown clear of it.

Mr. Pulitzer returned to Paris today and planned to start for London in another airplane.

Gen. Rush C. Hawkins Leader of Zouaves, Knocked Down by Auto in 5th Ave., May Die

General Rush C. Hawkins, 89 years old, who led as Colonel the Hawkins Zouaves (Ninth New York Infantry) in the civil war and who is widely known as an art collector and writer on art topics, was run down by an automobile as he was crossing lower Fifth Avenue near his home last night and was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital unconscious and in a serious condition. At 2 o'clock this morning Dr. George D. Stewart performed an operation for a fracture of the skull. General Hawkins was reported to be in a critical condition.

General Hawkins, whose sight has failed, was bound for his home at 42 Fifth Avenue when the accident occurred. He started across the avenue from west to east shortly after 9 o'clock, but, according to witnesses, stopped in the middle, apparently believing that a car was coming uptown, and, after hesitating a moment, backed into another car bound down the avenue.

The car knocked General Hawkins to the pavement, but did not run over him. The driver, William Cattoga of 58 Thompson Street, stopped the automobile and helped Charles D. Ames of 46 Fifth Avenue, an acquaintance of the General's, who saw the accident, to place the injured veteran in a taxicab. Cattoga followed to the hospital, but after he had told his story he was not detained. General Hawkins's injuries were diagnosed as abrasions of the head and ribs and shock.

General Hawkins, who has no near relatives, has lived for ten years at 42 Fifth Avenue. His housekeeper, Margaret Dwyer, said that he had only recently returned from Vermont, and that she knew of no relatives in this city.

General Hawkins is best known, probably, as the organizer of the "Hawkins Zouaves," which saw notable service in the civil war. He is an officer of the Legion of Honor. In the Army of the Potomac he commanded first a brigade and then a division, and at the close of the war he was retired with the brevet of Brigadier General.

COX AND WILSON NOW CONFIDENT OF PARTY VICTORY

SEES BIG DRIFT FOR LEAGUE

REPORTS OF GAINS POUR IN Democratic Leaders' Hopefulness Grows Fast as Last Week of Campaign Opens.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Marked optimism over the campaign outlook which has developed recently in Democratic circles here was increased tonight by two developments. These were:

Governor Cox, while in Washington tonight on his way from New York to West Virginia, declared that a big surprise was in store for the Republican leaders and that Senator Harding would awaken on the morning after Election Day to find that he was a badly beaten man.

It became known also that President Wilson shared the confidence felt by party workers and at a recent Cabinet meeting indicated a certainty of feeling that Cox would be elected.

"There will be no end to the fight until the last day of the campaign," said Governor Cox. "We stop Monday night, Nov. 1, at Toledo. We will fight until the last moment and we are going to win."

Governor Cox and his followers on the train are convinced that Senator Harding has wrecked his chances of success on the League of Nations issue and has stirred the resentment of the people by the many changes of position which they say he has made during the last few weeks. The Governor is also convinced that Senators Moses of New Hampshire, Watson of Indiana and other treaty irreconcilables will be beaten.

Sees Political Lines Broken.

"We are on the last turn in the campaign," said Governor Cox. "As we go back to the Middle West it is perfectly apparent that our estimate was phrased correctly almost two months ago, when the statement was made that political pluralities, as established by election contests in the past, meant nothing this year. It was in consequence of that that I requested Senator Harrison, in charge of the speakers' bureau, to make our itinerary touch just as many States as possible, and to have little regard to past political alignments.

"I have spoken in thirty-six States. The people are no longer thinking in the same terms of the thing that apparently obsessed the American mind three months ago, which was supposedly a political change. This was not a profound consideration. Our emotions had been deeply stirred by the war. The inconveniences had been many. There was a general disposition to shake ourselves free from the thought of tragic conditions. Besides, it was but natural that a spiritual relapse would come after the war.

"In the midst of that a paid propaganda arrived at the peak of its momentum. It was started by reactionary politicians in Paris before the treaty of peace was concluded, before any one knew the covenant of the League would be a part of it. It was a conspiracy to gain a political victory and whatever stood in the way was to be destroyed.

"For a year racial prejudices were engendered, in some instances through the influence of paid emissaries. Deception seemed in a fair way to succeed, but the truth has triumphed and with the public understanding of the world-wide proposal of peace, there has not only come an indorsement of it, which has arisen in a current of public thought to a high tide, but there is a resentment against the leaders who framed the 'round robin' that can scarcely be imagined.

Found Anger Over "Plot."

"When the plot was formed, it was all regarded as a part of the Senatorial proceedings. Ordinarily, they do not attract wide attention. Now, however, it is different. The people realize that the great compensation of the war—an international compact for peace—came near being lost to America.

"In the last ten days, and in the last week particularly, every audience that I have addressed has given evidence of indignation toward them when the names of the leading conspirators were recited. I have in mind Senators Lodge, Brandegee, Moses, Wadsworth, Watson, Penrose, Smoot, Newberry and Harding.

"It is not difficult to understand the strength of sentiment for the League. A great majority of the pulpit and the bar, a preponderance of teachers in schools and universities, favor the plan. Then, too, the mother heart responds to the suggestion of a guarantee against war and the masses find two considerations that make strong appeal: The scaling of public expense through the reduction of armaments and the stabilization of wage and labor conditions all over the world, which will remove forever any fear of adverse competition with cheap labor overseas.

"In addition to this thinking people recognize the confusion that will be inevitable if Senator Harding should be elected with an unfriendly Senate. The spur of a positive mandate would be lacking. The elements combined in the rendering of the suffrage verdict would be entirely too complex to justify the interpretation of any definite public desire with reference to our international policies. On the other hand, Senator Harding's defeat would carry with it a significance that could not be misunderstood and further postponement of action by the Senate would be out of the question.

"I was advised in New York that in one day 7,000 contributions came into the Treasurer at our national headquarters.

"Most were small, hundreds and hundreds amounting to no more than $1. These mean two things: An awakening of the mass to appreciation of what the reactionary campaign fund, amounting to millions, means in the future, and it is also an indication of the spiritual fervor that has seized the hearts of the people. Not in my time has there ever been anything like it.

"The foes of the League will have their surprises in New England, in some of the Atlantic States, in the Middle West and the Far West. I have talked with men of long experience in New York who have seen manifestations of public feeling in Presidential campaigns and their judgment is that the tide that set in about two weeks ago is unprecedented."

Cox Greeted by 5,000 Persons.

Governor Cox spent an hour here and was the centre of a demonstration of remarkable size. More than 5,000 persons crowded into the concourses of the Union Station to welcome him, and the Governor, after leaving his train as a mark of appreciation, shook hands with many in the crowd and made a brief non-political speech.

Attorney General Palmer and Joseph P. Tumulty, private secretary to President Wilson, were among the Democratic leaders who went to the station to meet the Governor. Mr. Tumulty was there in a response to a request made by the candidate, when he talked with Mr. Wilson's secretary during the day. At the time the Governor expressed himself as confident that he would be elected. His enthusiasm was so contagious that Mr. Tumulty reflected it in his own elation after the conversation ended.

Governor Cox, when told that a crowd had gathered in the concourse, agreed to go out to view them. As he mounted the stairs from the lower train platform the people, packed against the station fence, broke into cheers, which continued until the Governor was escorted into the Presidential waiting room.

Governor Cox indicated his willingness to shake hands with his admirers, but the police were unable to prevent the room being jammed with enthusiastic and uncontrollable humans. By the time that the Governor had shaken hands with about 1,500 persons, in a heated room in which he had scarcely elbow room, he showed signs of faintness and the handshaking ended.

When called upon by the crowd for a speech, Governor Cox at first demurred, but the gathering was so insistent that the Governor mounted a chair and said:

"I would be very ungracious, indeed, if I did not say something in acknowledgment of the warmth and cordiality of your greeting here tonight. Yet if I said anything by way of fitting response, I would be trespassing on the spirit of the Sabbath. We are a religious nation, we come of religious stock, and therefore I can only speak of gratification for this evidence of your hospitality and bid you goodnight."

Moore Claims 212 Electoral Votes.

The Governor was accompanied on the train tonight by Edmund H. Moore, his pre-convention campaign manager, and Joseph F. Guffey, Committeeman from Pennsylvania. What these two men told him, coupled with a recollection of his receptions throughout the East, contributed to the Governor's confidence.

Mr. Moore, who had just returned from a tour of the border States, reported that they would be safely in the Democratic column. He also said that the Democratic nominee was now assured of 212 electoral votes while the Republicans had but 164. The other States, Mr. Moore said, were still to be classed as doubtful.

"I have not," he said, "included in the list of assured Democratic States either Ohio or Indiana, although I feel sure that we will carry them both. I have not included New York."

Asked to name the States which he counted on carrying he replied:

"No, I cannot do that without revealing to the Republicans the strategy of the campaign. But this week you are going to see a fight."

Two weeks ago Maryland was counted as doubtful. An instance of the reversion of feeling there was cited by Mr. Moore. In Baltimore, he said, 19,000 more voters registered as Democrats than as Republicans, Maryland being one of the States where the voter is expected to set down his political faith on the day of registration. The late days of registration, Mr. Moore found, had caused the change. Kentucky and West Virginia, he asserted, were safe and also Missouri, despite the bolt of Senator Reed.

In both Kentucky and Missouri, Moore said, resentment against the Republican lineup of negroes would be a big factor in the result. He told of an instance in Louisville, where, he said, voting places had been so arranged that negroes would have to walk only a few blocks, with only 300 or 400 voters to a booth, while whites were compelled to go three-quarters of a mile to booths, in which as many as 1,200 had to vote.

"If Ohio is carried by the Democrats, it will mean that the election will go for Cox, Mr. Moore said. Hence it is that Ohio is to become this week the main battleground, with Cox devoting most of his personal efforts to that State.

Cox will go into his home State Tuesday after spending tomorrow in West Virginia. He will close the day with a night speech in Cincinnati. Wednesday and part of Thursday will be devoted to work in Ohio. After going to Indianapolis on Thursday Governor Cox will return to Akron on Friday, will go to Chicago on Saturday and will finally return to his home State again on the day before election.

Physically Governor Cox is in excellent condition, despite his tireless efforts, and he has no doubt of his ability to put as much extra vim into this week's campaign as may be needed.

The League of Nations issue will continue at the forefront. Governor Cox said today that when it came to the matter of ratification of the covenant he and the Senate would have had a mandate from the people and that ratification might be expected in a form that would represent the composite judgment of the people.

Governor Cox's advisers regard Senator Johnson as a strong though unintentional ally. The more Johnson emphasizes the statement that Harding is against the League in any form the more Cox's friends applaud, for they believe that the League has developed as a real aspiration of the great majority of the American people.

Some Not So Optimistic.

There are many Democrats having some knowledge of the progress of the campaign who do not share the optimistic view, but even these have been influenced to adopt a more cheerful attitude by the reports that have been coming in to Democratic headquarters concerning the trend of popular sentiment within the last two or three weeks. That there has been a marked trend toward the Democratic Presidential candidate within that period seems to be generally conceded by unbiased observers, but whether it will be sufficient to overcome the heavy Republican drift that existed in the earlier portion of the contest is something that cannot be forecast. This trend has been particularly noticeable since Governor Cox began to emphasize the League of Nations as the paramount issue.

From Kentucky came statements by telegraph that Cox would carry the State and that the Democrats would retain the United States Senatorship. Kentucky has been looked upon as fighting ground, but the Democrats now express themselves as having no doubt that it will be in the Democratic column on election day.

A statement equally cheering with regard to Indiana was received from Thomas Taggart, Democratic candidate for United States Senator against Senator James E. Watson. Political observers have formed the impression that Indiana is close, with Harding and Watson having a little the better of it. Taggart's message represented the situation as indicating that Cox would get the electoral vote and that he would win the Senatorship over Watson.

Hear of Change in Missouri.

Democratic reports from Missouri tell of a great revival of sentiment there in favor of the League of Nations. The people are represented as having become aroused over this issue and are turning out in throngs to hear Democratic orators expound the arguments in favor of the League. Absolute confidence is being expressed here by Democrats in touch with the Missouri situation that Cox will carry the State and that Breckinridge Long, Democratic candidate for Senator, will be elected.

The League issue became a serious problem to the Democratic Party in Missouri before the San Francisco Convention. Senator James A. Reed, the foremost Democratic opponent of the covenant in the Senate, was turned down as a delegate to the National Convention by the State Convention of Missouri, and this action was sustained by the National Convention. Reed put up an anti-League candidate in the Democratic Senatorial primaries to oppose Long, who was a vigorous advocate of President Wilson's position. Recently Reed announced that he would take no further part in the Missouri national campaign, as he could not support the League.

Senator Selden P. Spencer, Republican, who is a candidate for re-election, is making his campaign almost solely on opposition to the League, so that in Missouri, at least, the electorate will have the opportunity of participating in the "great and solemn referendum" on the League question which President Wilson called for in his letter read at the Jackson dinner in Washington on Jan. 8 last.

Encouraging reports have been received from Kansas by Secretary Tumulty. These caused surprise, as all the indications had appeared to be that Kansas would vote for Harding by an overwhelming majority, and would return Senator Charles Curtis, Republican. Secretary of War Baker, who is touring the West, telegraphed to Washington in a very optimistic vein concerning the progress that is being made in behalf of the League.

From California, the home of Senator Johnson, prominent Democrats have begun to receive reports that a change of sentiment in favor of the League is becoming strongly apparent.

Borah Denies Big Drift to Cox.

The optimism of the Democrats has no justification, according to statements of Republican political managers, who show a confidence that seems to have no qualifications as far as the Presidential situation and the House of Representatives are concerned, though are admittedly worried over the struggle to retain control of the Senate.

One of the Republicans who hold that the Democratic optimism is entirely unjustified is Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, who returned to Washington last night from a five days' speaking campaign in opposition to the League of Nations. He said that he was more confident than ever of Harding's election by an overwhelming vote.

"There is no real trend to the Democratic ticket," he said. "A few intellectuals have declared in favor of Cox, but I find that the masses are going to vote the Republican ticket very solidly."

When told that the Democrats were greatly encouraged and that reports coming here were to the effect that Cox was sweeping things before him and would carry Ohio by a big majority, Senator Borah said:

"Well, any Democrat who thinks Cox can carry Ohio can get plenty of bets. The Republicans are finding no takers in Ohio. They offer odds that Harding will carry the State by 100,000 and, I am told, find no one willing to accept such a wager. If I were a betting man I would bet that Harding would have 100,000 majority in Ohio."

Senator Borah said that the voters had made up their minds on the election weeks ago and that no real change in sentiment among them had taken place in the last ten days.

Tour Encouraged Hitchcock.

Analyzing the situation, Senator Hitchcock said tonight:

"I have been confirmed in my opinion that the tide which turned in our favor some three weeks ago is running more strongly every day—in fact, every hour. The meetings I have had in Connecticut and New Hampshire have been largely attended, and have been very enthusiastic. In Lebanon, N. H., my meeting was twice the size of the Republican meeting held the same night, although Lebanon is a Republican town.

"In Laconia, N. H., it was necessary to hold an overflow meeting, and a second hall had to be rented for that purpose.

"Last night I spoke in Montclair, N. J. The house was crowded and people were standing. The audience was very sympathetic and enthusiastic, although Montclair is a strong Republican centre.

"At almost every one of these meetings there has been a very large percentage of women. At Montclair, especially, the audience consisted nearly one-half of women.

"I feel very strongly that the woman vote is committing itself very emphatically for the League of Nations. At one of these meetings a considerable portion of those who came up afterward to shake hands were Republicans, who declared themselves in favor of the League.

Predicts Defeat of Bitter-Enders.

"There is every indication that Senator Moses of New Hampshire and Senator Brandegee of Connecticut, who are irreconcilable Republican Senators not only on this League but on any league, will be beaten.

"The opinion at Democratic National Headquarters, based on advices received, is that besides getting these two Senatorships, the Democrats will get Senators in Indiana, Missouri, Utah and Wisconsin.

"Contributions are now pouring into the Democratic National Committee in great number. There are generally more than 1,000 contributors a day, and the amount received generally runs over $20,000 a day. I have examined a great many of the letters that accompany subscriptions and there is a very large sprinkling from Republican contributors.

"I have not been in enough States to form an opinion that would justify me in saying that Cox will be elected, but I am sure that I cannot be mistaken in saying that the daily changes in his favor are now very large all over the country.

"Members of the National Committee who have been in touch with various States now feel that we are going to win some States formerly classified as Republican. Managers that I talked to in New York had a sincere conviction that Cox will win."

WIRES COX HE WILL WIN.

"Your Garden Speech Insures It," Charles C. Hughes Says.

Charles C. Hughes, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the American Tariff Reform League, sent a telegram to Governor James M. Cox yesterday, telling the latter that his Madison Square Garden speech Saturday night insured his election to the Presidency.

"Your position on the Irish and Jewish problems meets with the approval of the League" Mr. Hughes said. "There will be no persecution of the Jewish race in any country on earth after all the countries have entered the League of Nations. Your position on the Irish question is the correct position. This League will join with the American Federation of Labor after November 2 in the advocacy of the admission of the Irish Republic into the League of Nations."

GOV. COX, OPTIMISTIC, STARTS FINAL DRIVE

IN WEST VIRGINIA TODAY

Greater Part of Week to be Spent in Campaigning in His Home State.

Governor James M. Cox left New York City yesterday for the final drive of his campaign. The Governor will devote most of his time from now until election to speaking in Ohio, home State of both Presidential nominees.

Before leaving, Governor Cox expressed pleasure at his reception in New York City. "It was a most gratifying meeting," he said, referring to Saturday night's meeting at Madison Square Garden.

Governor Cox said he was now on the "home stretch" of the campaign, and that he believed the trend was strongly toward the Democratic ticket. He expressed confidence in victory, and said that recent reports had been very encouraging, particularly those from the Middle West.

Fatigued by his weeks of campaigning, Governor Cox slept late yesterday in his apartment at the Waldorf-Astoria and he and Mrs. Cox were unable to go to church, as they had planned. They took a short automobile ride in the early afternoon, and later Governor Cox conferred with George White, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, head of the Speakers' Bureau.

Governor Cox left here for Washington at 4:30 P. M. When he reached the Pennsylvania Station 500 or 600 persons gathered around him with a shout of "Our next President." Governor Cox shook hands with many of them. In the crowd and on the platform downstairs were many railroad men, who told Governor Cox that they hoped he would be elected.

As the Governor was descending the stairway a little girl, five years old, thrust her hand through the railing and the Governor took it. "Oh, mother, he squeezed my hand," said the little girl, and both Governor Cox and the bystanders laughed.

Governor Cox appeared in exuberant spirits and in splendid physical condition. "He's as hard as nails," said Mr. White. "He has plenty of exercise always. He walks for hours. You can't keep up with him. I know."

Governor Cox will speak all day today in West Virginia, with stops at Hinton, Berkeley, Mount Hope, Fayette, Cabin Creek, Charleston and St. Albans and a night meeting in Huntington. He will speak at Kenoba, West Virginia, and Ashland, Kentucky, tomorrow during the day and at Cincinnati, Ohio, tomorrow night. He will spend the rest of the week speaking in Ohio except for a speech in Chicago on Saturday night. Governor Cox will close his campaign at Toledo Monday night, on the very eve of election.

'HALF A LOAF' LEAGUE ASKS FOR PLEDGES

Cox and Harding Appealed to by Fifty Advocates of World Peace.

Fifty advocates of world organization for peace, who suggested a compromise arrangement, or "Half-a-loaf League Plan," two weeks ago, made public yesterday letters to Governor James M. Cox and Senator Warren G. Harding, Democratic and Republican Presidential candidates, asking their pledges to work, if elected, for whatever revision of the Lodge reservations two-thirds of the Senate will approve. The letter pointed out that the election might result in a deadlock, and said:

"Whatever may be our individual preferences as to the form of the settlement of the League of Nations question, or whether it is to be the League or a new association of nations is not the vital concern in this proposal. An affirmative answer to it would call for no fulfillment until after one side shall have exhausted every reasonable effort to enter the existing League of Nations with mild or merely interpretative reservations and the other side have tried every fair expedient to supplant the League with a new and different world organization for the preservation of peace or to enter it after thorough revision by the adoption of other reservations or amendments."

REITERATES ROOT REMARK.

Miss Ely Says She Correctly Quoted His Reference to Harding.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24.—Miss Gertrude Ely of Bryn Mawr stated tonight that she was correctly quoted in the newspapers when she told of an incident in which ex-President Taft, Elihu Root and the League of Nations figured.

At a meeting Friday at Ardmore, Miss Ely was asked to speak in favor of this country entering the League of Nations. During her address she said:

"When I was recently a guest in the home of President and Mrs. Taft, Mr. Taft laughingly exhibited a telegram from a friend in London, which contained an episode concerning Elihu Root. According to the telegram Mr. Root, while bidding good-bye to friends in London was asked what he thought of Senator Harding's attitude on the League of Nations. He replied: 'It's damned rot, and I expect to tell him so when I get home.'"

Miss Ely telegraphed to Mr. Taft on Saturday and told him that she had made the statement and hoped that she had not violated a confidence.

"I did not wire him to ask if I had quoted him correctly," she said tonight. "I am sure that I repeated the conversation verbatim and also quoted Senator Root's remarks as stated in the telegram. When I told the incident at the meeting I did not know that it would be published."

COX RESENTS ATTACK IN A CURTIS WEEKLY

Charges Owner Hopes to Get from Harding "Subsidy for Delivery of Magazine."

An attack upon The Saturday Evening Post was made yesterday by Governor James M. Cox, Democratic candidate for President, just before he left this city. Governor Cox obtained an advance copy of the magazine, which will be out next Thursday, containing an adverse editorial and cartoon. He declared that The Saturday Evening Post had suddenly thrown off the "cloak of non-partisanship," and charged that its owner, a the head of a movement which has sought "a subsidy for the delivery of national magazines," hoped to get what was wanted from Senator Harding.

Governor Cox also charged that The Saturday Evening Post had imposed on the confidence of the American people, won by a long record of non-partisanship, because the profiteers who escape taxes by diverting millions to advertising want his opponent elected. The statement follows:

"Propaganda is not effective when it is labeled, but in the guise of facts it strangles the truth and molds the minds into which it is introduced as facts. The American people discovered this during the war, and finally they put upon disloyal propaganda the label which destroyed it.

"I am just now in possession of a specimen of propaganda of this very sort. It is an advance copy of The Saturday Evening Post, known to a great public as a disinterested journal. In all its history its stated purpose has been to present the facts and atmosphere of political situations and to refrain from controversial positions. In this spirit The Saturday Evening Post has been admitted as counselor and friend into millions of American homes.

"But the number of this magazine which is to be distributed next Thursday, the last number before election, suddenly throws off the cloak of non-partisanship. For the first time in its history it resorts to the devices of partisan editorial and insidious cartoon to create a sentiment for the Republican ticket. In the cartoons I am represented as a newsboy, inventing false and sensational happenings for the purpose of selling my wares. My opponent is depicted as kindly and wise. The impression is sought to be created that I am irresponsible, Senator Harding grave and reliable.

"Why has The Saturday Evening Post done this? Why has it betrayed its mission at the last minute of the eleventh hour of this campaign? The people know the answer. It has done this thing because its owner is one of the plutocratic group which knows what it wants of the next Administration and how to get it from the syndicate which controls Senator Harding. It has done this because its owner is the head of the movement which has sought a subsidy from the Government for the delivery of national magazines. The Saturday Evening Post has imposed on the confidence of the American people, won by a long record of non-partisanship, and has become a Republican journal because the profiteers who escape Government taxes by diverting to it millions of their revenue in advertising want my opponent elected.

"Those subscribers who in good faith have admitted this journal to their homes all over the United States will turn its venal counsels out of doors."

MRS. CROSBY WILL SUE TO RESCIND EXPULSION

Will Also Seek to Bar Women Officeholders or Kin of Leaders from Club.

Mrs. John Sherwin Crosby, founder and honorary President of the Women's Democratic Club, announced yesterday that she would bring legal proceedings to have her expulsion from the club rescinded by a court. Mrs. Crosby, who is supporting Senator Harding, Republican nominee for President, and Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., declared that she was still a Democrat and said her expulsion was illegal because less than one-third of the members voted on the motion to expel. She said she intended to attend the next meeting of the club and offer a resolution limiting future membership to those who did not hold political office or who were not related to those who did.

"Most of the women's organizations among Democrats, I have found, are dominated by men holding political office by grace of Tammany Hall," Mrs. Crosby said. "Thus, Mrs. Childs, who presided at the recent meeting at the Commodore, is the sister of Leader Curry of the Thirteenth District, who holds a position in the Surrogate's office.

"We found at San Francisco that a number of delegates to the Democratic National Convention were related to the district leaders by marriage. Thus, a leader would send his wife as a delegate on the theory that this would be recognition of the women voters."

Mrs. Crosby added that it was futile to expect a virile women's organization in Democratic ranks unless Tammany's henchmen were prevented from dominating it through the medium of the feminine members of their families.

She also asserted that Mrs. Tiffany, a member of the Women's Democratic Club, who is stumping the State for Smith, declared in an interview that she was wholly opposed to Mrs. Crosby's expulsion from the Women's Democratic Club.

CONTROL OF SENATE WORRIES MANAGERS

DEMOCRATS ARE CONFIDENT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—As the political campaign draws to a close, the interest of political managers of both sides turns toward the Senate elections, which by reason of cross currents and factional bitterness and the injection of the Non-Partisan League in certain States is conceded by both sides to be filled with uncertainty. One-third of the Senate is to be elected, with the terms of nineteen Democrats and fifteen Republicans to be filled.

One Senator will be elected in each of thirty-one States to succeed the Senators whose terms expire March 4, 1921. Alabama will elect two, one to succeed Senator Underwood, whose term is expiring and the other to fill the seat left vacant by the death of Senator Bankhead. In Virginia, Senator Carter Glass, who was appointed to succeed Senator Martin, is up for election to continue in the Senate.

Senator Poindexter, Chairman of the Republican Senatorial Committee, has claimed that all the Republican seats would be held and that there would be five gains, giving the Republicans a majority of twelve in the next Senate instead of two, as at present.

Senator Hitchcock predicted today the election of six Democratic Senators, replacing Republican Senators from Connecticut, New Hampshire, Missouri, Utah and Wisconsin, assuring Democratic control of the next Senate and the organization in consequence of the Foreign Relations Committee by friends of the League of Nations.

A survey of the States in which close contests are in progress shows the uncertainty of the outcome.

Perhaps the most interesting fight is that in Wisconsin where Senator La Follette is supporting Thompson, running as an independent, and exerting himself to the utmost to stir up feeling in the hope of defeating Senator Lenroot. There is a three-cornered fight there, with Paul S. Reinsch, former Minister to China, the Democratic nominee, claiming support of many independents. La Follette hopes to capture the majority of the 100,00 German votes, and what he does not get will probably go to Reinsch, who is of German descent. There is a very large "liberal" vote in the State, and this element is opposed to Lenroot, who voted dry, and who during the war attacked the loyalty of many of the Germans and Socialists. Reinsch appears to have the best chance.

Two Republican seats are in danger in New Hampshire and Connecticut, where Senator Moses and Senator Brandegee, two outstanding irreconcilables on the treaty, are stoutly opposed. While the Democrats are hopeful of carrying these States, the best information goes to show that the Republican majority on the national ticket will be large enough to make up for defections that may result from the treaty fight waged by these Senators.

Missouri appears to be swerving from the Democratic column, and according to late reports from political observers will be carried by Harding, but may elect a Democratic Senator to succeed Senator Spencer. Breckinridge Long, the Democratic nominee, is very popular, and Senator Spencer finds himself confronted by both the dry and wet elements, who are now calling him to account for his vote on prohibition.

Indiana Is Debatable Ground.

Indiana is debatable ground. The State may go Republican on the national ticket but elect Thomas Taggart, Democrat, to the Senate. Senator Watson, the Republican nominee, does not command the support of his party newspapers.

Utah is another State which the Democrats may carry. While the latest reports are to the effect that the Mormon Church will lend its influence to Senator Smoot, there is no definite assurance that the Church authorities, who favor the League of Nations, will consent to Smoot's return to the Senate.

Senator Cummins is encountering strong opposition in Iowa, with the farmers opposing him almost as strongly as union labor. The former charge that the Cummins-Esch act has increased freight rates and put up the price of farming materials, while union labor is opposed to him because of his espousal of the anti-strike clause, which was ultimately rejected. This State is said to be strongly pro-League, with Republican newspapers supporting the attitude of President Wilson. Cummins is reported 50 per cent. weaker than the head of the ticket.

HARDING DEMANDS DEMOCRATS ANSWER

American railways, their industrial policy, and their maintaining in the Federal Government hundreds of thousands of unnecessary employes has cost the taxpayers of this country a fearful financial burden which our men and women, and even their children, will have to pay.

Charges Grotesque Inefficiency.

"They have made no answer to the charge that their rule has been one of grotesque inefficiency.

"They have made no answer to the charge that during the control which they now seek to perpetuate they have perverted the form of Government of our republic and over-ridden the purposes of our Constitution by maintaining extreme and undemocratic centralization of Executive power which would have been an offense to Thomas Jefferson and to Grover Cleveland as much as it would have been to Washington, Lincoln and Roosevelt.

"I have spent this campaign in setting forth a constructive Republican policy. I have demanded the restoration of the Constitutional Government of a representative democracy, which shall represent the will of the people flowing up from the people, rather than the will of one-man government descending toward the people.

"I have stood for more business in Government and less Government in business. I have demanded a reorganization of administrative government so that it shall become a source of pride to the American spirit of efficiency and will remove the drain from the taxpapers.

"I have set forth a plan for the conservation of our human resources and one for the development of our material resources. I have suggested means for the protection of motherhood and childhood, and for the alleviation of human suffering at home, here in America. I have discussed in detail a policy of reclamation, irrigation and development of natural resources, and I have stated clearly a plan for the wholesome expansion of our foreign trade and for the protection of our industries, and for the upbuilding and safeguarding of our agriculture and for a merchant marine.

"As to our foreign policy and America's full expectation of becoming a member of a wise association of nations, with the preservation of our own independence and national spirit, I have given a conscientious and practical proposal.

"I have stated that I am wholly against the proposal to approve our membership in the League of Nations, as our opponents insist that it shall be written. Even in the hands of our opponents that program is impossible. Even were our opponents to be elected it would result in a hopeless blockade as a sequel to the one which the President of the United States has carried on since the Peace Treaty was submitted to the representatives of the people for approval.

"I have endeavored to serve in this campaign, not merely to be elected, but to set before the American people, sincerely and clearly, a definite policy for the administration of the United States to bring our people out of the jungle of mismanagement and into the light of a stable good fortune. I have endeavored to serve by doing what I could to harmonize public opinion and unite America behind a foreign policy which shall be wise, generous and humane, though it refuses to mortgage America to the Old World.

"We do not know what our opponents stand for. I stand for a united America, a humane America, an efficient America. America first."

WHITE SEES 256 COX VOTES, 111 IN DOUBT

Claims Democrats Will Carry Majority of Doubtful States—Concedes Harding 164.

George White, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, issued an election forecast yesterday, in which he claimed victory for the Democratic national ticket. Mr. White said that Governor James M. Cox and Franklin D. Roosevelt would surely get 222 electoral votes east of the Missouri River and thirty-four west of the Missouri River, a total of 256 or within ten of the number necessary to elect. He conceded 164 to Harding and Coolidge, which, he said, left 111 votes "in contest." Mr. White asserted that the swing now in progress toward the Democratic candidates would give the majority of these 111 votes to Cox and Roosevelt. The statement follows:

"I have been making a detailed investigation of conditions in the various States. For two days I have been receiving revised reports. It is now possible to give to the public a statement of our prospects in the election.

"Governor Cox and Mr. Roosevelt will have 222 electoral votes east of the Missouri River and thirty-four west of the Missouri River, a total of 256, as good as counted. This is within ten of the number necessary to elect. The Republicans have 164 which I regard as good as counted for them. This leaves 111 votes in contest. In the decided swing now in progress toward the Democratic ticket we will carry the majority of this 111, a very comfortable victory, indeed.

"This is my prediction. I am confident it will be borne out Election Day."

A statement by the Directors of the Merchants Bank of Augusta, Ga., to the depositors, issued August 21, 1920, following the (accidental) discovery that an employe had been misappropriating funds for two years.

"We lament the necessity of advising you that we have discovered that Mr. James L. Hill, late receiving teller of the Merchants Bank, has defaulted to the amount of $35,593.58.

"The bank has a solvent bond of $10,000 of this amount. In order to maintain for you unimpaired the surplus and undivided profits of $350,953.51, we have personally made good in cash the sum of $25,593.58."

YOUR bank should be interested in a method of supplying protection which would make it unnecessary for the members of its Board to follow the unusual example of the Merchants Bank Directors should similar circumstances arise.

Banks pay premiums for Burglary Insurance, Hold-up Insurance and Fidelity Bonds on their employes. Seldom does the amount collectible under any one of these items fully reimburse the insured for a particular loss.

F. & D. BANKERS' BLANKET BONDS FURNISH ALL-AROUND PROTECTION

If an employe steals $25,000; or a messenger is robbed of $30,000; or safe-wreckers take $40,000, the whole amount of the Blanket Bond is applied to whichever one of these losses occurs.

The Blanket Bond protects also against other contingencies which are prolific of losses.

We will gladly inspect your Bank's equipment and give counsel as to modern methods of mechanical and insurance bank protection.

HAYS BASING FIGHT ON BUSINESS SYSTEM

SEEKING THE WIDEST HELP

He Emphasizes Domestic Issues as Playing a Big Part in the Voters' Attitude.

By WILLIAM H. CRAWFORD.

When I called on Will H. Hays to interview him the other day I found him dictating to two stenographers, with two others near, waiting to take their places as soon as they could get their share of the letters. In response to my first question, he replied:

"Good government is at stake. I am working night and day to get good government by getting our representative people interested in politics. Politics as usually conducted is a travesty on good government, because the people who could make for good government take no interest in the only way in which good government can be obtained. They send their checks to their favorite party and then complacently feel that they have done their whole duty. They have not!

"They must work if they desire to get a good government. If they want good candidates they must get in politics themselves. They leave politics to a lot of professional politicians and then complain about bad government. I have devoted the last two years almost solely to this subject, trying to get the substantial, intelligent, educated men of America to manage her politics and to run her Government."

"I suppose you are equally interested in getting the intelligent Democrats interested in politics," I suggested.

"Oh, no," he answered with a laugh. "I'm not quite so altruistic as that. I'm a Republican because I believe that those policies of government are best, and I believe that a majority of the thinking, substantial people will be Republicans if we can just get them interested sufficiently to be anything.

"But, really, I would rather see a good man take an active interest in the Democratic Party than to wash his hands of politics altogether. My work so far has been successful. There are thousands of men today, who have never previously worked in any political campaign, actively engaged in helping us select the best man for the Presidency."

System in Republican Fight.

"What do you think has been the keynote of your work as Chairman of the National Committee?"

"Organization, by all means. We have worked with a system as accurate and as carefully mapped out as that used by any important business or even a military enterprise."

"Are you sure the Republicans will win?"

"I have complete 100 per cent. faith in complete Republican victory this Fall because I have 100 per cent. confidence in American common sense and because I have 100 per cent. evidence that this mass intelligence and intuition will not miscarry at the November polls. The American people know that the Wilson party has 'kept them out of peace' for two hectic years, despite an ardent and cunning pretense of beatific monopoly upon all pacific aspirations, and they are fully alive to the fact that the Wilson League of Nations would prove similarly counterfeit in 'keeping them out of war' in years to come.

"The American people know that the Wilson party has brazenly and shamefully ignored all constitutional restraints and precedents in affairs at home, despite a pose of exalted but sham fidelity, and they are fully convinced that the Wilson League of Nations would be equally contemptuous of our constitutional independence in affairs abroad.

"The American people know that the Wilson party is trademarked not only with all its own recently demonstrated incapacities and wanton extravagances and reckless wastes, but also with traditional and historic and consistent Democratic impotence to meet economic crises, and they are fully alive to the danger of longer gambling with the tremendous responsibilities of an already too long dodged American reconstruction.

"The American people know that 'America First' means more than the preservation of a free republic against the overlordship of supergovernment at Geneva, where our sovereignty would sink to a ratio of one to six in comparison with Britain, a ratio of one to forty or fifty in comparison with the balance of the world. They know that 'America First' equally means that there are scores of domestic problems—intimately related to American life and livelihood, close to every American hearthstone—which must have constructive and progressive attention if 'America First' is to last, and they are fully awake to the fact that the Wilson party and the Democracy, in the challenging presence of these problems, has stood impotent and in confessed bankruptcy.

"The American people know that high-piled and fast-multiplying public debts must come to a dead halt, that, rich though we are, the Government cannot forever pick billions off of Christmas trees—trees that are watered with the sweat from American brows—that taxes must be remodeled to fit equity and reduced, in keeping with reduced Governmental expenditures, at the earliest possible moment. Knowing these things they are not deluded into risking salvation for the future to these same Wilsonian stewards who have betrayed them and 'picked their pockets' in the past.

"The American people know that high living costs can be pyramided down, instead of up, safely but surely, under adequate governmental inspiration which understands sound political economy. They want these living costs brought down—with the least possible disturbance to pregnant commerce and to a legitimately sustained mass earning power. But they are not trusting such contemplations to a Wilson party which magnificently typified its ignorance and its inertia in these things by blankly but blandly refusing to buy the Cuban sugar crop in 1919 for six and one-half cents a pound—permitting, instead, an American gouge that rose in some instances as high as thirty cents a pound.

Assails "Applied Radicalism."

"The American people know that applied radicalism is a blight—whether evidenced by the unforgiveable appointment of repudiated Socialists by President Wilson to important posts, or whether evidenced by a Government mismanagement of railroads to the tune of a $1,375,000,000 loss piled upon our people in twenty-six months. We had to take over the railroads as a war measure; but now that they are back where they belong—under the most progressive legislation (Republican legislation) ever applied to transportation—the people are not prepared to hazard a renewed season of kindergarten experiments in applied socialism in this or any other field under a continuing Wilson party that confuses statesmanship with quack nostrums.

"The American people know that there has been profiteering in the necessities of life—worse, in the necessities of war. But they also know that the Wilson party has been more vociferate than effective in reaching the real exploiters and handing them the retribution deserved. They know that a mighty, sanctimonious 'Stop Thief!' cry has been flung up and down the land—to the indiscriminate embarrassment and prejudice of thousands of honest men—while, under cover of this high noise, crime has gone unpunished. They are not inclined to trust the great 'clean-up'—the day of reckoning—to that party under which the necessity for a reckoning has risen.

"The American people know that the post-war treatment of the American soldier and sailor has been a scandal of ingratitude and incompetence. The 'system' has functioned beautifully for a swivel-chair bureaucracy, but infamously for many a hero whose wound chevrons should have commanded the nation's obeisance and generosity instead of empty promises made today and broken tomorrow. It is all very well to talk about our debt to the world—as though our war sacrifices abroad had brought us nothing but an obligation for still more sacrifices abroad. But surely, if we are to retain an ounce of that national honor to which our political opponents address so many pretty but treacherous phrases, we must first think of our debt to our own invincible defenders. The Wilson party has been very liberal in its pension lists—but, unhappily, the chief beneficiaries of this prodigal grace are numbered in a continuing civilian army of useless political parishioners who cling to the pie-counter by the tens of thousands with a single-track purpose and tenacity that makes an anaemic Federal Treasury groan from exhaustion.

"The American people know that there are scores of these 'America First' domestic questions which the Wilson party has either dodged or ignored or man-handled. They know that we cannot wait—in an international trance—much longer for constructive leadership that shall facilitate industrial justice to the end that industrial peace shall be stabilized; that great agricultural and housing questions must be solved; that American shipping must be encouraged (instead of checked by the Presidential assumption of an unconstitutional authority to enforce needful Republican legislation passed by the last Congress); that a Federal budget system must be established (instead of stopped by a Presidential veto which objects to shared prerogatives in this regard); that a reasonable Republican tariff must speedily protect American markets in the new world-war of trade now opening, if American labor standards are not to be chinafied.

"The American people are taking the Democratic master at his own word in all of these respects. At Shadow Lawn (almost as foreboding a name as Trail's End), when he accepted re-nomination, Mr. Wilson said: 'There is no means of judging the future except by assessing the past; the Democrats either have or have not understood the varied interests of the country; the test is contained in the record.' To this much Wilsonian philosophy I agree.

Puts Domestic "Failures" Forward.

"I am emphasizing these things because I know in what the people are interested. And rightly are they so interested. President Wilson, now in charge of the campaign, has made what he believed to be a very adroit effort to put his League of Nations in politics, to try to make it a sentimental issue—as counterfeit as his 'he kept us out of war' of 1916. The people cannot be fooled.

"The Democratic Party is squarely up against the accounting of its stewardship. It cannot escape just and due responsibility for a score of tragic failures in domestic administration. It is afraid to discuss its party record. It offers no constructive solution for the problems which it has failed to meet, but strives to develop a campaign strategy of one issue. It proposes to settle this campaign in Europe, when every taxpayer in America is crying for a discussion of the means for a better, more efficient and more economical constitutional government at home. The first and all-commanding issue which will settle this approaching solemn referendum is general and proper dissatisfaction with the Democratic Administration and one-man Government, and a confidence in the Republican Party's ability to furnish the brains and heart to meet the situation.

"The League plays its part, to be sure; but even on this score the more the people find out what it is the League would let us in for (to quote an ex-Wilsonian satellite) the greater becomes this general dissatisfaction which is rolling a tremendous Republican verdict toward the November polls.

"The American people want peace. They love peace. But they are unwilling to mortgage the soul of America to an impractical and menacing idea which is already discounted even in those foreign capitals which pretend a Wilson League enthusiasm. They are prepared for a society of nations grounded in justice. They are opposed to a Wilson League founded upon force.

"Squirm though these Wilsonians may—with their belated toleration of life-saving reservations—they cannot disguise the fact that Article X. is, in truth and in fact, the heart of the covenant, and that, under this infamous contract, we can ultimately escape a compelling moral obligation (Wilson's phrase) to participate in all the future external wars of all the world only by pleading a technical legal right. The American people will never consent to be put in an equivocal position where to preserve their own constitutional self-determination they must choose the humiliating alternative of dishonoring their sacredly pledged word. Such abominable subterfuge is completely un-American.

"That the nations of the world should unite to promote peace and general disarmament—yes. The Wilson League—no. That will be the answer of the American people.

"The American people realize that they can have everlasting faith in Senator Harding and Governor Calvin Coolidge. This completes the reasoning which is leading them by overwhelming millions toward Republican columns on election morning. They know, further, that these men will restore Government by common counsel for the common good; and the American people are straining for just such a renaissance of real democracy.

"Governor Cox has left no cheap sensation unattempted; he has exhausted the dictionary of malignant epithets; he has lowered Presidential dignity and campaign standards to ward-heeling, soap-box levels in his distemperate quest for votes. Camouflaging facts with cunning phrases and reckless rhetoric, he may swindle history in being recorded as a Presidential candidate, but neither he nor his fellows have fooled the American people. The American people are going to vote—overwhelmingly—for a complete, responsive and responsible Republican administration of national affairs.

"Eight years is more than enough. Let's clean house. I hope the time never comes when any political party can avoid responsibility for mis-government."

FREE ADVICE ON LEAGUE.

Lawyers Will Explain Its Provisions to Voters.

In order to facilitate study of the League of Nations covenant, the Lawyers' League for Cox and the League of Nations has arranged to have lawyers in many cities in New York State explain its provisions to any persons who may desire it. The following list of lawyers who may be consulted free of charge on this matter all this week was made public yesterday by J. Herbert Watson, Secretary of the league:

William H. Griffin, Irving J. L. Brickell, Everett P. Wheeler, Manhattan; Gabriel Behrisch, John P. Carroll, Edward J. Connelly, Joseph A. Kennedy, George E. Brower, Ernest C. Brower, Thomas A. Shaw, Brooklyn; Ned W. Youmans, Edward O'Connor, Delhi; C. E. Scott, Deposit; Lewis F. Raymond, Franklin; Vincent L. Elwood, Franklin; George J. Sternberg, Hancock; Elmer Baker, Arthur E. Conner, Sidney; John G. Moore, Walton; Jerome I. Goodrich, Stamford; James J. McNeal, Edmund P. Lynch, David H. Corcoran, Ogdensburg; Arthur E. Bishop, George H. Bishop, Milton E. De Voe, Alex T. Blessing, Schenectady; M. M. Kelly, Sodus; Jesse Pettys, Newark; John H. Egan, Clyde, and J. F. Lynes, Jacob Braenner, W. Ray Converse, Palmyra.

SEE GAINS FOR COX IN MISSOURI CHANGE

BOTH PARTIES CLAIM STATE

Republicans Rely Chiefly on Factional Fight Among Opponents and Defection of Reed.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 24.—With one more week left for strenuous campaigning Democratic leaders believe Missouri will be found in the Democratic column when the votes are counted a week from Tuesday. Today both Democrats and Republicans claim the State with an "if." Impartial observers pronounce the State in doubt.

The Democrats have the better organization both as to men and women voters. They are making the most strenuous campaign, too. Republicans are relying largely on a factional row in the Democratic ranks, the bolt of United States Senator James A. Reed from the Democratic national ticket and the fact that the Democratic candidate for United States Senator, Breckinridge Long, was an Assistant Secretary of State, a member of President Wilson's official family.

The League of Nations is the big issue here, and is being emphasized by the Democrats, who have held many more meetings in this State and have had at their command more prominent speakers than have the Republicans. The League was an issue in the Democratic primaries which preceded the campaign. Mr. Long, running as the principal pro-League candidate, won by a plurality of more than 12,000 over Henry S. Priest, a former Federal Judge, who was looked on as "Jim" Reed's candidate, and ran as an avowed opponent of the League. But the 12,000 plurality does not tell the whole story of Democratic support for the League in the primaries, for there was a third candidate, Charles M. Hay, a St. Louis lawyer, who strongly advocated an unamended covenant in his primary speeches. He received a little more than 21,000 votes.

Ex-Judge Priest received 40,000 votes. Republicans hope those who supported him will withhold their votes from the national candidate, including Mr. Long, even though they may support Democrats on the State ticket. The bulk of those who voted for Mr. Priest are friends of Senator Reed, who has commended only one of the Democratic principals, John M. Atkinson, candidate for Governor.

Expect Help from All Factions.

On the other hand, C. E. Yancey, Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, at a roundup today of the committee and State candidates, said he had received positive assurances from Thomas J. Prendergast and Joseph B. Shannon, leaders of the Reed and anti-Reed factions, that both would support the entire ticket. Spokesmen for the Prendergast organization, which has been backing Senator Reed, declared at the meeting of the State Committee that Senator Reed had hurt himself with the Democrats in his own political stronghold when he announced that he must hurry to Wisconsin to make speeches for James Thompson, Senator LaFollette's candidate for United States Senator, who is a Republican.

"I can hardly use words strong enough to describe the change that has taken place here in the last two weeks," said Mr. Yancey after the meeting. "Four weeks ago, when we held our first meeting, everybody was cold and blue. Now it is entirely the other way and we are receiving good reports from everywhere. The visit of the pro-League special, with its array of Republican orators which was here last week, did wonders. We are going to win."

The attack on Governor Cox, made by Senator Reed in his speech at Kansas City last week was partly inspired, it was learned from an unquestionably well informed source today, by personal animus. Senator Reed, according to this authority, had promised a personal friend occupying an important State office who had come to him from the Democratic State organization bearing an olive branch, to soften his opposition to Governor Cox and Mr. Long and to make three or four speeches in this State for the Democratic candidate for Governor and the party candidates for other States offices. Before he could do this Senator Reed received a clipping containing an editorial which appeared in Governor Cox's newspaper last November in which the Senator was assailed for his attitude toward the League, as a pro-German and a traitor to his party.

In this State splitting a ticket involves a laborious task, so there is little likelihood that votes for Harding and Coolidge and the Republican candidate for United States Senator will be cast as well as for the Democratic candidates on the State ticket by friends of Senator Reed. There is not in Missouri a blanket ballot containing the names of candidates of all parties. There are six tickets in the field, and voters will receive six separate ballots, each containing the names of all the candidates of one party.

To vote for the Republican candidates for President and Vice-President on the Democratic ballot it would be necessary for a voter to write in the names of all the Republican electors in the place of the Democratic electors.

Fear Deal with Republicans.

Senator Reed is more bitterly opposed to Long than he is to any other candidate on the Democratic ticket. Neither does he love his colleague in the Senate, Selden F. Spencer, who was elected two years ago to fill out the unexpired term of the late United States Senator William J. Stone.

What Democrats fear now is that a deal may be made during the closing week of the campaign between Reed's organization and the boss of the Republican organization in Kansas City, Thomas E. Marks, in pursuance of which Reed's friends would refrain from voting for Presidential electors and United States Senator. The "practical" element in the Democratic State organization is most vitally concerned about getting their candidate for Governor elected and Reed is friendly to him. Approximately $500,000 in patronage annually and control of the Police Department and election machinery in the big cities go with the Governor's office, for the Police Commissioner of Kansas City is appointed by the Governor. There is a split in the Republican ranks in Jackson County, too, where a group of independents, headed by Matthew Foster, are seeking to wrest control of the organization away from Marks.

It is estimated that the total vote in Missouri this year will be not in excess of 1,100,000, and that from 300,000 to 400,000 women will vote. How they will cast their ballots both the Democratic and Republican leaders admit is the big puzzle in the campaign.

"We think the women are with us on the League issue," said Mr. Long today. "We have conducted a pretty active campaign among them, and I believe we have a much better organization among the women than have the Republicans. The registration is pretty good, but the figures now available do not give us anything to go by, for we have personal registration only in St. Louis, Kansas City, St. Joseph and Joplin. There is none in the farming districts."

In this State the Democrats have their principal strength among the farmers. Of the big cities, Kansas City, even before the women voted, normally gave the Democrats a plurality of from 10,000 to 12,000, which, with women participating, should be materially increased, provided the women divide as the Democrats expect they will. Wilson four years ago carried Jackson County (Kansas City and vicinity) by approximately 14,000.

O'LEARY IS INDORSED BY CITIZENS UNION

Independent Candidate for Queens Attorney Termed Force for Good Government.

The Citizens Union made public yesterday its list of indorsements of candidates for county offices. The most interesting feature is the indorsement of Denis O'Leary, present District Attorney of Queens County, who was denied renomination by both the Democratic and Republican Parties and is running as an independent.

For County Clerk in the Bronx, the Citizens Union has indorsed Robert L. Moran, Democrat, whom it refused to support last year against F. H. La Guardia, Republican, for President of the Board of Aldermen. Concerning Mr. O'Leary, the report says:

"Denis O'Leary (Citizens and Farmer-Labor). He has been a force for good government in Queens County and has made a record on which he emphatically deserves reëlection, which the Citizens Union is glad to urge."

The report says Lawrence T. Gresser, Jr., Democratic candidate against Mr. O'Leary, is "lacking in experience," and that Dana Wallace, Republican candidate, is "opposed by a non-partisan group of lawyers on the ground that his qualifications are insufficient."

The Citizens Union indorses John Wagner, Republican candidate for Sheriff of Queens County, as "a man of good repute in the community who is indorsed as superior to his opponents."

Concerning Mr. Moran, the report says:

"Robert L. Moran (Dem.) has made commendable record. Indorsed as well as qualified by experience and intelligence for this position."

James Laing, Republican candidate for County Clerk of Richmond County, is indorsed as "a capable business man of high standing who gives promise of conducting the County Clerk's office on a modern and efficient basis." Of C. Livingston Bostwick, Democrat, the incumbent, the report says that "his conduct of the office has been adversely criticised by lawyers and others for dilatoriness and lack of method."

SAYS HARDING IS MISQUOTED

Republicans Deny He Favored "Dollar Wheat" in War.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Republican National Headquarters here tonight issued a statement declaring that Senator Harding's opponents were widely and mendaciously circulating reports that the Senator opposed guaranteeing the American farmer more than $1 a bushel for wheat during the war. Statements made by the Senator had been garbled so as to misrepresent his views, the statement said.

"The facts are that Senator Harding voted to guarantee the farmer $2.50 wheat while President Wilson, when the power was placed in his hands, fixed the guarantee ostensibly at $2.50, though as a matter of fact the farmer got much less than that," continued the statement.

"Senator Harding's reference to dollar wheat, made in an address at the Minnesota State Fair Grounds, had no reference to the price of wheat in war time. He was talking about the price of wheat in times of peace prior to the Great War. He was not even talking of the price of wheat under conditions since the war ended.

"While the Lever bill to encourage food production was before the Senate July 21, 1917, Senator Harding, in the course of a running debate, stated:

"'I said that raising $1 wheat was a profitable occupation in times of peace and I said to the Senator from North Dakota, Mr. McCumber, that the knowing farmers of the country were buying land in Ohio at $150 an acre for the very purpose of going into a commercial proposition of raising wheat profitably at $1 a bushel—in times of peace, to be sure.' This was a reference to production in the days of peace, when $1 wheat was looked on far differently from what it was in the war period or would be now in the unsettled conditions following the war.

"Senator Harding's opponents, though they know perfectly well that Senator Harding voted for $2.50 wheat, nevertheless garbled the statement which he made by cutting out the last seven words—'in times of peace to be sure'—and are circulating the rest of it so as to give the impression that Senator Harding wanted to hold the farmer down to dollar wheat in war times."

COX SWING IN NEBRASKA.

Drift Toward Democrats Has Been in Progress for Two Weeks.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 14.—There has been a swing in Nebraska toward Cox for the last two weeks. Whether that swing is strong enough to give the State to the Democratic candidate is not certain. Reports received from Democratic workers in all parts of the State tell of this defection from Harding. For three weeks a Democratic daily newspaper in Omaha has each day printed on its front page an interview with some prominent Republican who has repudiated Harding and is voting for Cox. Many of these are subscribing to the Democratic Campaign Fund and some have taken the stump for the Democratic ticket.

Arthur Mullen, former Democratic National Committeeman, who returned last night from an extended trip over the State, said he found this swing for Cox in full force all over the State. Three weeks ago well posted Democrats were practically conceding the State to Harding. Today these same Democrats are claiming the State for Cox.

The Allerton Idea

Allerton House, a residence for business and professional men, is the fulfillment of a new idea in city housing.

The sociability and privacy of a club, the conveniences of a hotel, the pleasant quiet of a home, these are provided at a fraction of the cost of accommodations at a first class hotel, because essentials have been substituted for useless extravagances.

The Allerton idea of service is expressed in the pervasive atmosphere of comfort to be found equally in its lounges, roof garden, sun parlor, gymnasium and music room.

Allerton House is a residence men are proud to speak of as their home.

The newest of the Allerton Group at 55th Street and Madison Avenue, designed by Arthur Loomis Harmon, will be ready for occupancy December 1st.

75,000 TO MARCH WITH TORCHLIGHTS

FIVE DIVISIONS TO FORM

They Will Converge at Fifth Avenue and Twenty-third Street, Forming a "Wheel of Flame."

Plans for the torchlight parade under the direction of the Business Men's Republican Association, which will precede the speech of Governor Calvin Coolidge, Republican nominee for Vice President, at Carnegie Hall next Thursday evening, were announced last night by Charles H. Sherrill, grand marshal. It is expected that 75,000 men and women will be in line.

The parade will start at 6:15 P. M. There will be five divisions, named from the sections where they will form, the south, southwest, southeast, northwest and northeast sectors. The five sectors will converge at Fifth Avenue and Twenty-third Street, and will march up Fifth Avenue to Fifty-seventh Street, where the parade will disband. The convergence of the five sectors at Fifth Avenue and Twenty-third Street will form a "wheel of flame" which is expected to be one of the features of the parade.

The south sector will consist of the dry goods trade, knit goods, horse clothing and saddlery, boot and shoe trade, shoe manufacturers, hide and leather division, Steam, Water and Gas Supply Association and the hardware, metals and allied trades, and will assemble in the vicinity of Worth Street.

The southwest sector, consisting of clothing, corsets, hat, cap and allied trades, sporting goods, retail dry goods, wholesale millinery and insurance, will assemble in the neighborhood of Washington Square.

The southeast sector will include silks, lace and embroideries, haberdashers, needle trades, braids, woolens and worsteds, Uptown Dry Goods Association, tailors, carpet trade, upholstery trade, furniture, certified accountants, architects, paper trade and advertising men, and will assemble below Twentieth Street.

The northwest sector will consist of the jewelers, publishers, real estate, drug, paint, oil, chemical and allied trades, pianos, bankers and brokers, lawyers, engineers, exporters and the Music Publishers' Association, and will assemble west of Fifth Avenue and north of Twenty-third Street.

The northeast sector will include railway transportation, college men and women, Harvard Association, Yale Association, Princeton Association and sections containing representatives of other colleges, and will form north of Twenty-third Street and east of Fifth Avenue.

Floats and illuminated signs will appear in the parade.

CHALLENGES LA FOLLETTE.

Lenroot Accuses Him of False Charges and Proposes a Joint Debate

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 24.—Senator Irvine L. Lenroot, in answer to Senator La Follette's repeated charges today, in an open letter to his senior colleague invited him to a debate on campaign questions. Mr. Lenroot in the letter says that Mr. La Follette is guilty of deliberate falsehoods. The letter follows:

Senator Robert M. La Follette, Madison, Wis.:

Dear Sir—I have just read your speech delivered in Milwaukee on the 22d inst., and I find that it is filled with plain, unvarnished falsehoods, deliberately made by you.

In your vindictive hate of one who would not be your willing tool you have lost all regard for truth and sense of honor. You parade in your magazine the motto, "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." The people of Wisconsin desire to know the truth in this campaign and, to assist them in learning it, I invite you to discuss with me the issues of the campaign as outlined by you at the same place in Milwaukee or at any other place that you may desire.

I concede your superior eloquence; I realize your disregard of facts; but I shall rely on the truth to secure a verdict from any audience in the State of Wisconsin.

Hoping to receive an immediate acceptance of this proposition, I am,

Yours truly,

IRVINE L. LENROOT.

LEGION'S BONUS POSITION.

Supports Bond Proposal but Is Not Asking for Campaign Funds.

The American Legion in the State of New York is supporting proposition No. 1 to issue not more than $45,000,000 in bonds to pay bonuses to veterans of the World War resident in New York State, but is not soliciting funds to carry on a campaign, Hugh W. Robinson, acting Treasurer of the State Department of the Legion, announced yesterday. Mr. Robinson said he issued the statement so that appeals for funds by another organization supporting the proposition might not be confused with the work of the Legion.

Reports from posts in all the sixty-two counties indicated that the proposition would be carried by a large majority, Mr. Robinson said. He added that many of the 930 posts of the State had pledged themselves to turn over any bonuses that might be received by their members to wounded and disabled men.

FROM HAND TO MACHINE

Nearly all the progress in the making of fine paper has taken place since the Crane Mills began to make paper.

Up to that time paper was still being made by hand—practically as it had been for eight hundred years. For some time afterward the Crane Mills made paper by hand. In these mills the change was made gradually from hand to machine, and without losing the quality of handmade paper. But the machines were always machines to make better paper rather than more paper. They were not concerned with quantity production. It was quality production that had made the name "Crane" mean something in writing papers.

There are many mills that have greater capacity than the Crane Mills. There are none, we earnestly believe, that surpass the quality of Crane Papers.

CLERK IN MARKET
MEMBER OF ASSEMBLY
SPEAKER OF ASSEMBLY

GOVERNOR ALFRED E. SMITH has earned your support. He is a splendid example of American opportunity. His rise from lowly station to Governor of the Empire State is an unanswerable contradiction to the carpers and promoters of unrest who whine that there is no chance for advancement for those born to poverty and toil.

By his own effort and worth, he has won universal confidence and admiration.

ALFRED E. SMITH Has Made Good!

He Deserves Your Vote

He made good as Member of the Assembly, Speaker, Sheriff, Delegate to the Constitutional Convention, President of the Board of Aldermen. He is a 100% efficient Governor. The practical, progressive legislation for which he is responsible—the Factory Laws, the Workmen's Compensation Law, the Cannery Laws, the 54 Hour Law for women in factories, the law for one day's rest in seven, demonstrate his human sympathy.

He called a special session of the Legislature to make Woman Suffrage a national reality.

He called a special session of the Legislature to meet the housing crisis in this State and thereby kept 100,000 rent payers in their homes.

He saved Direct Primaries.

He saved the Taxpayers $7,500,000 this year by vetoes of legislative extravagance.

Would you turn your back on a tried and true friend to show favor to a stranger?

The same rule should apply to candidates for public office.

RYAN THREATENS TO HECKLE AGAIN

Announces He Will Question Harding in Ohio Unless League Stand Is Clarified.

SENDS LETTER TO NOMINEE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, OCT. 24.—Another direct appeal to Senator Harding to declare without equivocation his attitude toward the League of Nations and the Borah-Johnson movement for "scrapping" it was made tonight by Edward A. Ryan in a letter to Senator Harding urging upon him "the necessity of deciding whether you ought not to state where you stand."

Mr. Ryan is the Washington lawyer who went to Baltimore on the night of Sept. 27th for the purpose of asking Senator Harding in the course of his speech in that city whether he favored "scrapping" the League as proposed by Senators Borah and Johnson. Mr. Ryan was put out of the meeting and arrested for asking his question, but was released later.

Mr. Ryan informs Senator Harding in his letter that if the nominee feels he cannot answer the questions put to him, Mr. Ryan will attend the meetings to be addressed this week by Mr. Harding in Ohio to present his questions face to face.

Mr. Ryan's letter reads:

"Washington, D. C., Oct., 20, 1920.

"My Dear Senator:

"You will recall that I attended your meeting at Baltimore on Sept. 27th for the purpose of asking a question with reference to the League of Nations. You most graciously asked me to the platform, but, unfortunately, I was apprehended by a Baltimore policeman before I could take advantage of your kind invitation.

"In the subsequent correspondence between us and in your Des Moines speech the question I addressed to you with reference to the 'scrapping' of the League was answered by you. Your statement at Des Moines, wherein you said that you wanted to turn your back on the treaty and that it was not interpretation but rejection that you sought was a full and complete reply to my inquiry at Baltimore as to whether you had agreed to 'scrap' the League.

"But since that time thiry-one distinguished Republicans have addressed you and, disregarding altogether the utterances contained in your Des Moines speech, have sought to give the impression that you were in favor of a League of Nations with certain interpretations and reservations. Evidently your Des Moines speech and its plain meaning have been disregarded by those friends of yours, for Mr. Taft, at Bloomington, Ill., said that the expressions that Mr. Harding "scrapped" the League are grossly unfair expressions.'

"Senator Johnson, at Hoboken, on Oct. 20, said there was 'nothing ambiguous or uncertain' in your attitude, that you had courageously taken your stand, that you had put the League behind you, that you wanted neither interpretations nor reservations, but outright rejection. And, still, Mr. Root, Mr. Taft and Mr. Hughes persist in saying that your attitude toward the League of Nations is not one of out and out rejection.

"Only last night in New York Senator Johnson made it clear that he did not agree with Mr. Root and other leading Republicans who favored the idea of a League of Nations. I quote from Mr. Johnson's statement. He said: 'There is studied effort in some directions to make it appear that there is unity of purpose between those who believe as I do concerning the League of Nations and those who wish with or without reservations to enter the League.' Senator Johnson continued: 'Some gentlemen supporting Mr. Harding say that notwithstanding this plain declaration he will take the United States into the League. Between these gentlemen and men of my belief there can be no unity of purpose, no agreement upon the League issue. I stand with Senator Harding. I accept as conclusive his emphatic declaration.'

"An illustration of the contrariety of opinion, which is causing grave doubts in the minds of the people as to your real attitude and has brought your own sincerity into question, is to be found in certain quotations in a prominent New York paper containing statements by Mr. Taft and Senator Johnson. Mr. Taft is quoted as saying: 'I am strongly urging Senator Harding's election. I do this, first, because I think the only hope for a League of Nations at all is through the election of Senator Harding.' Mr. Johnson is quoted as saying: 'Men and newspapers who pretend to be friends of Senator Harding and who assert that he is to take this country into the League of Nations do him a distinct disservice and pay him a sorry compliment.'

"The ordinary voter, reading these absolutely contradictory statements by your leading supporters and advisers from day to day, is perplexed and in grave doubt as to what your real attitude is. And, therefore, my dear Senator, you can understand that your own integrity, your own sincerity is involved in this whole business.

"The grave responsibility is upon you openly and courageously to settle this matter by definitely saying whether you believe in the Taft-Root-Wickersham view, which favors the ratification of the League of Nations with reservations and interpretations, or the Johnson-Borah view, which favors the view expressed by you in your Des Moines speech of utter rejection of the treaty.

"A Republican house divided against itself cannot stand. That has been proven. The people of America are entitled to know, now that the campaign has come to a great climax, your final attitude.

"I most respectively urge upon you the necessity of deciding whether you ought not to state where you stand: For the League or against the League; for the Taft-Root-Wickersham-Lowell association of nations; for the Harding-Borah-Johnson view that there must be no league at all; or for the League to which forty-one nations now belong, with reasonable clarifying reservations.

"My only purpose in this matter is to perform what I consider to be a great public service, in order that the voters of the country may understand definitely the issue they are called upon to decide in this solemn referendum. Governor Cox has unequivocally and upon all occasions frankly stated his attitude.

"If you do not feel that you can answer this question, I wish to say that I intend to be present at your meetings in Ohio, where I may have the privilege of meeting you face to face and of presenting this question to you before the people of your own State. I feel sure that if I do find it necessary to come to Ohio I may rely upon you and your friends for courtesy and full protection from the humiliating experience to which I was subjected when I attempted to question you at Baltimore.

"Requesting your early consideration of this matter, I am,

"Most respectfully yours,

"EDWARD A. RYAN."

HINTS SMITH HELD SUBWAY INTERESTS

QUERIES ON $200,000 LOAN

Wants to Know Whether or Not He Sought Favors for Contractors—Governor to Reply.

An indirect charge that Governor Alfred E. Smith, prior to his election as Governor, was interested in a subway contract and tried to get inspectors of the Public Service Commission transferred, was made yesterday by Travis H. Whitney, former Public Service Commissioner, in a speech before the Speakers' Bureau of the New York County Republican Committee. Mr. Whitney said that Governor Smith vetoed an item of $50,000 asked by the former Public Service Commission to defend suits brought by gas companies of the city, which were asking for higher rates, but did not veto an appropriation of $10,000 asked for by Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon, his own appointee, to buy automobiles.

"Governor Smith, in seeking election two years ago, promised to complete the subways promptly and criticized the Public Service Commission for delays, although the war was at its height," said Mr. Whitney. "It is true that some of the work proceeded slowly and difficulties were encountered in forcing contractors to live up to their contracts.

"One of these was the Richard Carvel Company, constructing the subway on 138th Street. The people of that section will recall the slowness of work and the messed-up and disgraceful condition of the street. Governor Smith might this week explain to them and to the public of New York City:

"Whether Al Smith, T. F. Foley and Frank Farrell were interested in the Richard Carvel Company that had the subway contract on 138th Street?

"Whether A. I. Elkus ever loaned $200,000 to them or to the company?

"Whether Joseph Proskauer ever represented the company or Elkus in connection with the loan?

"Whether Smith and Farrell ever tried to secure favors for the company, either by modification of contract requirements or transfer of Commission inspectors who couldn't or wouldn't 'get along' with representatives of the company?

"It is to be borne in mind that Elkus was Chairman of the 1918 Smith Campaign Committee, Chairman of the Reconstruction Commission and lated appointed to the Court of Appeals, and that Proskauer was a member of the 1918 Smith Committee and is Chairman of the 1920 Smith Committee that poses as an 'independent citizens' committee. In addition, Proskauer is a prominent member of the Executive Committee of the Citizens Union."

At the headquarters of the Citizens' Committee for Governor Smith, of which Mr. Proskauer is chairman, it was said that a reply to Mr. Whitney would be made today.

SMITH'S FRIENDS ORGANIZE.

Friends and former neighbors of Governor Smith, 4,000 or more of them, organized as "The Old Neighbors' Committee for Alfred E. Smith," have arranged to assist in the launching of his city campaign tonight, when he returns from his up-State tour and begins his final week of speeches in the five boroughs. These old friends, most of whom now dwell in other sections of Manhattan, or in the Bronx and Brooklyn, are preparing to mark the Governor's return by a regular "old home night" in front of his house at 25 Oliver Street. With them will be thousands of present neighbors and political campaigners throughout the Fourth Ward. It is expected that at least 10,000 will take part in the celebration.

Oliver Street will be specially illuminated from New Bowery to Henry and Madison Streets, and while the crowds assemble for the reception to the Governor they will be entertained by motion pictures and music, and the speeches will be preceded and followed by parades throughout the district. At the conclusion of the reception, which is to begin at 7:30 and continue for an hour, Governor Smith will start on his other speaking engagements for the night.

At a meeting yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Old Neighbors' Association, at 2 Lafayette Street, which the Governor was unable to attend, members from the different boroughs reported that the Governor was receiving increased support from women voters, and that there was no doubt he would get a larger majority here than in his previous election.

WARNING TO VOTERS.

Citizens' Committee on "Baseless Accusations" Against Smith.

A warning against belief in "baseball accusations" against Governor Alfred E. Smith that he had made partisan appointments and had permitted organization politics to interfere with his administration was issued last night by the Citizens' Committee, which is conducting his campaign, and of which Joseph M. Proskauer is chairman.

"This is not a partisan committee," said Mr. Proskauer. "It is supporting a candidate who is a member of the Democratic organization, but it numbers among its members such leaders of non-partisan political campaigns as William Church Osborn, Henry De Forest Baldwin, Charles C. Burlingham, Robert Adamson, Laurence Arnold Tanzer, Cyrus Sulzberger, Lawson Purdy, Mrs. Miriam Sutro Price and many others. We are supporting the Governor just because he has demonstrated his willingness and ability to administer the State, not for the benefit of a party, but for the benefit of the people as a whole."

ASSAILS "WIGGLING" DRYS.

Pastor Says He Would Prefer Them to Declare Themselves Wet.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Oct. 24.—Touching on the political situation in his sermon at St. Paul's Methodist Church here today, the Rev. Fred W. Stacy, a "dry" Republican, said:

"I would rather have a man come out flatfooted and say 'I am a wet' than to have a man wiggling and twisting until when he speaks you do not know whether he is a wet or a dry. I am never afraid of the devil when he is properly labeled, but when he appears as an angel of light I am afraid of him."

CAMPAIGN ORATORS PLAN ACTIVE WEEK

TWO BIG MASS MEETINGS

Coolidge, Miller and Wadsworth Thursday—Smith, Roosevelt and Walker Wednesday.

Both Democrats and Republicans will concentrate on New York City for this, the final, week of the campaign, and important meetings will be held every night. Governor Alfred E. Smith and Nathan L. Miller, his Republican opponent, will spend practically the entire week speaking in New York City. The Democrats will have here in addition Franklin D. Roosevelt, nominee for Vice President, and Lieutenant Governor Harry C. Walker, candidate for United States Senator. Governor Smith will speak at a mass meeting at Tammany Hall Wednesday night and at Madison Square Garden Saturday evening.

The big Republican meeting will be on Thursday night at Carnegie Hall, when Governor Calvin Coolidge, nominee for Vice President; Mr. Miller and United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., will speak.

Governor Smith will arrive in the city late today and will speak in Staten Island tomorrow during the day and at the Palm Garden in Brooklyn tomorrow evening. The speakers at the Tammany Hall meeting Wednesday night will include in addition to Governor Smith, Mr. Roosevelt, Miss Harriet May Mills, candidate for Secretary of State; Frank H. Mott, candidate for Attorney General, and District Attorney Swann. Sheriff David H. Knott will preside.

Governor Smith will spend Thursday in Queens, speaking at Astoria, Long Island City and Ridgewood. On Friday he will go again to Broklyn, speaking at the Academy of Music.

The meeting at Madison Square Garden on Saturday night will be under the direction of the labor, civic, social and educational organizations which are working for Governor Smith's reëlection. The other speakers will be Miss Mills, Lcut. Gov. Walker, Colonel George B. McClellan, Herman Metz, Dean Robbins, Miss Sara Conboy and ex-Justice John W. Goff.

Lieutenant-Governor Walker will speak here on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Today has been set apart as "Walker Day" by the workers supporting him, and forty motor trucks will be used to carry speakers to all parts of the city. An "Around the Clock With Walker" meeting has been arranged for Times Square and will be continuous from noon to midnight.

Franklin Roosevelt, Democratic nominee for Vice-President, will speak at a dinner to be given him this evening at the Hotel Commodore by the Cox-Roosevelt College Men's League. Walter R. Herrick, Princeton '98, will preside.

Judge Miller will speak this afternoon at 3 o'clock at a meeting of the Women's State Executive Committee at the Vanderbilt, which will be preceded by a luncheon for Mrs. Miller. He will address two meetings in Brooklyn in the evening and will be accompanied by Lieut. Col. Theodore Roosevelt. He will address a women's meeting at the Hotel Plaza tomorrow (Tuesday) morning. He will speak at the Casino Theatre at noon and at the Knickerbocker Hotel at 1:30, and will go to White Plains, New Rochelle, Mount Vernon and Yonkers for evening speeches. He will speak at Nyack at four meetings on Wednesday and is scheduled for eight speeches on Thursday before his speech at the Coolidge meeting at Carnegie Hall.

Judge Miller will speak at one meeting in Richmond and four meetings in Brooklyn on Friday. On Saturday he will speak twice in Manhattan and three times in the Bronx.

ASKS HARDING IF HE WOULD INSURE FARMERS

Christensen Urges Protection for Them Like That Given to Railroads.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24.—As a means of relieving what he described as a "desperate situation" faced by the farmers of the West, Parley P. Christensen, Farmer-Labor Party candidate for President, in a telegram sent today to Senator Harding, asked the Republican candidate if he would approve a measure insuring the farmer against loss. He compared such a measure to the protection afforded the railroads in the Esch-Cummins act. The telegram said:

"My tour through the Western States has made it apparent to me that the farmers of the great Western agricultural districts are facing a desperate situation. Corn is down to about 50 cents. Wheat is dropping. The farmers, seeking relief from conditions that were certain to follow the war with the falling of war-time prices, have been ignored by the present Administration. I am moved by these considerations to put to you as candidate to succeed the head of the Administration the following question:

"You voted against Government operation of railways and in favor of the Esch-Cummins act, guaranteeing the owners of the railroads against loss and insuring them profits of at least 6 per cent. on their nineteen billions of capital without even squeezing the water out.

"Would you approve of a measure similarly guaranteeing the farmer against loss on his crops?

"Would you approve of a measure insuring profits to the farmer upon his actual investment (no watered stock), or do you feel that the farmer is not entitled to the same consideration at your hands as are the railroad owners?"

FOR COX ON LEAGUE ISSUE.

Woman Contributes to Fund Because Root 'Misrepresented' League

Although no "match the President" contributions were received yesterday by Wilbur W. Marsh, Treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, an unusually large number of letters were received at Democratic national headquarters from men and women from all parts of the country, who declared their intention of voting for Cox and Roosevelt and their support of the League of Nations.

Mrs. Effie Brooks Borden of Fall River, Mass., sent $100 to match the contribution of Mrs. Wilson. B. H. Sams of Cliff City, Tenn., sent a contribution with the statement that it was because Elihu Root had misrepresented the League. Ernest M. Halliday of 1,058 East Twenty-first Street, Brooklyn, a Republican, sent a check with the explanation that he was for the League.

HAYS SAYS LOYALTY IS PARTY'S MAIN AIM

In Victory Message to State Chairman He Sounds Slogan "America First."

PLEDGES DOMESTIC REFORM

Says Interests of the Household, "Shamefully Neglected," Will Receive Attention.

Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, sent a message to all Republican State Chairmen yesterday, declaring that victory was certain and asserting that the election of the Republican national ticket would assure "the preservation of our constitutional independence against super-government abroad and the protection of constitutional functions against White House theft of authority at home." Mr. Hays said that the Republican campaign had caused a great revival of loyalty and patriotism and asked that every Republican meeting be opened by the singing of "America." He said:

"We move into the closing days of the campaign with an assurance of victory as certain as the righteousness of our cause. Our campaign has been for a revival of loyalty and patriotism in this country. It has had for a main purpose the re-establishment of an economical, efficient, constitutional business administration of the Government at Washington.

"We fight for 'America first.' This means not only the preservation of our constitutional independence against super-government abroad; this means not only the protection of constitutional functions against White House theft of authority at home.

"'America first' equally means that the score of domestic problems close to every American household and which has been shamelessly neglected, must and shall have the constructive and progressive attention absolutely necessary if 'America first' is to last. And it means that while doing this we will as certainly preserve our great place in the world of today and tomorrow, with the same unselfish conduct that has made America the synonym for justice and righteousness the world over.

"We fight for the faith of the Fathers of the Republic and for the perpetual freedom of the sons and daughters of America. I earnestly urge and I know that the last days of the campaign will be kept on the same high plane. This election far transcends any partisan affair. Please see that no Republican meeting is opened without singing 'America.' There will be a new glory to the Stars and Stripes on the morning of Nov. 3."

14 KILLED IN CAPE RIOT.

30 Also Hurt When South African Natives Clash with Police.

PORT ELIZABETH, Cape Colony, Oct. 24.—Fourteen persons were killed and about thirty wounded in a clash between natives and troops and police Saturday following the arrest of Masalababa, President of the native workers' union.

The fighting began when a crowd tried to rescue Masalababa from the police station. After two or three vain attacks the mob succeeded in entering the station, whereupon the police called for the soldiers, who fired upon and dispersed the mob.

Among the dead were two Europeans, while several Europeans were wounded.

DEMPSEY TO FIGHT CARPENTIER HERE

three have been conducting all of the negotiations is proof that they have got together and that the triumvirate will promote the bout under the same banner—or, rather, with one bankroll. They undoubtedly have realized that to bid individually for the match meant that a fabulous purse would eventually be hung up which would cut so deeply into the profits that the successful bidder would not make as much as if the three were united.

The size of the purse is still a debatable question at this time. This important matter has been discussed at great length, and there are some who assert that the guarantees of the two fighters will total more than $200,000. When questioned on the subject, however, Kearns declared that both boxers were willing to fight on a straight percentage basis. Just what percentage Dempsey demands he did not state.

Kearns dismissed the subject by saying that both Carpentier and Dempsey realize that the "gate" would be a big one and that they were willing to gamble with the promoters. It is probable that the promoters will be willing to give the fighters 80 per cent. of the receipts, less the State tax, and permit the principals to divide this sum in any way they see fit. Since it stands to reason that Dempsey, as the champion, will receive a bigger share than Carpentier, as the challenger, it is reasonable to assume that Dempsey will work on not less than a 45 per cent. basis, which would mean that Carpentier would receive 35 per cent. The split might be even greater in favor of the champion. Maybe it will be 50 and 30.

"I have had several conferences with Rickard, Cochran, Brady and Descamps," said Kearns last night. "Carpentier seems to be very anxious to fight Dempsey, and it is certain that Dempsey is anxious to meet the Frenchman in the ring with the title at stake. Carpentier says he wants to prove to the American people that he is a better fighter than some have been inclined to credit him with being. Since he appears to be reasonable in his terms for such a match, I believe that the arrangements will be completed before he returns to France."

If the match is arranged the chances are that the promoters will insist that neither of the fighters engage in any bouts prior to it. The promoters, no doubt, would be unwilling to risk having an attraction of such magnitude spoiled by a chance blow that might knock out either of the principals. To this there is not the slightest doubt that both boxers will readily agree. It means so much to them in a financial way that the risk which would be incurred in engaging in other bouts of less importance would be too great to take.

The proposed bout between Jack Dempsey and Sanchez, the so-called Spanish heavyweight champion, for which negotiations were pending is definitely off. For a time there was a chance that Dempsey might agree to go to Havana to fight Sanchez some time in January, but Sanchez was recently knocked out in a bout there.

If Dempsey and Carpentier are matched the champion's bout with Bill Brennan, which was originally scheduled to be held in this city in October, but for which the License Committee refused to grant a permit, will be indefinitely postponed. It probably could not be held until after Dempsey meets Carpentier.

at Westminster once said on the occasion of a question under discussion involving an old noble family and another family of recent creation: "High birth was a thing which I never knew any one disparage except those who had it not, and that I never knew any one make a boast of it who had anything else to be proud of."

ASKS NEWSPAPERS TO PRINT COVENANT

FINDS MANY CAN'T GET IT

Willing to Stake the Result of the "Solemn Referendum" on the Test of Reading.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Oct. 24.—Franklin D. Roosevelt issued a statement at his home here tonight appealing to all newspapers of the State to publish without "partisan interpretation" the full covenant of the League of Nations in order to make the "solemn referendum of Nov. 2 a fair proposition."

"After several days in the State of New York," he said, "I have realized that many thousands of voters who wish to read the covenant of the League of Nations for themselves have been unable to secure copies or to find it printed in their newspapers.

"As a citizen of the State of New York, even more than as a candidate for election, I want to make an especial appeal to the newspapers of the State, large and small, and of all political opinions, to print the covenant of the League of Nations early this week, if they have not already done so or arranged to do so. The covenant occupies only about four columns in print, and I hope that the full text will be published without any partisan interpretations. It is, of course, wholly proper to comment editorially on the League or on different sections of the covenant, but I believe that, in view of the fact that this issue is the leading one in this campaign, the voters are entitled to read the complete text.

"Quite aside from my belief that it is a high civic duty for newspapers to print the text of the covenant, I am willing also to put it on the basis of a sporting proposition. Governor Cox and I believe that the people favor the League of Nations where they have had an opportunity to read it and study it. Our opponents believe otherwise. In order to make the solemn referendum of Nov. 2 a fair proposition it is obviously necessary that everybody should have a chance to read it."

Mr. Roosevelt attended church this morning and spent the rest of the day quietly in order to rest up for the final week of the campaign. Although he has been campaigning steadily since Aug. 11 he is in good physical condition, and his voice is still strong and with but a slight trace of hoarseness.

Several addresses have been scheduled for him in New York City tomorrow. He spends Tuesday campaigning in Brooklyn, and then goes to Maryland for a day's campaign. Thursday will be spent in New Jersey, and the rest of the week in Westchester County and possibly in Connecticut.

TRY DRUGS ON THEMSELVES

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—More than 100 remarkable drug tests have been undertaken by a woman scientist, Miss May Smith, and her colleague, William McDougall, at the physiological laboratory at Oxford University. They have taken by way of experiment opium, alcohol, strychnine and tea, and have reported the results to the Medical Research Council.

Miss Smith had never before these tests taken alcohol in any shape or form, and in order to obviate foreknowledge of what drug was being taken, and so possibly obscuring the true effects by suggestion, the drugs were disguised and "control mixtures" employed.

The two scientists suggest as a result of their experiences that alcohol and chloroform fall into one group in their effects on the nervous system, and strychnine, opium and tea into another group.

The Greatest Typewriter Development—

TWENTY years ago, the typewriter was blind. Then came visible writing—a much needed improvement. And now, today, The NOISELESS Typewriter—as great an invention as the typewriter itself.

In a single sentence you can sum-up the basic engineering principle behind this latest gift of science to the American business man and his stenographer—"The NOISELESS prints by pressure and not by blow".

The NOISELESS prevents the effect by removing the cause. The type is steel—the roller is steel—and yet there is no noise. The NOISELESS refuses to make a noise. There is no need, therefore, for mufflers, soft rollers, felt pads or so-called shock absorbers. The noise is not created.

Greater speed, lighter touch, increased durability and better work have resulted from the elimination of hammer-blow wear and tear.

'I Made Good'

—Governor Smith

Did He?

Candidate Smith's Pledge:

"I promise a reorganization of the Public Service Commissions and amendments to the law that will enable these bodies to perform the functions for which they were appointed; to make them representative of the people and not creatures of the corporations they were organized to control." —Smith's Speech at the Brooklyn Academy of Music, November 1, 1918.

Governor Smith's Responsibility:

"He (the Governor) appoints the Public Service Commission, and he is responsible."—Candidate Smith, Brooklyn Academy of Music, October 28, 1918.

Governor Smith's Performance:

"Your appearance as Public Service Commissioner along with the traction interests before the Court of Appeals, in asking the Court to reverse itself in the Quimby case, which would give you the right to raise fares which would tax six million riders in the city of New York from 5 to 10 cents per day, amounting to $300,000 daily and over $100,000,000 yearly, is the boldest action ever taken by a public official who is receiving salary out of the pockets of the people.

"I hope that you will find an opportunity to give some attention to the overcrowding of passengers in the transit lines of the city instead of spending your time worrying so much about increased fares for the transit corporations."—Mayor Hylan, October 3, 1919, to Lewis Nixon, Appointed Public Service Commissioner by Governor Smith.

Hylan's Prophecy Fulfilled:

"It is not possible for all of the traction companies to give adequate service at the present fare if present conditions continue.

"My recommendation in brief is that a flexible fare based upon the cost of service be established."—Lewis Nixon's Recommendation to the Republican Legislature, March 1, 1920.

"Keep a Watchful Eye."—Hylan.

"Nixon's investigation of the 'bus system is nothing more than a fishing expedition to give the traction ring all the information he can get for them.

"Keep a watchful eye on the situation and protect the people's interests from the traction ring and the actions of unfaithful public officials."—Mayor Hylan to Corporation Counsel Burr, December 25, 1919.

During Governor Smith's two years of "responsibility" not one act of his Commissioner has added a car, a seat, or even a strap to New York's traffic facilities.

Smith's re-election means two years more of Nixon; and Nixon, on his own record, means higher fares.

REPUBLICAN STATE COMMITTEE.

WORLD SITUATION ON CEREALS BETTER

Europe Will Raise Nearly Enough for Her Needs, Federal Bureau Says.

BIG INCREASE IN CROP

American Sugar Refining Co. Back in Market at 11 Cents a Pound.

The Federal Bureau of Markets announced yesterday that it had just completed an analysis of the world situation in regard to cereals. The supply, it is stated, seemed to indicate there is enough wheat and rye to meet the probable European demand unless the buying of Central Europe becomes much stronger than is now indicated. Other cereals, it was announced, will meet European demands, even on the pre-war consumption basis.

"In estimating the world's need and supply of breadstuffs, however, all cereals must be considered, since all cereals are to a degree interchangeable both in production and use," the Bureau says. "Wheat and rye are used principally in the making of bread; rice and millets serve the same place in the diet. Bread eaters include most of the people of Europe and the Western Hemisphere and a portion of the people in the other continents. Maize, oats and barley are used in certain sections, especially in Italy and the Balkan States, and to some extent in all countries, but constitute altogether only a small proportion of the world's human food. On the other hand, the maintenance of live stock both for food and work is largely dependent on these cereals.

"The potato must also be considered in estimating the world's need for breadstuffs, as it is extensively used by all white nations as a supplement to the bread diet. In fact, during the war large numbers of people subsisted largely on a vegetable diet, with only a limited supply of bread.

"In attempting to ascertain the probable world supply and demand for breadstuffs, the consumption of only thirteen European countries has been considered. There are some net imports outside of Europe which would increase the total apparent requirements, perhaps 5 per cent. above the total requirements for Europe as here given. The average consumption of 1909-1913 is calculated for each grain. The latest available estimates of production for that period are then subtracted and the remainder represents import requirements on the 1909-1913 basis.

"However, it has been shown that the total European consumption of wheat and rye for 1919 was 43,500,000 tons, or 26 per cent. below pre-war average. This year Europe (thirteen countries), has a yield of 45,600,000 tons, compared with 33,100,000 tons for the same countries last year. Europe will, of course, use her own increased production this year and as much imported grain as she can afford to buy. It can hardly be expected that imports this year will be larger than for 1919, and hence the figure 13,100,000 tons is given as the tentative importation, based on 1919 imports.

"Data for 1919 imports of other cereals are not available, but in general will fall considerably below 1909-1913 average imports. The closed countries are considered practically out of trade for the coming year."

The American Sugar Refining Company is back in the market again with quotations for fine granulated sugar at the same level of 11 cents, less 2 per cent., as the other refineries. For several weeks this concern withdrew from the market. The current issue of The American Sugar Bulletin, issued yesterday, says relative to refined sugar:

"Previous to its entry into the market on Wednesday the American Sugar Refining Company permitted the withdrawal of sugar under contracts made at 22½c in accordance with the offer of the company to the trade dated Oct. 13, 1920. These sugars took the published price on that day of 11c less 2 per cent., or 10.78c net cash. Balance of invoice at 22½c is to be paid in quarterly installments as outlined in the offer."

The Bulletin thus comments on the raw sugar situation:

"The raw sugar market was again irregular during the week with sales at 7½c cost, insurance and freight for full duty sugars, 7.75c to 8c cost and freight for Cubas and 8.76c delivered for Porto Ricos. The range for sugar delivered at New York, all charges paid, was from 8.76c to 9.02c.

"A slightly increased amount of Cuban sugar appeared among the sales but on the whole the business of the week was inconsiderable.

REPORTS BIG GRAIN CROPS.

International Institute Estimates Rye and Wheat at 62,400,000 Metric Tons.

ROME, Oct. 23.—A bulletin issued by the International Institute of Agriculture today announces that the aggregate wheat and rye crops of the Northern Hemisphere total 62,400,000 metric tons, as against 61,700,000 metric tons in 1919.

The production of barley, according to the bulletin, was 8 per cent. larger than last year, while oats increased 21 per cent. The maize crop of Southern Europe was good and that in America 10 per cent. more than last year. The probable yield of beet sugar is considered favorable by the institute.

The export of 400,000 tons of wheat from British India is advocated by the institute.

APPLES ROTTING ON GROUND

Motorists Told of Opportunities Awaiting in Nearby Orchards.

"Fill up your automobile with apples direct from the orchard" is the advice of the State Department of Farms and Markets. Motorists who wish to see beautiful scenery and stock up with apples for Halloween at the same time are urged to drive up into the Hudson River Valley apple sections and help save some of the finest apples in the country from rotting on the ground.

Dutchess County is perhaps the most accessible of the big Hudson River apple counties. One of the many trips into this section is to go up along the Hudson through Fishkill to Poughkeepsie and thence either north or across east to Brewster and back to New York through Lake Mahopac, Bedford Hills and Mount Kisco. Farmers in the neighborhood of Fishkill have quantities of fine Baldwins, pies, Hubbardstons and pippins.

The apple crop in New York this year is so enormous that tons of fine apples cannot be profitably marketed with the present high cost of containers, labor and freight. The motorist is warned, however, not to let himself be bitten by the enterprising peddlers who set up stands along some of the main highways near the city and who sell at retail store prices goods which they have bought from the wholesale markets or from farmers. There is such a plentiful supply of apples of fine size and quality that any one should be able to purchase the best at very reasonable price.

compensation which went to trucking in New York City was the largest in any city in the United States. E. L. Cranford of the Citizens' Transportation Committee, which ran a successful open shop fight against the union truckmen several months ago, spoke for co-operation between the truck owners and the commercial organizations. Isaac Goldburg of the New York Team Owners' Association, asserted that wages paid to truck drivers had passed their peak. Mr. Goldburg said many union officials had told him frankly they were not in favor of the demands of the unions, but that the radical element had gained control.

Believes Men Will Accept.

The meeting yesterday, according to Mr. Riordan, represented not only the public trucking interests, but many of the big concerns who had signed the agreement under which the truckmen are now working. The National Dry Goods Association, he said, was among the interests represented.

Mr. Riordan expressed confidence that the men would accede to the employers' demands. "I believe the teamsters will be brought to realize existing conditions and that they will want to hold their jobs, and that thus a general strike will be prevented," he said. "The truckmen will be asked to do ten hours' work instead of nine, or else work for less wages. The teamsters want to be paid for overtime by the hour, and we propose that they be paid by the minute. I believe the teamsters can be made to see that wages must not only no longer be advanced, but that their compensation must be less if prices are to be brought down to a reasonable level."

The demands of the unions for night work, according to Mr. Riordan, were $1 more a day than the general demands. Two-horse delivery wagons ask $37 a week, one-horse delivery men $35, six-wheel tractor drivers $45, five-ton auto drivers $42, two-ton auto drivers $39, and one-ton auto drivers $36.

$7 a Week Increase Asked.

The increased demands were made in resolutions presented to the truck owners last week. The union men asked for the appointment of a committee by the truck owners to confer with their representatives.

The truck owners' resolution calling the meeting for yesterday said in part:

"The union representatives of the truck drivers and chauffeurs have proposed and now demand that a contract be entered into with them, effective Nov. 1, 1920, providing that wages be increased $7 a week, and that hours of labor be reduced one hour per day, which would result in an increased labor cost of approximately 40 per cent.

"The wages now paid to drivers and chauffeurs are already in excess of those paid in competing cities, and any increase at this time in the present high cost of trucking would work a serious handicap to the trucking industry and to merchants in competition for business with other cities."

The committee appointed yesterday will meet at the City Club tomorrow to frame the employer's demands upon the unions.

BOAT SALE ANGERS NEWARK

Offer of $10,000 for Vessel Sold for $2,500, Too Late Says Army.

While Newark city officials are threatening to complain to the War Department that officers at the army piers at Hoboken sold a steam launch for $2,500 after the city had made an unofficial bid of $10,000, the officers are preparing to show that the Newark official bid was not received until after the boat had been sold. Newark finally bought the boat for $18,500 from Ernest Rudolph of Brooklyn, who had purchased it for towing use in the Hudson River.

Captain R. B. Harrison said that Newark filed no formal written bid until after Rudolph's bid had been forwarded to Washington, and that the Newark officials had given him to understand that they were willing to spend $10,000 for reconversion of a vessel for use as a fireboat on the Passaic River. Colonel John J. Bradley, commander of the Port of Debarkation at Hoboken, said that the value of the boat had been appraised by army engineers at $8,000 and that the army was satisfied with the price of $2,500 obtained for it. William J. Brennan, Director of Public Safety in Newark, declares that the boat was worth $50,000.

BOY OF 6 DROWNED IN PIER 'GANG' FIGHT

HIS COMPANIONS RUN AWAY

Police Learn, Long Afterward, of Little Victim Left to Die—Search in Vain for Body.

In a boy fight for domination of a small playground on a pier at 102d Street and the East River, Harry Libor, 6 years old, of 416 East 101st Street, was hurled into the river yesterday by one of his stronger adversaries in an opposing "gang." The small boys in both "gangs" ran away while their companion drowned.

An hour after the fight had ended with the drowning of the small boy, a 10-year-old boy told a patrolman near the East River piers that he had heard some children telling about a boy who had been pushed into the river. The policeman went to the end of the pier, but he was unable to find any one there who had seen the fight or knew that a boy had been drowned. Later he obtained partial confirmation of the story from the watchman of a coal barge, who said he had seen some commotion and heard a splash, but did not know then that any one had drowned.

Detectives found some of the boy's small companions who were so badly frightened when they learned that their interrogators were policemen that they were unable to tell a connected story of the fight and drowning. Charles Schneider, 6 years old, of 335 East 101st Street, said that Libor and several other boys were playing on a spot on the pier that was conceded by other children in the neighborhood to be exclusively theirs, when a "gang" of larger boys "from uptown" came along and challenged the squatters' rights of the smaller boys.

As the larger boys crossed the boundaries of this juvenile state, Liber and his companions charged. Schneider and Samuel Kohn of 331 East 101st Street routed some of the intruders while six-year-old Harry Libor was having a hard fight with a boy who appeared to be the leader of the invaders. Libor's companions said they had never seen this boy, but that they thought he was about 10 years old and "from uptown."

Before his companions could reach him, Libor, staggering backward after the larger boy struck him, tripped over a stringer at the pier's edge and dropped into the river. Frightened, all the other boys ran away, leaving their companion to drown. They did not even go to his home to tell his parents of the accident, but told the story among their small companions, and one of the boys told the policeman about it.

Police boats were sent out last night by Harbor A Squad to drag the river near the pier. They did not find the body, but the police believed the story of the boys, because Libor had not returned to his home last night.

ATTEMPTS SUICIDE AT 88.

Special to The New York Times.

WINSTED, Conn., Oct. 24.—Leon Lewis, 88 years old, author and former newspaper editor, who was at one time on the staff of The New York Herald, attempted suicide at his home in Bakersville, eight miles from here, early this morning by gashing both sides of his throat and left leg with a rusty razor. Then he called to his son Leon, Jr., who lives near him, for aid.

Mr. Lewis was brought to the County Hospital here after receiving medical attention at his home. He lives with a sister, Mrs. S. Risley, 94 years old, and a cripple. Despondency is believed to have caused his act. He had threatened to kill himself last Summer. Friends say that early this month he disappeared and when found by a searching party next day was wandering aimlessly through the woods. His condition is regarded as critical.

NO CHANGE IN APPELBAUMS.

Chances of Recovery Will Not Be Known for Several Days.

The condition of Misha Appelbaum, leader of the Humanitarian Cult, and his wife, Helen Yorke Appelbaum, who were removed to Knickerbocker Hospital Friday night suffering from bichloride of mercury poisoning, is reported unchanged.

Physicians at the hospital say there can be no certainty of their recovering until several days have passed, owing to the peculiar action of bichloride poisoning.

WHEN Goethals, Wells manages construction, the relationship is professional. Our compensation is a fee, fixed in advance by contract. Our interest is identical with yours.

Lump sum contracts and the cost-plus basis have obvious disadvantages. We prefer to act strictly as technical agents for the owners.

After creating the engineering and architectural designs and plans, we either (a) employ the contractors for each class of work, or (b) organize a construction force, paid by the owners and directed by us, or (c) combine these methods.

It is manifestly to our advantage as well as yours to complete the job rapidly, at the least cost, and without deviation from plans and specifications. While relieving you of all detail, we work in the closest confidence with you.

Our fee will usually be lower than the aggregate of fees otherwise paid for technical services from several unrelated agencies.

GIVES CALIFORNIA ADVICE ON JAPANESE

PROBLEM IS INTERNATIONAL

Advice to Americans and to Japanese regarding the problem of the Japanese in California was issued yesterday by the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America through its Commission on Relations with the Orient.

"While the local stress of the Japanese problem in California is not easily appreciated by States not similarly affected," says the commission, "we should all remember that the question has international aspects of the gravest import in which the whole nation has a right to be heard. California's legitimate ends can best be secured through Washington. We therefore urge California to work out its local problem in close co-operation with the Department of State. Any other method is bound, sooner or later, to involve our country in international complications."

Speaking to the Japanese, the commission said:

"Japanese also need to keep certain facts clearly in mind. Because of their presence in large numbers in California, Californians are confronted with real difficulties that call for real solution. Japanese have settled in rather restricted, fertile, agricultural areas, tending to form 'colonies' relatively impervious to Americanization, and where the white population constitutes a minority. For this 'colonization' the Californians are indeed in part responsible, since the strongest opposition of a different social group has tended to prevent their wider distribution. It nevertheless constitutes a serious factor in the situation.

"Some Japanese, moreover, have evaded the spirit and purpose of our laws, especially in the matter of immigrant smuggling. And there is also the delicate patriotic question of the double allegiance of American-born Japanese children. These facts are widely felt to create an ominous situation requiring thoroughgoing legislative remedies. Japanese should be reminded, moreover, that a very considerable group in California earnestly desires to have these problems solved in ways that are at once honorable for Japan and safe for California."

TRIED TO BUY HYLAN IN COURT HOUSE JOB

cent. of the gross amount of contracts was paid by the men into an "insurance fund" managed by one of his, Hettrick, employes. Hettrick received 1 per cent. of the fund.

As the amount for "insurance" was always added to the original bid before submission this "insurance" fund in the cases of the public schools and other public buildings was paid directly by the city and the city can take steps to recover it.

This is the way the scheme was worked. When a plumber, for instance, heard of a job that was to be had, he immediately notified Hettrick of the fact, together with the name of the architect and contractor. This information was sent on a green card and did not bear the name of the plumber, but only the number under which he was known in the Code of Practice under which he worked. Subsequently he estimated on the job and then sent the amount of his proposed bid to Hettrick. In making out his estimate he would figure on a profit and then would add 4 per cent. for "insurance." If the job was worth $50,000, he would send a bid for $52,000. The $2,000 went to the insurance "fund." Hettrick received $500.

What Became of 3 Per Cent. Rake Off?

What happened to the remaining 3 per cent. paid into the insurance fund the committee has as yet been unable to learn definitely, but investigators are at work looking into certain mysterious expense accounts. The expense accounts are supposed to have been paid to persons in power whose influence could determine the amount of profit to be made on a contract.

The committee has definite leads as to the disposal of the so-called fund for "insurance," and several prominent men are said to have been involved in the extortion scheme.

Hettrick has not yet explained where the 3 per cent. went. He admitted receiving one-quarter of the amount paid into the fund by the plumbing contractors and cut stone men and declared the heating and ventilating men paid him 1 per cent. of their gross business direct for "legal" services. Mr. Untermyer is attempting to show that the heating men also paid into an "insurance" fund, which Hettrick has denied.

That the amount of money received by Hettrick was considerable was apparent when he admitted that the gross business of the plumbing contractors came to $4,000,000 a year. This would mean $160,000 for "insurance" and $40,000 for Hettrick. But Mr. Untermyer said the sum was more nearly $13,000,000, which would give the mysterious recipients of the "insurance" fund $390,000 and Hettrick $130,000.

Hettrick offered to produce his books in order to prove that the amount of business of the plumbers was not more than $4,000,000, but he failed to do so, and subsequently his office was raided and the books seized.

Mr. Untermyer and Attorney Charles D. Newton expect to see Governor Smith today and convince him of the necessity for immediate action in the case.

At Albany last night Governor Smith said he had not seen the letter from Senator Lockwood. He declined to say anything for publication. He will be in this city today, and will remain here until after election, according to information from Albany.

The committee is urging the Governor to have the Extraordinary Grand Jury take up the evidence already uncovered by the committee and to appoint Attorney General Newton to undertake prosecutions.

It would take about six weeks to convene another Extraordinary Term of the Supreme Court, and much valuable time, it was said, would be lost if the Governor decided to have a body other than the one which indicted Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammanay Hall, take up the probe.

Mr. Untermyer will insist that to assign the case to District Attorney Edward Swann will not be acceptable to the Lockwood Committee. He will point out that Mr. Swann as candidate for Supreme Court Justice has been indorsed by Brindell's Building Trades Council and this would tend to make it embarrassing for him to prosecute those already involved in the inquiry. In addition, Mr. Swann has signified his acquiescence in the move to have the matter handled by a body other than a regular Grand Jury.

J. J. O'Connor, lawyer for Brindell, is candidate for Assembly in the Twelfth District, the residence of Leader Murphy. William P. Kenneally, Vice President of the Board of Aldermen, who is a member of the Executive Committee of Brindell's Building Trades Council, is also a resident of Murphy's district.

A dozen accountants are at work on an examination of the records seized by the committee in the office of lawyer Hettrick and Mrs. Mary Annin, clerk for the Stone Contractors' Association. A great mass of information volunteered to the committee is being sifted in preparation for Thursday's session.

Mr. Untermyer, Deputy Attorney General Samuel Berger and Leonard Wallstein, associated with him in the investigation, will have a conference today at Mr. Untermyer's country home, Greystone, and prepare the course of action to be followed at the meeting on Thursday.

Among the witnesses expected to testify are Hettrick, George Backer, wealthy builder, and contractors in the building trades.

Seek 200 Recruits for Germany.

Two hundred men are needed for the Army of Occupation in Germany, for which recruiting will start on Nov. 1, according to a statement from the War Department yesterday. Three hundred other vacancies for service on the Rhine were filled early this month within a week.

MAURETANIA TO LIE UP.

Cunarder Will Not Return to Service Until February After This Trip.

The Cunarder Mauretania, which arrived on Saturday from Southampton via Cherbourg, got rid of all her passengers yesterday with the exception of eighty in the second cabin and steerage who have been detained by the immigration authorities for various reasons. When the liner arrives in Southampton on her present eastbound voyage she will be laid up for general overhaul until the end of February, but will not be transformed into an oil burner.

It is understood that the Cunard Line will turn over the former German liners Imperator and Kaiserin Auguste Victoria to the British Ministry of Shipping at the end of the year and will make an offer to purchase the latter vessel for its New York-Liverpool service. The new liner Scythia is expected to be ready early in February.

Beth Moses Hospital Dedicated.

Beth Moses Hospital, a five-story structure, equipped with 165 beds, which was recently completed, at Stuyvesant Avenue and Hart Street, Brooklyn, at a cost of $400,000, was formally dedicated yesterday afternoon, following a parade, in which several thousand friends of the institution participated. The dedication addresses were delivered from the portico of the building, in front of which the parade was brought to an end.

"This instrument (The Duo-Art) is without question greatly superior to any other of its kind and I shall be glad indeed to have my playing reproduced with such manifest fidelity."

I. J. Paderewski

"In the reproduction of my own playing the Duo-Art is so far superior to any other instrument of its kind there can be no real basis for comparison"

Josef Hofmann

The Three-Fold Wonder of

The DUO-ART PIANO

PIANO, player-piano and reproducing piano all in one instrument, the Duo-Art endows everyone with the power to play and the privilege of hearing the world's best playing.

Those who have skill can play it by hand from its keyboard.

Those who lack skill can perform just as well by music-roll. Their desire to put their own musical originality into form, to express their emotions in melody, is satisfied to the last degree.

While by means of its marvelous reproducing action, the Duo-Art brings the world's finest music directly into the home.

No longer is the presence of a trained musician necessary to insure the success of social events. With the Duo-Art, there is always music for dancing, for singing, for all forms of merry-making. And when more serious music is appropriate, Paderewski, Hofmann, Bauer, Busoni—all the world's greatest virtuosi, are present in spirit and effect to inspire, educate and charm with the wonderful skill that has made them sovereigns of the piano realm.

The Duo-Art is the piano of today; the piano glorified, the piano developed to its ultimate phase of usefulness and charm.

BANKERS TO BACK FOREIGN TRADE PLAN

SAYS IT IS NATIONAL NEED

Asserts Agricultural and Business Interests Are Supporting $100,000,000 Scheme.

John S. Drum of San Francisco, the newly elected President of the American Bankers' Association, when asked in New York yesterday as to the plan for the formation of a nation-wide foreign trade financing corporation, approved by the Association at its Washington convention last week, said:

"It is a national need that such a corporation will fill, a need extending to the smallest producing community. This was thoroughly appreciated at the Washington convention.

"The bankers of the country have, I am convinced, a full realization of their duty in this matter, and are not only willing but eagerly desirous to do their full part in bringing the corporation into existence. I can say this the more emphatically because of the opportunity to gauge sentiment at the Washington convention.

"What is required is effective leadership, and, without question, this can be provided in a way to appeal to the bankers, the business men and the producers of this country. The nation-wide foreign trade financing plan, as formulated by the commerce and marine committee of the association, has received no more enthusiastic support from any source than from the agricultural commission of the association. In addition, I can say that there have been received numerous expressions of effective support from important business interests.

"With the coming into existence of the corporation the way will be open for the ever-increasing employment in profitable foreign trade of America's excess prduction not required for our domestic uses. To provide effective means of financing this excess output is a national necessity, and suitable co-operation in obtaining this object is a public duty."

Mr. Drum added that, as authorized by the American Bankers' Association at its Washington convention, he was giving most careful attention to the power vested in him to request an adequate number of representative bankers and business men to meet, and, after due consideration, to take steps as may seem advisable and practicable to form a committee to bring into existence, in accordance with the plan approved by the association, a foreign trade financing organization on national welfare lines, with a capital of $100,000,000 and a responsible and thoroughly efficient personnel.

Mr. Drum announced that the Executive Council of the association had named as the association's new Commerce and Marine Commission the members of the Commerce and Marine Committee, which, under the chairmanship of John McHugh of New York, formulated the foreign trade financing plan approved by the association.

FREIGHT LOADS SET RECORD

A new record for this year for the number of cars loaded with commercial freight on railroads of the United States was set during the week ended Oct. 9, according to reports made public yesterday by the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association. The total was 1,009,787 cars as compared with 982,171 for the corresponding week of 1919, and 969,722 during the corresponding week of 1918.

This was the first week this year in which freight car loading passed the million mark, and represents an increase of nearly 34,000 over the week of Oct. 2. Increases as compared with 1919 are shown in the Allegheny, Eastern, Northwestern, Central, Western and Southwestern districts, while there were decreases in the Southern and Pocohontas districts.
coal, coke, ore and forest products, while decreases occurred in grain and grain products, livestock, merchandise and miscellaneous freight.

HARRIMAN NATIONAL BANK
NEW YORK

Congratulations!

The Harriman National Bank is elated to report that its suggestion of a refunding Allied bond of long maturity to replace the present demand obligation of the Allies due the United States has been accepted by the Hon. Warren G. Harding, Republican candidate for President of the United States.

Senator Harding's speech at Kansas City on October 8th, according to press reports, referred to the subject in the following emphatic and significant words:

"Europe owes us $10,000,000,000, and in return we have their I. O. U.'s for security—to be paid at some indefinite time."

"I know what I would try to do if I had the authority. I'd try to get some definite word on how and when it could be paid. I'd ask Europe in neighborly consideration if they didn't think we ought to figure out how and when they would pay."

"I'd say: 'Let's scale your interest if necessary, but let's agree on a way to pay in negotiable coin.' If we could make this readjustment we could wipe out the excess profits tax."

"There should be a readjustment by a promise to pay in negotiable bonds of Europe. Offer these to Americans and get $10,000,000,000 that would go a long way in eliminating unnecessary war taxes with which we are now burdened."

The Harriman National Bank can add nothing to this utterance, except congratulations to the taxpayer and the Liberty Bond holder, and thanks to friends who assisted so materially in the campaign. It sets a capstone upon our long and arduous labors for the plan extending over a year.

FIRST!!! on Election Returns—Thanks to the MONROE

45 minutes before the Journal's nearest competitor was on the streets, the people of Minneapolis were reading the returns in the Journal. How did the Journal do it? Let Mr. George H. Adams, Managing Editor of the Journal, tell you himself. He writes:

> "The speed and accuracy with which the returns were handled on the Monroe Calculating Machine enabled us to get the Journal extras on the street well ahead of the other dailies. We split the lower dial, using each half for the name of a candidate. As the returns came in they were given to the operators and registered. Each operator handled two machines. The totals were always in plain sight of the reporters, who lost no time in transcribing them."

Your figure-work may not race against time to quite the same extent, but you do demand—every business day—accurate, speedy figuring—of invoices, estimates, inventories, payrolls, chain discounts, and even the most complicated engineering formulae. All figuring on the Monroe is as easy as turning a crank—turn the crank forward to multiply or add; backward to divide or subtract.

LEWIS ASKS WILSON TO HELP MINERS

Urges Legal Proceedings to Enforce Collective Bargaining in Alabama Fields.

PLEADS A STATE OF WAR

Union Leader Declares Operators Have Refused to Obey Provisions of President's Proclamation.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 24.—John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers of America, sent a telegram to President Wilson today urging him to direct the Department of Justice to begin legal proceedings to enforce the principle of collective bargaining between coal miners and coal operators in Alabama, where a strike has been in progress for six months.

Lewis asserts in his message that it has been judicially determined that the was is still on and that therefore wartime laws and regulations are still in effect. The principle of collective bargaining was established and enunciated by all of the various agencies of the Government during hostilities, he says. The President guaranteed the right of collective bargaining to all employes in industry by his proclamation of April 8, 1918, but the Alabama coal operators are refusing to recognize the principle by dealing collectively with the miners.

In his telegram the miners' President says:

"Eleven thousand coal miners are on strike in Alabama for the right to deal with their employers through representatives of their own choosing—the right of collective bargaining, which was guaranteed them and all other workers by the Government for the period of the war in your proclamation of April 8, 1918, which was recommended by the Bituminous Coal Commission in its award, which has the sanction of an enlightened world opinion as evidenced by the labor provisions of the Peace Treaty, which was affirmed by your second industrial conference and which is pledged in the Democratic national platform adopted at San Francisco. These Alabama miners are being systematically blacklisted, a form of discrimination against which they were also guaranteed protection by their Government under its war powers.

"These 11,000 mine workers have dependent upon them some 9,000 women and 22,000 children. This great number of people are being kept from starvation only by the pitifully meagre fare contributed by the Mine Workers' Union. Poverty in its most terrible form stalks through the mining camps of Alabama, accompanied by the twin spectres of malnutrition and disease. Every conceivable instrument of oppression is being used against these people by the powerful interests associated in the coal industry of Alabama. Thousands of eviction suits have occurred, and in a multiplicity of instances writs of attachments have been issued and the household furniture and personal possessions of the miners' families have been carted away from their humble domiciles. The mining villages are being policed by private policemen in the employ of the coal operators, and indignities and outrages have been inflicted upon the mine workers and their families. The officers of the Commonwealth of Alabama are seemingly co-operating with the coal operators. In token thereof the Governor is maintaining eleven companies of State militia on duty in the coal fields. This soldiery has invaded the constitutional rights of the citizens of the mining towns by suspending the right of public meetings and free assemblage and the enforcement of this decree by armed force.

"Since the beginning of this strike every honorable attempt has been made by the representatives of the mine workers in Alabama to secure a settlement.

"More recently the mine workers' representatives in Alabama in a further attempt to secure just consideration proposed that the President of the United States appoint a commission of his own choosing to decide all questions in controversy, the mine workers agreeing that the judgment of such a commission would be punctiliously observed. This offer also was rejected.

"As the authorized representative of the half million mine workers who are members of the United Mine Workers of America and who ardently sympathize with the great struggle now being waged by the Alabama Mine Workers I most earnestly urge that you immediately direct the Department of Justice of the United States Government to institute such legal proceedings as may be necessary to compel observance of the principle of collective bargaining and the protection of the civil rights of the Mine Workers of Alabama."

MINERS' CHIEFS MEET THE PREMIER

with the Government a ballot of members of the Miners Federation will be necessary, and this could hardly be completed within three or four days.

Meanwhile, the first real intimation of what the coal strike means has been brought home to the public by a drastic revision of the train services. A large number of trains have been canceled from tomorrow and a great deal of inconvenience will be caused. Outside of that and the closing of factories, which at present hits only those unfortunate enough to be discharged, the coal strike has been so far very little felt, and a Socialist meeting concerning it this afternoon in Trafalgar Square attracted only a small crowd of chance passers by.

LONDON, Oct. 24 (Associated Press).—One indication of a hopeful turn in the tide of coal strike affairs was afforded tonight by a report from a well informed source that the Government contemplated postponing the introduction in Parliament of its emergency bill, which would virtually place the country on a war basis.

It had been intended to attempt to pass this measure through all its stages tomorrow. The matter will be finally decided by the Cabinet at a discussion tomorrow morning.

It was thought that the powers of the bill conferred on the Government would be strongly resented by the Liberal Labor members of Parliament as being suitable only to times of war and that a postponement of the project would greatly assist in the negotiations between the Government and the miners.

HAGUE, Oct. 24.—At the recent meeting of the Committee of the International Transport Federation, at which, the British railroad organizations were admitted with 5,000,000 members, the question was discussed as to what extent its members could give the British miners International support.

The secretary has been instructed to take necessary measures for the eventuality of Intrnational support in agreement with the English, French, German and Dutch representatives.

TELLS HOW LEAGUE WILL HELP LABOR

QUOTES ITS 9 LABOR PLANKS

Federation's Non-Partisan Committee Says League Is a Great Agency of Progress.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24. — Organized labor's reasons for supporting the League of Nations are given by Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, in a telegram to William Michaels of Carpenters' Union No. 943, Tulsa, Okla., made public tonight by the American Federation of Labor. In this telegram Mr. Gompers refers to the nine points in labor's bill of rights, approved by the American Federation of Labor in annual convention in 1919, asserts that these points are well fitted to guide the policy of the League, and says that he considers the League covenant a document for humanity.

President Gompers's telegram reads:

"Telegram received. The American Federation of Labor convention in 1919, by an almost unanimous vote, indorsed the peace treaty with the labor provisions and the covenant of the League of Nations. The nine specific points in the labor section constitute what is known as labor's bill of rights. The preamble and nine points are:

"The members of the League of Nations, recognizing that the well-being, physical, moral and intellectual, of industrial wage earners is of supreme international importance, have framed a permanent machinery associated with that of the League of Nations to further this great end. They recognize that differences of climate, habits and customs, of economic opportunity and industrial tradition make strict uniformity in the conditions of labor difficult of immediate attainment. But holding, as they do, that labor should not be regarded merely as an article of commence, they think that there are methods and principles for regulating labor conditions which all industrial communities should endeavor to apply, so far as their special circumstances will permit.

League's Nine Labor Planks.

"Among these methods and principles the following seem to the members of the League of Nations to be of special and urgent importance:

"'First, the guiding principle above enunciated that labor should not be regarded merely as a commodity or article of commerce.

"'Second, the right of association for all lawful purposes by the employed as well as by the employers.

"'Third, the payment to the employed of a wage adequate to maintain a reasonable standard of life as this is understood in their time and country.

"'Fourth, the adoption of an eight-hour day or a forty-eight hour week as the standard to be aimed at where it has not already been obtained.

"'Fifth, the adoption of a weekly rest of at least twenty-four hours, which should include Sunday whenever practicable.

"'Sixth, the abolition of child labor and the imposition of such limitations on the labor of young persons as shall permit the continuation of their education and assure their proper physical development.

"'Seventh, the principle that men and women should receive equal remuneration for work of equal value.

"'Eighth, the standard set by law in each country with respect to the conditions of labor should have due regard to the equitable economic treatment of all workers lawfully resident therein

"'Ninth, each State should make provision for a system of inspection in which women should take part in order to insure the enforcement of the laws and regulations for the protection of the employed.'

"It is a document for humanity. The nine points are well fitted to guide the policy of the League of Nations and if adopted will confer lasting benefits upon the wage earners of the world. Standards of advanced countries are given this absolute protection against any possible concerted action to lower them on the part of less advanced nations:

"'In no case shall any of the members of the League of Nations be asked or required, as a result of the adoption of any recommendation or draft convention by the conference, to diminish the protection afforded by its existing legislation, to the workers concerned.'

"SAMUEL GOMPERS."

In addition to the statement included in the telegram, labor holds, according to its official pronouncements, that the establishment of the League of Nations means a reduction of military and naval strength and a consequent reduction of effort and expenditure for those things.

"It means a reduction of the manufacture of munitions," the Federation announced tonight, "and it means a great international effort to forward those measures that make for the improvement of the standards and the health of the people in all signatory nations."

It is pointed out by President Gompers that there are now forty-one nations that adhere to the League of Nations, the only nations of any consequence withholding their support being Russia, the United States and Mexico. Mexico, Mr. Gompers added, had reversed the attitude held by the Carranza régime and expressed an ardent desire for membership as soon as possible.

Campaign Committee's Statement.

The National Non-Partisan Political Campaign Committee of the American Federation of Labor further expressed the point of view of the workers on the League of Nations in a statement issued tonight as follows:

"The League of Nations has been attacked from two directions. It has been opposed by the extreme reactionaries and by the extreme radicals. Somewhere there is insincerity and perhaps it is at both extremes.

"The League of Nations offers the only hope of the present for the peaceful settlement of international difficulties, and it offers the best hope for the expression and fulfillment of liberal ideals throughout the world.

"It is but natural that reaction should oppose the covenant, for the covenant provides the best check on reaction and the best avenue for the expression of the ideals that take mankind forward and upward to better things.

"Extreme radicals oppose the covenant on the ground that the League means a stiffening everywhere against change. That is a vicious untruth. The League does provide the best possible check against turbulent and unhealthy upheaval of destructive character, but it facilitates and encourages evolutionary development and progress.

"Every man, woman and child in the world may with justice look to the League of Nations as a great agency of liberation and progress, the gateway to a better, higher and more just civilization."

Don't Waste It!

COAL will be higher than ever this winter. You'll have to use less of it if you want to keep the coal bill down to anywhere near normal.

Coal can be saved, and without sacrificing comfort either. Make every lump of coal give full value. Equip your heating plant with

The "MINNEAPOLIS" HEAT REGULATOR
"THE HEART OF THE HEATING PLANT"

It prevents the costly, wasteful "ups and downs" of your furnace and maintains an even heat thruout the house by automatically operating the dampers. Your fire cannot go on a rampage, neither can it get so low as to require forced firing to bring it up again. No fuel is wasted. Not a pound of coal is burned unnecessarily.

Those who have used a Minneapolis Heat Regulator for years tell us that they save on the average three shovelfuls of coal a day thruout the winter.

The "Minneapolis" has been used successfully for 35 years on every type of heating plant burning coal, gas or oil —lasts a lifetime.

GOVERNOR COX IN NEW YORK.

Even newspapers politically hostile to Governor Cox are fair enough to speak of his day in this city as one of a marked personal success for him. Under a great pressure of engagements as he was throughout all of Saturday, he bore himself like a man unhurried and well-poised. Everywhere he revealed himself frank, alert, vigorous. His main speech, in the evening before a great audience in Madison Square Garden, was spontaneous, direct and convincing. He was not in the least thrown off his balance by questions. To all he made ready and sufficient answers. And in his chief appeal, that the country rise to its great opportunity in a stricken world, he was moving with the eloquence of truth if not of rhetoric.

It was an arduous campaign that Governor Cox marked out for himself. He has come to the last week of it in full physical strength and with his fighting quality continuously heightened. His last speeches have shown that he has a good eye for the joints in the Republican harness. More and more has he driven at the one issue that disturbs and divides the Republicans. His straightforward course in regard to the League of Nations, as contrasted with HARDING's painful fear of his own horses, has won over thousands of Republicans and ought to convert thousands more. Whatever the result of the election, it cannot be denied that Governor Cox has put into the campaign the best that is in him; and his best is very good.

TELLING THE TRUTH.

HIRAM JOHNSON's views about the League of Nations are utterly wrong, but they are honest. He holds them sincerely. He insists on Mr. HARDING's sincerity, his plain rejection of the League. "Men and newspapers," he says, with a bluntness painful to the illustrious Republicans, friends of the League that are going to vote for its open enemy, "who pretend to be "friends of Senator HARDING and who "assert that he is to take this country "into the League of Nations, do him "a very distinct disservice and pay "him a sorry compliment."

Inevitably. They assume that he is morally dishonest. They assume that he doesn't mean what he has said again and again. They expect him to break his word. He rejects the League. That means, they try to persuade themselves and the country, that he will accept it. He calls the League the "supreme blunder." Therefore, according to these strange casuists, he will consent to the main purposes and provisions of the League. He describes it as "a military alliance "which menaces peace and threatens "all freedom." Argal, he believes in it and loves it. In short, the way to bring the United States into the League is to make President the man who has uttered repeatedly his scorn and repudiation of it.

Chapter by chapter and verse by verse, Senator JOHNSON quotes Mr. HARDING's clear, unequivocal, unmistakable declarations in refusal and rejection of the League. "I do not care," says the straightforward, literal Californian to the thirty-one Republican diviners, interpreters and word-twisters, "if thirty-one gentle-"men in New York or 310,000 gentle-"men in New York say the reverse of "what I contend. Here are the words "of WARREN HARDING, and upon these "words he is entitled to the support "of every red-blooded American."

To Mr. JOHNSON "a red-blooded American" is a person who, like Mr. HARDING, "wants neither interpreta-"tions nor reservations, but outright "rejection." Everybody who wants that should vote for Mr. HARDING. Everybody who wants the League and hopes that Mr. HARDING will bring the United States into it either gulls himself or is gulled by the illustrious Republican apologists and quillet-spinners. Millions of Republicans are strong for the League. To keep them in the Republican Party, which multitudes of them have already deserted in a great movement of revolt by the side of which the Mugwump secession of 1884 was as a raindrop to a Spring freshet, the Republicans are trying to get votes by false pretenses.

Senator JOHNSON does a service to political veracity and morality by standing up for the facts. He does a good service to Mr. HARDING, whose reputation must suffer from the continuous efforts of some of his supposed friends to represent him as a double-dealer. He can't be both against the League and for it. That is what the Republican glosers, the would-be compromisers of the uncompromisable, are trying to make him out. The division in the Republican Party is too wide and deep to be bridged even by the pontifical cobwebs of Mr. ROOT and his fellow-notables.

A NEIGHBOR'S MISTAKE.

We apologize for diverting the attention of The Herald from the exigencies of a Republican campaign which is every day beset by new and formidable moral and political difficulties, but we invite it to re-examine the sources of authority which it quoted on Saturday in the attempt to show that THE TIMES has erred and sinned in its efforts to show that President WILSON did not insist upon the acceptance of the Covenant "absolutely unchanged," and that he did say of Mr. HITCHCOCK's reservations that "I can accept them as they stand." Here is the body and substance of our neighbor's contention:

> Last January, when Mr. HITCHCOCK was doing his level best to prevent the slightest wound to the President's unappeasable vanity of authorship, that unfortunate Senator submitted to the White House a form of compromise resolution on Article X. declaring that the United States assumed no obligation to employ military or economic force to preserve the territorial or political independence of any other country unless in any particular case the Congress, in the exercise of its exclusive constitutional power to declare war, should by act or joint resolution so provide.
> A truism, of course, which even the author of Article X. could not attempt to controvert.
> But what did President WILSON do? On Jan. 26 he wrote "cordially and sincerely" to the Senatorial representative of his self-determined policy, adhering to the "substance" of the foregoing declaration as to the constitutional authority of Congress, but adding:
> "But I think the form of it very "unfortunate. Any reservation or res-"olution stating that 'the United "'States assumes no obligation under "'such and such an article unless or "'except' would, I am sure, chill our "relationship with the nations with "which we expect to be associated in "the great enterprise of maintaining "the world's peace."
> Furthermore, President WILSON then notified his submissive agent in the Senate that the association under the Covenant involved "very serious and "far-reaching implications of honor "and duty," which made it "the more "important not to create the impres-"sion that we are trying to escape "obligations."

As it appears that the record of this transaction contained in the files of The Herald is defective, we invite our neighbor to examine the correspondence in full, with the correlative documents, printed in the issue of THE TIMES of Sunday, Feb. 8, 1920.

The passage from the President's letter to Senator HITCHCOCK of Jan. 26 which our neighbor quotes, declaring that a reservation disclaiming any obligation under Article X. would chill our relationship with other nations, was not an expression of the President's opinion about Senator HITCHCOCK's reservation—far from it. That passage, as both the President and the Senator make clear in their correspondence, refers to the compromise reservation of Article X. which Mr. HITCHCOCK said represented the effort of both sides to come to an agreement. Mr. HITCHCOCK in his letter referred "to the inclosed clipping." The President says, "I return herewith the "clipping which you were kind "enough to inclose," and then goes on to say that, while he adheres to the substance, he objects to the form, which he describes as "very unfortunate." That reservation begins with these words: "The United States as-"sumes no obligation to employ its "military or naval forces or the eco-"nomic boycott," &c.

In his remarks laying this correspondence before the Senate, Mr. HITCHCOCK said: "The reservations "which the President refers to as "mine were the five reservations "which I presented to the Senate "Nov. 19 after they had been ap-"proved by the Democratic caucus. "In the Senate they received forty-"one votes." Our neighbor will find these reservations printed on page 2 of THE TIMES of Feb. 8. The reservation respecting Article X. is subjoined:

> That the advice mentioned in Article X. of the Covenant of the League which the Council may give to the member nations as to the employment of their naval or military forces is merely an advice which each member is free to accept or reject in accordance with the conscience and judgment of its then existing Government, and in the United States this advice can only be accepted by action of Congress at the time in being, Congress alone under the Constitution of the United States having the authority to declare war.

Of this and the other Hitchcock reservations the President wrote in his letter of Jan. 26: "I am happy to be "able to add, therefore, that I have "once more gone over the reserva-"tions proposed by yourself, the copy "of which I return herewith, and am "glad to say that I can accept them "as they stand."

From this correspondence we hold these truths to be self-evident: That the President did not insist upon ratification of the Treaty "absolutely unchanged"; that he did accept reservations presented to the Senate by Senator HITCHCOCK on Nov. 19; that the Hitchcock reservation in respect to Article X. fully expressed our understanding and intent that any use of force under that article would require the authorization of Congress.

WORDS NOT HALF BATTLES.

> We are both assumed to understand the meaning of words; the American people likewise understand the meaning of words.—Governor COX's telegram to Mr. ROOT.

This, we fear, is what the grammars used to speak of as a supposition contrary to fact. We assume a man's innocence only till he is proved guilty; and it would seem that some of our best minds, as well as great masses of the people, have now been found guilty of not understanding the meaning of words. We mean, of course, words used in politics. They have been employed, this year, not merely to conceal thought, but to distort it, to pervert it, to reverse it. President ELIOT admitted that the eminent thirty-one who signed the appeal of the pro-League Republicans were "honorable men"—so was Brutus an honorable man—but added that, for that very reason, he could not understand how they could have put their names to such a document. The probable explanation lies in the infinite capacity of man the political animal to deceive himself with or about words.

The verbal trouble in this campaign has been twofold. In the first place, the Republican candidate has shown an extraordinary bent for word-juggling. "He took the word and played upon it and made it of two colors." After a good deal of this, "reject" comes to sound very like "accept." Then there has been the whole band of his Republican interpreters. Like so many scholiasts, they have pounced upon his language and tortured it into meanings that to the general seem strained or fantastic. After two months of this, can it be wondered at that the public has come to think of words as being only so many noses of wax? To be bethumped with words is of itself hard enough to endure, but to have words volleyed at you out of which the whole natural meaning has been extracted is still harder. If words are the moral currency, the Presidential campaign of 1920 is responsible for a frightful debasement of it.

EXCESS AND SURTAX SUBSTITUTES.

Secretary HOUSTON's statement of Treasury necessities and policy leaves an option how taxes shall be levied, but none about the total to be paid. The Treasury will need it all is getting until at least the floating debt and the Victory notes are paid or funded. On one point the country's mind is made up—substitutes must be found for the excess profits tax and the surtaxes. They are so severe that they defeat their purpose regarding revenue, and are injurious to business and investment. The declaration of the American Bankers' Association leaves no doubt about that class of opinion. Not less convincing is the result of the referendum among 4,000 business men. Repeal of the excess profits tax was favored by over 70 per cent., and the sales tax as a substitute was favored by 73 per cent. And yet the committee appointed to consider taxation on behalf of that section of opinion brings in a report of a different nature. The report of the committee of the National Industrial Tax Conference proposes twelve taxes to take the place of the sales tax as a substitute for the excess profits tax.

The dozen taxes are familiar and have worked well here and in foreign countries. The objection to levying twelve taxes instead of one is obvious. Multifarious taxes are expensive and troublesome to collect, and are irritating to the taxpayer. If the votes were taken among those who would pay the twelve taxes, it is likely that the total would surpass the total against the excess profits tax. Taxes on tea, coffee, sugar, gasoline, candy, tobacco and other like taxes certainly would not be popular, however productive of revenue they might be. A consumption tax on the necessaries of life and the luxuries of the poor would be criticised from the standpoint of the poor as the excess profits tax and surtaxes are criticised from the standpoint of the rich. Increase of the postage rate, a bank check tax and other stamp taxes are not subject to such criticisms, but they would not be popular. Popularity is not the best or final test of the excellence of a tax. The committee's report may be the best that can be done by way of finding a substitute for the sales tax, but it is contrary to the sentiment of those who gave the mandate, and serves to show that there is no choice between a sales tax and a multiplicity of taxes. No other substitute can be found of equal productiveness and equal popularity. As a certain tax, and a concentrated tax, it has no superior, however open to criticism it may be in some aspects.

The Chairman of the committee was on safe ground in urging a full volume of taxation, although the recent collections suggest a surplus of a billion dollars for the year ending with next June. The argument is all the stronger from the fact that the billion surplus will hardly be realized, because the collections for the current year do not represent payments on account of any twelvemonth. Of the $3,957,701,374 reported as collected in 1920, more than two billions was paid on account of 1918 business. The difference was due to the privilege of quarterly payments and to closer collection of arrears. The surplus due to the income and profits taxes relates to 1918, when incomes and profits were larger than in 1919, and still larger than they will be in 1920. There is nothing singular about this. England is having a similar experience with its excess profits tax. It takes three years to collect the British "excess profits duty" for any one year, and the profits and taxes together are declining there as here.

ANOTHER BRITISH PLOT.

The keen eye of an Irishman has detected a conspiracy against American peace and security. It lurked unbeknownst in the apparently innocent proposal of The London Times that there be formed an Anglo-American Golfing Society. That paper's account of the plans and purposes of such an organization seemed plausible enough—and foolish enough—until Irish suspicion dragged out this damning sentence: "If you can trust a man on "the links, you can trust him in the "Council Chamber." At once the whole wicked plot stood unveiled. Unthinking American golfers were to be lured into this Angliomaniac Golfing Society as a first step toward being induced to betray their own country. They might think they were only playing a friendly game; yet any moment they might be asked to go into the Council Chamber of the League of Nations or to renounce true faith and allegiance to the Republic of Ireland. But, with the scheme now unmasked and our loyal golfers forewarned, we are confident that this British serpent will be nipped in the bud.

DANZIG AND SILESIA.

Most of the difficulties in the operation of the Peace Treaty have arisen in cases where the Conference tried most desperately to be fair—to harmonize conflicting claims in each of which there was some merit. Danzig was the only possible port for Poland, and for centuries it had been attached to the Polish Kingdom, though with a varying degree of local autonomy. But Danzig is chiefly German in population, and, though this preponderance was to some extent artificial, there was likely to be a German majority for years to come. So the Conference created the "Free City of Danzig," which since the ratification of the Treaty has been under the control of Germans whose emotions were dominated by fire-eating patriotism and keen jealousy for the advantages of local merchants.

The convention promised by the Treaty, which is to regulate the relations of Poland and Danzig, was to have been signed on Saturday, but the Poles have asked for more time before they pledge their Government to an instrument which is highly unsatisfactory to them. The old Hansa city is to have its own flag for its own ships, and the Poles want a joint Poland-Danzig flag for merchant shipping. At first sight it seems a mere point of pride, but it is a good deal more than that. The Poles seem to fear that this provision will lead to a condition in the Port of Danzig in which all other vessels than those of the city itself will be treated alike—that is to say, Polish ships will be no more favored than Danish or German. This would quite possibly operate to defeat the entire intention of the Treaty.

The Poles have other objections: the convention does not give them the voice in Danzig customs regulations which the Treaty promised, nor are they assured of the privilege of buying land for docks and terminals of their own. Over and above all this is undoubtedly the memory of the bitter days in August when Russian troops were at the gates of Warsaw and Danzig Germans refused to unload, or to permit others to unload, munitions shipped to the port for the Polish Army. In those days Sir REGINALD TOWER, the British official who was acting as temporary High Commissioner for the League of Nations, created the impression that he was about as hostile to Poland as were the Danzigers; and the episode did no good to Polish-British relations nor to the prestige of the League. In trying to harmonize claims both of which were more or less just the Treaty merely created a situation which left both Poles and Danzigers violently dissatisfied.

Meanwhile the German National Government is quarreling with the Prussian State Government over Upper Silesia, where a plebiscite is to be taken in the next few weeks to decide between Poland and Germany. Polish national consciousness among the Polish-speaking population there is, on the whole, of rather recent growth, and in some ways the antagonism is economic and religious quite as much as racial. Some crafty persons at Berlin have conceived the idea that if the National Government promises to make Upper Silesia a State of the German Reich much of the Polish sentiment would disappear; that, in other words, it is hostility to Prussia rather than to Germany. If this were done in time, they argue, it might have a strong influence on the vote. But the Prussian Government does not want any further diminution of its territory, and some disinterested German leaders oppose the plan because of the encouragement it might give to separatist movements supported by the French on the Rhine. Events in Silesia and in Danzig should remind the Poles that their most dangerous enemy is on the west, and that the better relations they can establish with their neighbors on the east the more chance they will have to hold their own against German pressure.

LABOR'S LIKEMINDEDNESS.

The Central Federated Union unanimously resolved last week in favor of the nationalization of coal mines, an embargo on the exportation of coal, and the exercise of war powers in the distribution of coal. Any idea that the union was thinking first of our coal situation is negatived by the arguments in support of the resolutions, which were ordered telegraphed to President WILSON and ROBERT SMILLIE, leader of the British strikers.

Clearly the union was thinking more of the British strike than of affairs on this side the ocean.

So far as our affairs are concerned, it need only be said that the difficulties of our coal situation are rather increased than lessened by Government intervention, and that more of that medicine is not suitable for the case. During the debate it was said that 200 ships were loading coal, and that unless its export was prevented the British miners' strike must fail. Accordingly the union proposes to stop the loading of more coal than would suffice to take steamships across the ocean.

The nationalization of mines is an international labor policy, and as such is more suitable to be supported by the Third International than by American unions. As surely as New York is not Moscow the Central Federated Union is not representative of American opinion on nationalization, and it is desirable that the resolutions ordered telegraphed to England shall not be misunderstood there.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Somewhat Critical for Once. Sir JOHN FOSTER FRASER seems to have delivered no lectures while he was over here, recently, and to have escaped the great American interviewer, but he has been talking about us since his return to London, and comparing the men and things he found here with Britons and their institutions. What he says is interesting—the more so, perhaps, because his remarks, while quite without malice or enmity, are rather more frank, and much less laborious in praise, than it has come of late to be the somewhat wearisome habit of English explorers of the American wilds.

As is natural and right, Sir JOHN likes home best, but some of the reasons given for his preference are better on the surface than under it. Our democracy, for instance, disappointed him by its limitations. He calls ours "an alternating democracy," referring to our periodic elections of a powerful Chief Executive, practically irremovable during the statutory term of his office. This plan he thinks less wise, as it certainly is less fluid, than what he calls Great Britain's "hereditary democracy," and he rejoices that the popular will in England can register immediately all its changes and advances, while here we are bound by what men thought good 140 years ago.

That, of course, is a sly dig at our written Constitution, but England claims to have one not less effectual, though unwritten as a single, separate document, and England pays attention to the precepts of men who lived some centuries longer ago than 140 years. And, among history's justly celebrated tellings, there are several to the effect that a written constitution would have saved England from terrible mistakes committed in haste or by the will of one or too few men.

Which Plan Has Worked the Better? What seems to have struck Sir JOHN particularly was that speech is considerably less free here than in England. We sometimes silence, and sometimes put in jail, men who say things that are said with impunity by the soap-box orators in Hyde Park. That is true, and we have heard innumerable times that it was better, because safer, to let this sort of steam be blown off than to risk the big explosion it is sure to produce if confined long enough and firmly enough.

That familiar analogy usually has won our verbal assent, and it is plausible enough to be disquieting, but reasoning from analogy is always dangerous, for analogies are never perfect, and the present state of affairs in England is somewhat far from being proof that if bad or mad people are allowed to say anything they choose, what they say will be as ineffectual as steam let out before it acquires power from compression. In some way or other, a large fraction of England's "proletarians" have come not only to believe, but to act upon, exactly the doctrines that have been preached for so many years by the Hyde Park orators, and though the relation between the preaching and the believing and acting may not be, demonstrably and fully, that of effect and cause, that just that relation exists could be argued with not a little force.

At any rate, in spite of such suppressing of free speech as there has been and is in this country, our "proletarians" are not yet threatening the national existence, as they are in England, and our workers of the classes that are making the trouble there would deny vehemently that they are "proletarians" or "the proletariat" at all. They are respected and self-respecting American citizens, loving their Government and upholding it; and if Sir JOHN wants to know why, let him dig around at the roots of his own statement that "the physique of the English people is not to be compared with that of the general masses in America."

Countrymen Did All the Catching. For once, at least, the country Sheriff and his very unprofessional deputies seem to be vindicated—to be entitled to use against their urban colleagues most, if not all, the terms of derision which the city officials have been wont to employ so freely in discussing rustic manhunters.

For it was the rustic, not the urbanite, that caught the far wandering fugitives from Sing Sing, and it was a village shopkeeper, not a town one, who first revealed to the sorry pair of bandits that obedience is not the only possible response to the order, "Hands up!" Not until the escaping prisoners had reached the New Hampshire mountains did they run across anybody who was not afraid of them—who would not give them anything they demanded, whether it was an automobile or a meal.

To that rule there seems to have been only one exception. The five National Guardsmen who stopped the twain at Port Chester showed no signs of fear, having guns and bayonets, but neither did they show any signs of intelligence, for though they had been provided with good descriptions of the two men and the latter still wore part of their prison uniform, they were not recognized and were allowed to go on, probably even more surprised than rejoicing.

As for our own State Constabulary, the worst that can be said about them is that they had an opportunity to show high efficiency and didn't do it, but that is pretty bad, considering how much has been promised of the troopers and how much everybody has a right to expect of them.

The episode illustrates anew the distinctly disquieting facility with which the motor car lends itself to the attaining of nefarious ends. Except for these agile vehicles, STIVERS and BASSETT probably would not have gotten more than twenty miles from Sing Sing, but, with a swift and tireless accomplice to be had for the asking on any country road, their failure to reach a real wilderness and safety a thousand miles away was due only to their being a poor, dull-minded pair, unworthy of mention in the same day as the Count of Monte Cristo, the Baron TRENCK, the Chevalier DE SEINGALT, or any of the deservedly famous evasionists.

War Has Been Slandered. With the revelations of the Lockwood committee before us, would it not be well to start a wider inquiry—to find other answers to the question whether we have not been ascribing to "the war" a far greater number of our troubles, financial and moral, than justly can be related to it?

"C'est la guerre!" is a too convenient phrase of which the French too well have taught too many of us the meaning. In one form or another and in one language or another, it has served as explanation and justification for the high prices of numberless things—of everything, in fact—and for six years, now, it has come trippingly from the tongue of every ruthless profiteer and shameless exploiter.

It must be admitted, of course, that high prices necessarily follow wars, but there are other influences, as yet only glimpsed, perhaps, that can raise the high prices of war three or four times as high, and leave us still in the delusion that we are paying only the cost of defending our liberties.

And these victims of grafters and conspirators who make such pathetic pleas for sympathy! Would they have been so docile under the exactions of their despoilers if they could not have passed over their losses to the ever-ready Ultimate Consumer? At any time they could have told what they are telling now and have raised the same defenders, but they preferred to submit in silence and to "get theirs" a little later, when the getting was better.

HARDING'S SPEECHES.

By AUSTEN G. FOX.

Neither from Mr. Root nor from any of his thirty colleagues has come a suggestion that accidental oversight led to their omission to mention Mr. Harding's rejection of the League at Des Moines. Their omission to state this material, if not conclusive, evidence of their candidate's real attitude was thus deliberate. We need not try to fathom their motive nor need we charge a purpose to suppress the truth. The deliberate omission of this fact was, however, an evasion, and evasion is confusion. Must we not conclude that confusion is confession—confession that a frank statement of the whole truth might have been fatal to their pretense that we are more likely to accept the League by electing Harding, who stands for its "rejection," than under Cox, who is for "going into the League"?

One thing is clear and that is that Harding's proclamation of hostility to the League needs neither "interpretation" nor "clarification." It must itself be either accepted or rejected. It cannot be ignored and it cannot be amended. When he made it he threw aside any former affectation of a readiness to accept the League, and it may have been by accident, blurted out the truth. A distinguished English Judge said that what a man "himself admits to be true may reasonably be presumed to be so."

We cannot assume that Mr. Root or Mr. Taft wrote the candidate's speech which they now contend was a speech for acceptance of the League, and that Hiram Johnson or Mr. Borah wrote the later speech for rejection of the League. We must assume that the candidate wrote them both. If so, we are reminded of the Irish barrister who was arguing to his Lordship that the statements in a pleading were confused and contradictory. His Lordship having expressed a doubt as to that, the barrister replied:

"If your Lordship will give me tin minutes I'll promise to make them as intilligible to your Lordship as they are to mesilf." The court replied: "I know no man better fitted for the task!"

Involvements of Normalcy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Taft is reported in the press as saying that he will vote for the League, even with Article X. as it stands.

But he says he thinks most people don't want the League and so he intends to vote for Harding, who says he "seeks its rejection."

In other words, Mr. Taft seeks to get what he wants by voting for what he doesn't want.

If he wants Harding, he should vote for Cox. That is logic, according to Mr. Taft; or is it merely normalcy? Certainly his reasoning appears to a layman to be full of involvements.

THE SINGING LEAVES.

The gay, frost-painted trees,
Thrilled by the wind-harp, play the sweet
Wild Autumn melodies,
And all the singing leaves intone
A mighty paean of their own.

Who says this Autumn song is sad?
Listen with me and hear
The message of good hope it brings—
Of life-in-death each year—
Of early twilights veiled in haze,
The richer charm of shortening days.

Beneath the Winter's snow,
Of wild flowers which shall come next Spring
To radiant life. Ah, no!
Who hears aright the singing leaves

VOTE FOR NINE JUSTICES.

The Five Indorsed by Both Parties Should Not Be Overlooked.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There are nine Justices of the Supreme Court to be elected this Fall in this district—nearly one-third of the entire number now on the bench. Both political parties have nominated for re-election Justices Guy, Ford, Platzek, Giegerich and Erlanger. Each party has also nominated four other candidates. Vigorous campaigns are being conducted on behalf of the four Democrats and of the four Republicans thus nominated, but it does not seem that anything is being done on behalf of the five Justices indorsed for re-election. It appears to be assumed that a position on both tickets insures election. Unfortunately, that is not sure to follow, although, of course, it is very probable.

Experience under the present form of ballot has shown that there is a tendency of many voters not to vote for the full number where there are several candidates to be elected for a given office. This tendency will be increased this year by the fact that such an exceptionally large number are to be chosen for the Supreme Court and by the fact that there will be four Republican and four Democratic candidates who will have only one party emblem—the eagle or the star, as the case may be—before their names as they appear on the ballot and only the one word "Republican" or "Democratic," as the case may be, at the right of their names, while the five who are nominated by both parties will have both emblems before their names and both the words "Democratic" and "Republican" after their names. These facts may easily lead many voters who are strong partisans or who may be confused by the appearance of the ballot to vote only for the four candidates who have the single emblem and the single party designation.

It might happen, therefore, that the four candidates who have only the Democratic nomination and the four who have only the Republican nomination may all be elected, making eight of the nine to be chosen, and thereby defeating all but one of the five who have both nominations.

Such a result is not likely, it may be conceded, but in such a confused political situation as exists this year almost anything may happen and I have indicated above some of the particular facts which tend toward producing such a result.

I do not mean to criticise or oppose any of the eight candidates who appear only upon one party ticket. Four of the eight will be elected in any event. My contention is that steps should first be taken to insure the election of the five who have been nominated by both parties because of proved merit through long years of service on the bench and then let the best four of the eight win the remaining positions.

If voters will only exercise their full right of franchise and vote for nine candidates, all will be well. The danger is that so many voters, for partisan or personal or other reasons, may vote for only four or even fewer, that the five who ought to be the most secure may be the least so.

ANSWER TO A THREAT.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the state of mind of those pro-Leaguers who expect to vote the Republican ticket there are two extraordinary items: What they expect of the Republican Party, and what they deny to the Democratic Party.

They expect that the Republican party will bring us into the League with superior safety and credit. They believe this, certainly not because of the convictions of the candidate, nor because of the platform, but because of their abiding confidence in the party and its personnel. This belief might be justified if there were a degree of integrity in the actual and prospective party leadership.

But how can any man believe that a party whose conscience is bought today will consult its conscience tomorrow? How can any one believe that, not alone Johnson and Borah, but the great segment of public opinion which they represent, weary to death of the European mess, can be courted today and ignored tomorrow? If the price of peace within the party now is no policy, the price of a policy hereafter will be war within the party. If this situation is fairly faced, what becomes of the superior prospect for the League?

But more extraordinary still is their denial that the Democratic Party can bring in the League. The reason for this denial is, I cannot avoid thinking, the most discreditable element in a discreditable outlook. It amounts to accepting the prospect that whatever proposal the Democratic Party may bring for a revision of this covenant for a League, the Republican Senate will block it.

Are we then to lie down tamely under a threat of this sort? "We, the Republican Senators, warn you, the American people, that in spite of any expression of your will in this election we shall consider no proposition on its merits; we have the power to render impotent any proposal for world order which does not emanate from us, and we shall use it."

If I believed that the American people would bow to such a threat, I should be tempted to say, not How low has our political leadership fallen! but, How low has the American spirit fallen! Surely the eminent Republicans who use this argument as a plea for electing Harding in order to get the League do not realize the implications of their advice. It would mean the end of rule by the people, and the beginning of rule by the Senate.

If the next Senate should dare to use its power in this way—as it would not dare—our response should be not acquiescence, but the abolition of the Senate. We cannot begin by submitting.

The habitual Republican voters who want a prompt and honest entry into the League (and I am one of them) can do no other than vote for Cox, if only for the sake of saving faith in government through parties.

Krupps Not a Bidder.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your issue of Sept. 11, which was received by us only today, contained an article headed "Krupps Underbid Us on Locomotives." We beg to inform you that the statement in question is quite misleading. Having neither solicited nor received the order mentioned therein, we were not in a position to underbid American manufacturers.

FRIED. KRUPP,

JEWISH WELFARE MERGER IS PLANNED

SEQUEL TO WORK OVERSEAS

Erection of Community Centres Offers a Future for Organization, Says Dr. Schulman.

Steps toward bringing about an amalgamation of the Jewish Welfare Board and the National Council which looks after the Young Men's Hebrew Association and kindred activities were taken at the annual meeting of the Jewish Welfare Board yesterday afternoon at the Jewish Centre, 131 West Eighty-sixth Street. In introducing a resolution to accomplish this object, Supreme Court Justice Irving Lehman said it would be an immeasurable loss to American Jewry if the Jewish Welfare Board were allowed to go out of business. Born of groups essentially Jewish, the board had shown all could work together in wartime, he said. Why should the board not continue its work in the army of peace? Justice Lehman asked.

The Rev. Dr. Samuel Schulman, who advocated the amalgamation, said that no finer way to perpetuate the holy heritage of the American Jew in the war could be found than to continue in the years to come the name of the Jewish Welfare Board. He said it was a testimony to the Jews who served the United States so bravely. He believed encouragement should be given the erection of Jewish community centres, a work which offered a future for the board.

A report of the welfare activities of the board among the soldiers, sailors and marines during the war was read by Dr. Cyrus Adler, Acting Chairman of the organization. The report told in detail of the work overseas and in the camps here and of the co-operation given by the Y. M. C. A., Knights of Columbus and other welfare organizations, for which appreciation was expressed.

Statistics showed that more than 180,000 Jews attended the religious services arranged by the board. To serve the religious needs of seventy-five soldiers at Honolulu one of the workers was sent there during Rosh Hashonah and Yom Kippur this year to conduct services, the report states.

Among the post-war activities of the Welfare Board, according to the report, was the work of marking the graves of the Jewish dead in France and bringing back the bodies of Jewish soldiers whose parents desired to have them buried here. Arrangements were made for military escort for the bodies when they reached this country, and if desired a rabbi was furnished to conduct the funeral ceremony, the report said.

Concerning the war record of the Jews the report stated:

"The record confirms to the world, on the basis of indisputable evidence, the facts already familiar to the workers of the Jewish Welfare Board who were in intimate contact with the men at the front, that the Jews of America, when the call came, answered readily, served gallantly, and in numbers died bravely for the United States."

Louis Marshall paid a tribute to the memory of Colonel Harry Cutler, former chairman of the Board, who died a few months ago. Mr. Marshall said American Jewry had suffered a great loss by his death.

Resolutions expressing the sorrow of the Jewish Welfare Board over the death of Jacob H. Schiff were unanimously passed.

DENOUNCE POLISH POGROMS.

Jews Here Take Steps to End Persecution in Eastern Europe.

Reports of massacres, murders and outrages committed by Polish soldiers and civilians against the Jews in Poland during the last six months were read yesterday afternoon before the conference of the American Jewish Congress at the Engineering Societies Building, West Thirty-ninth Street. The delegates had been summoned to decide on action to stop these pogroms, and to discuss the Jewish situation in Eastern Europe generally.

The Chairman, Morris Rothenburg, read a detailed account of the horrors inflicted on Jews in Poland, Lithuania, Hungary and Galicia. Following this, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise announced that he had received an invitation from the Polish Minister at Washington to visit him with a number of Jews to talk the problem over. He then read a resolution which his committee had prepared. It stated in strong terms the feeling of Jews in America and demanded that the Polish Government take immediate steps to put an end to the pogroms.

After a heated discussion, mostly in Yiddish, it was decided to accept the invitation and to present the resolution to the Polish Minister, and if this conference with the Minister had no effect, to organize a demonstration in New York and the other great cities. It was stated that the Jewish situation in Poland was becoming a serious one, and the Congress decided the time had come for a strenuous effort to be made on behalf of Jews in all parts of the world.

PLEADS FOR WORLD PEACE.

Speaking at the Broadway Tabernacle, Broadway and Fifty-sixth Street, in the interests of the Roosevelt Memorial Church which it is planned to erect at the national capital as a memorial to the soldier dead, President Jacob Gould Schurman of Cornell University emphasized the need of establishing a confraternity of nations as one of the agencies to be invoked in avoiding future wars.

"We said and believed that the terrible conflict was a war to end war," President Schurman said. "Were we duped by our hopes? Certainly the victorious nations are no happy family. The largest of our original allies has become the worst despot the world has ever witnessed. Yet wars may some time be prevented. And how?

"I answer, not by military alliance or concert of power. But by a combination of Christian principle and common sense, namely, by appeals to right and reason; by evolving a world court of justice; by provision for arbitration and conciliation and by the establishment of a confraternity of nations, organized to anticipate and to remove by means of discussion and conference on the causes and occasions of war, and to bring to bear upon all international controversies the moderating, quieting and healing influence of the moral and intelligent public opinion of the world."

Francis M. Hugo, Secretary of State of New York, and Burr McIntosh also spoke.

Greece Will Not Try War Culprits if Bulgaria Promises to Punish.

SOFIA, Oct. 23.—Greece has notified Bulgaria that she renounces her right under the Peace Treaty to try Bulgarian subjects accused of violation of the laws of war, provided Bulgaria gives assurances that the accused shall be adequately punished.

MASONIC SERVICE HELD IN CATHEDRAL

SERMON BY DR. CADMAN

Representatives of more than 200 Masonic lodges in New York filled the Cathedral of St. John the Divine yesterday afternoon at their annual service under the auspices of the Grand Lodge of the State of New York. The Rev. Simon Raymond Cohen, rabbi of the Keap Street Synagogue, Brooklyn, a Grand Chaplain, read from the Scripture. The Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, pastor of the Central Congregational Church of Brooklyn, also a Grand Chaplain, preached the sermon and walked in the procession beside the Very Rev. Howard Chandler Robbins, Dean of the cathedral.

Bishop Charles S. Burch, another of the five Grand Chaplains, made an address of welcome. Rabbi Cohen read the first thirteen verses of Chapter 6, Deuteronomy, and the New Testament lesson was ready by the Rev. Dr. Cornelius Woelfkin, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church. Canon E. Briggs Nash was master of ceremonies.

The flag of the grand lodge hung opposite the American flag and on the chancel rail were two banners of the lodge. Every seat was occupied and many stood.

A feature of the service was the singing of the "Star-Spangled Banner" by the assemblage, led by the choir under Dr. Miles Farrow, organist and choirmaster, while an altar boy stood in the centre of the chancel and held aloft the Stars and Stripes.

After welcoming his fellow masons, Bishop Burch said it gave him special pleasure to welcome to the cathedral pulpit the speaker of the afternoon, "my brother in Masonry, my brother in religion and my dear friend."

Dr. Cadman wore a Geneva gown, a scarlet divinity hood, his collegiate hood and his lodge medal suspended from his neck on a purple ribbon. He pleaded for a more profound reverence for the past. "Our own age is now sorely wounded in its own soul," he said. "We have not so much to fear from a revival of the paganism of Plato as we have from the paganism which preceded the year 1914.

"I exhort you not to cultivate the spirit of cowardice. Masons as a class have never been accused of that. Especially, I exhort you thus in a Presidential campaign when every sort of confusion clouds the air. The integrity of all men means more than compromise.

"There never was a day in the history of America when she was so in danger of losing her greatness as in this day. She has to watch very carefully that she is not lured from her great responsibility and her great power. She will have to use discipline."

Dr. Cadman closed by praising the pronouncement on the need for the reunion of Christendom, made by the recent Lambreth Conference. "The Christian Church is coming back to her own," he said.

HEBREWS RAISE $1,000,000.

Union of Congregations Plans "Flying Squadron" to Raise $3,500,000.

Of the $3,500,000 fund sought by the Union of American Hebrew Congregations $1,000,000 has been subscribed, according to announcement made yesterday by Manny Strauss, Chairman of the Advisory Committee, at the office of the union, 24 East Twenty-first Street. The fund is being raised for a ten years' expansion program. The money has been contributed by sixty-nine cities. Two hundred communities were participating in the campaign, Mrs. Strauss said.

A "flying squadron" of prominent Jews will start on Nov. 4 for a nationwide campaign in the interest of the movement. This will be headed by Julius Rosenwald, Representative Julius Kahn and Mr. Strauss. The fund will be devoted to extension work of synagogues and schools in rural districts and congested communities, a rabbis' pension fund and a synagogue loan fund. Local campaigns are being conducted through mass meetings and personal solicitation.

ELECTION NIGHT BALL.

Returns Will Be Flashed Every Hour at Timothy Guild Function.

The Election Ball to be held next Tuesday evening under the auspices of St. Timothy's Guild at the Commodore promises to be attended by a large number of New York people who are coming in to vote. Election returns are to be flashed each hour from 9 P. M. Each of the forty-eight ballroom boxes will contain a table seating six people.

The advance coupon sales indicate that guests are coming from the Berkshires, Connecticut, the North Shore and New Jersey resorts, and Mrs. R. Penn Smith will bring a party from Philadelphia. Mrs. De Coursey Fales heads the Ball Committee and the Misses Adelaide Rhinelander, Mary Strange, Katharine Post and others have been added to the Junior Committee. Mrs. George F. Baker, Jr., Mrs. John Pratt, Mrs. J. Herbert Ballantine, F. Ambrose Clark and Clarence H. Mackay are among the boxholders.

ENGAGEMENTS.

Mr. and Mrs. Finley Hall Lloyd of Pittsburgh have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Hall Lloyd, to Francis De Lacy Hyde, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis De Lacy Hyde of Hydewood Hall, Plainfield, N. J. The wedding will take place this Winter.

The engagement has been announced of Miss Mary Elizabeth Praeger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Jewett Praeger of 14 East Sixtieth Street, and Casilier Cobb of Washington, D. C. Miss Praeger made her début in 1915 and is a member of the Brooklyn Junior League, her parents having lived in Brooklyn until recently. Her father was for a time the Colonel and commanding officer of the 23d Infantry, N. Y. G.

Mrs. Walter E. Glover of 815 Park Avenue announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Marie R. Glover, to the Marquis de la Tourette of Paris, France.

Mullins-Dunne Wedding.

The marriage of Miss Lillian Dunne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Dunne of 79 West 103d Street, and Edward Mullins took place last evening in the Church of the Ascension, the Rev. Father Langton officiating. The wedding supper was served at the Hotel Marseilles. Miss May Egan was the maid of honor and Robert Mullins, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Mr. and Mrs. Mullins will reside in this city. During the war Mr. Mullins, whose parents live in England, served with the American forces in France and later in Germany with the Army of Occupation.

Appraisal of Estate Reveals He Acted for Mrs. T. J. Preston, Jr., and R. G. Ingersoll's Widow.

The appraisal of the estate of Andrew Carnegie, details of which were published yesterday, disclosed that he was in the habit of investing for his friends their surplus funds from which an income rate, higher than otherwise might have been procured, was assured by his sound business judgment. One of his friends for whom he made such investments was Miss Margaret B. Wilson, who has been a teacher in Hunter College since 1887.

Miss Wilson, who lives at the Hotel Netherland, explained last night that Mr. Carnegie many years ago had offered to take her surplus earnings and invest them for her. The appraisal of the Carnegie estate shows that she holds Mr. Carnegie's notes for $42,630. When asked about the transactions last night she was unable to remember the exact amount, but she explained that it was by reason of Mr. Carnegie's solicitude that she had entrusted to his care the investment of her funds.

"That was many years ago," said Miss Wilson, "and I recall that Mr. Carnegie told me that he had similarly made investments for twenty-six other friends of his."

Among the other noteholders listed in the appraisal of the estate are Mrs. Thomas J. Preston, Jr., formerly Mrs. Grover Cleveland, $58,891; Mrs. Eva A. Ingersoll, widow of Robert G. Ingersoll, $85,500; Jean C. Bradley, 19 West Thirty-first Street, $75,000; Mrs. Frank E. C. Champern, Great Neck, $20,000; Mrs. Anna Blancke, 1,303 Lexington Avenue, $18,000; Walter C. Gale, 211 West Fifty-sixth Street, $25,000; Mrs. Agnes T. King, East Orange, N. J., $105,000, and Mrs. Mary H. Gould, 14 East Sixtieth Street, $30,000.

Yale Has 20,490 Living Graduates.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 24.—There are 20,490 living graduates of Yale University, according to the biennial directory, issued today. The directory also lists 7,675 alumni who did not complete their courses at Yale. The occupational summary shows 3,810 engaged in the practice of law, 2,466 in manufacturing, 2,485 in finance, 2,174 in education and 1,913 in engineering.

DATO EXPECTS TO WIN.

MADRID, Oct. 23.—Premier Dato expressed confidence today that the Cabinet would obtain a good working majority in the approaching general elections. The campaign, he said, was progressing favorably in the various provinces, and reports from them showed the Government was receiving increasing support.

Several local Mayors have been changed in recent weeks for officials known to be in sympathy with the Cabinet. Many former supporters of Juan de la Clerva y Penafiel, ex-Minister of War, and of former Premier Maura now are expressing themselves in favor of Premier Dato, but Government organizers have voiced doubt regarding the sudden change of political opinion and announce that candidates will be chosen from among politicians who are known to favor Dato's program.

The only really strong opposition campaign against the Government is being waged by Señors Cierva and Maura. The Liberals are displaying an extremely indifferent attitude, and even the Catalanist section, which usually is strongly against Dato, is very quiet. The Socialists are unable to find candidates except in the larger industrial centres.

TO TEST BOMBS ON WARSHIP

The Indiana to Demonstrate Their Destructive Effect.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Explosive tests will be made this week with the old battleship Indiana in lower Chesapeake Bay, by placing bombs in various parts of the ship to demonstrate their destructive effect had they been dropped from the air.

Already airplanes flying over the Indiana have demonstrated the practicability of hitting a target of that size from a height of 4,000 to 8,000 feet, but the bombs used were dummies and the test was merely one of accuracy.

After the bombing experiments the old warship will be anchored in Tangier Sound as a target for ships of the Atlantic fleet, which will use a new type of projectile.

BATTLESHIP OFFERS COURSES IN SCIENCE

EXPERTS TEACH TRADES

System Based on Material from Land Schools Will Be Installed in Other Ships.

When a committee of four professors from Columbia University went on board the U. S. S. Oklahoma last week they were shown not only the intricate functioning of a modern battleship in all its details, but a new system of education recently adopted by the navy which is being tried out on board that vessel.

The purpose of the innovation is threefold—to increase efficiency of operation, to make better citizens of the seamen and to attract enlistments. The Bureau of Navigation at Washington buys courses from various correspondence schools borrows material from colleges and universities and permits any enlisted man or officer who desires to better his knowledge of his duties to make use of the facilities. Classes are held on board ship, co-ordinated as far as possible with the regular routine. Any one of the personnel who has special knowledge of any particular subject, be it navigation or trigonometry or electrical engineering, is invited to act as teacher, and he may find even a superior officer attending his classes.

The new system was explained by C. R. Alderman, formerly Professor of Education in the University of Oregon, who has general charge of its installation.

"Every battleship," he said, "is a veritable scientific laboratory. That is to say, there is no branch of science, or, at least, I challenge any one to find one, which is not represented in the normal operation and tactics. We plan to make use of this fact. Many a college would be envious of our laboratory facilities, and we are giving every man, enlisted or commissioned, a chance to study and to improve his rating. The plan has been in effect on the Oklahoma for a month now, and although it is too early to judge of its effect on the efficiency of operation, there is no doubt of its popularity among both officers and seamen."

The gunnery officer on board, Commander Courts, said that, of the 1,000 enlisted men on the Oklahoma, nearly 450 had enrolled in the courses to date, and sixteen of the sixty-odd officers. The distribution of men in the various subjects was on Oct. 15: Steam engineering, 34; navigation, 23; electrical engineering, 58; machine shop, 6; gas engineering, 66; mechanical engineering, 3; yeomanry, 15; miscellaneous, 233.

The list of subjects covered by the courses is in detail as follows: Arithmetic, algebra, bookkeeping, chemistry, English, elementary electricity, electrical wiring, economics, gas and oil engines, geometry, geography, history, navigation, physics, penmanship, steam engineering, spelling, Spanish, shorthand, typewriting, elementary French, shop sketching, trigonometry, business law, mechanical drawing, theory and operation of machinery, heat, marine slide valves and gears, elementary accounting, electric meters and a few other technical studies.

Professor Alderman declared that even music would eventually be taught through the services of a piano and a phonograph, including musical history and appreciation and the elements of harmony.

The executive officer of the Oklahoma, W. R. Van Auken, in discussing the new method, said that while it was too early as yet to judge of its effects on discipline and efficiency, there was no doubt of its value from a purely naval standpoint. As evidence that the men have taken hold of the idea with enthusiasm, he mentioned a sign painter on board who of his own volition was giving lessons in his craft to his comrades, and a chief yeoman who was teaching penmanship.

Professor Alderman said that the Bureau of Navigation expected to install the system on other ships, and throughout the navy if the preliminary results justified it, as seemed probable. Admiral Wilson, he remarked, had shown great interest in the plan, and had requested an exhibit covering its operation to be placed on board his flagship, the Pennsylvania.

SOLDIERS' INJURIES LISTED.

More A. E. F. in Hospitals from Gas Than Any Other Cause.

According to a comprehensive report just issued by the Surgeon General of the Army, of the 266,112 soldiers admitted to the hospitals of the A. E. F., from battle causes, more were suffering from gas than any other cause, and more were wounded in the legs than in any other part of the body. Complete analysis follows:

Gunshot missiles	85,132	Bayonet	245
Shrapnel	40,448	Falling objects	193
Rifle ball	22,368	Aerial bomb	150
Shell	21,312	Cutting and piercing instrument	146
Hand grenade	1,156	Airplane	88
Indirect result	1,383	Crushing	85
Explosives	946	Sabre	14
Pistol ball	257	Other	3,901

Another list prepared shows the location of wounds and the number. All casualities from gas, except mustard gas, are classified under "thorax:"

Legs	72,527	Abdomen or pelvis	10,286
Thorax (50,084 cases)	67,584	Back	8,948
Arms	56,213	Neck	5,396

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—The lapse of another day brought the murder of Major Frank Murphy Scanland of Louisville and Frankfort, Ky., whose body was found in a lonely wood near Alexandria, Va., Saturday, no nearer solution by the police of Washington working on the case in conjunction with the Virginia authorities.

An autopsy and inquest conducted in Alexandria today showed that the only bruises on the body were back of the right ear, where the skull was fractured in two places. Other spots, at first believed to be bruises, were judged to have been caused by decomposition, the body having been in the woods probably four or five days before it was discovered. The verdict of the inquest was that Major Scanland had been murdered by being struck on the head with a blunt instrument by unknown parties.

Two sisters of Major Scanland, Dr. Louise Scanland and Mrs. J. B. Crabbs, arrived here today from Louisville. They talked with the Chief of Detectives, Mr. Grant, but could offer no information which would establish a motive for the crime. They asserted that Major Scanland was not in financial straits and that there was no reason why he should have been, because he could have obtained funds easily. Major Scanland's wife, Mrs. Alice Scanland, also reached Washington today from Youngstown, N. Y. She was unable to offer any clue. The body will be taken to Frankfort, Ky., tomorrow for burial.

The police tonight gave up a theory that J. William May of Alexandria had any knowledge of the crime. They had been anxious to locate May after his wife had gone to an undertaking establishment to look at the body. May today visited Police Headquarters voluntarily.

FRANK DILNOT RETURNS.

British Correspondent Here to Lecture—Praises Lloyd George as Leader

Frank Dilnot, the English journalist and author, who was recently president of the Association of Foreign Press Correspondents in America, arrived in New York on Saturday by the Cunarder Mauretania to deliver a series of lectures on "England After the War." Just before leaving London he had an interview with Premier Lloyd George, whom he has known personally through his political career.

Speaking yesterday of conditions in England and the coal strike, Mr. Dilnot said: "When I left London, on Oct. 16, those in a position to know the situation were confident of the power and ability of the Premier to meet the great difficulties by which he was beset and to cope with them successfully. England is facing a real crisis, but Lloyd George has the confidence of all classes. In the opinion of educated people he is the greatest leader the country has had since Pitt.

"If the transportation workers and the other labor unions should, after all, walk out in sympathy with the coal miners the situation will be very serious. Thousands of young men were offering their services when I left for New York, and the Government can get the use of practically all the automobiles in the country to fight the strikers. In addition to the men there are hundreds of skilled young women motor drivers who gained experience in France and Flanders during the war and can endure hardship as well as the sterner sex."

Armenians Attack Turkish Front.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—The Armenian troops, according to a London Times dispatch, have begun a counter-attack against the Turks on the entire front.

ASK JEWS TO HONOR PROF. FRIEDLAENDER

Organizations Representing the Youth of the Country Launch Move for Fitting Memorial.

WAS KILLED ON MISSION

Speakers Praise His Heroism in Facing Death to Succor Members of His Race.

An appeal to the Jewish youth of America to dedicate a fitting memorial to Professor Israel Friedlaender, who was killed in the Ukraine last July while on his mission of service to his destitute brethren, was made last night before an audience which filled the great hall at City College, at Convent Avenue and 139th Street. The meeting was called to allow Jewish young men and women, for whose religious education Professor Friedlaender had labored, to pay their respects to his memory.

Some of the organizations which took part were the Intercollegiate Zionist Association, the Menorah Intervarsity Council, the League of Jewish Youth, the Young Judea, the Teachers' Institute and Seminary, the Young Israel Synagogue and the Young Men's and Young Women's Hebrew Associations. The speakers were John H. Finley, State Commissioner of Education; Dr. Judah L. Magnes of the Joint Distribution Committee, for which Professor Friedlaender was disbursing funds at the time of his tragic death, and Leon Hoffman and Ruth Dressler. George M. Hyman, President of the League of Jewish Youth of America, presided.

"With the spirit of youth we admire the soldier-like courage, the Maccabean heroism of Professor Israel Friedlaender in facing death to give succor and relief to his fellow Jews," said Mr. Hyman. "But we are not met merely to give expression to grief at our great loss. Youth does not mourn, for youth thinks but little of death. Youth has life before it, and we here this evening have before us the living hopes of the Jewish people. We must become the standard bearers of a great Jewish youth movement, of that Jewish Renaissance which Professor Friedlaender heralded—the dawn of the golden era in Jewish history, of the Diaspora plus Palestine."

Commissioner Finley declared that the whole city should long remember Friedlaender, and compared him to the Crusaders of old.

'MIDINETTES' DISAPPEARING.

French Girls Are Discarding the Needle for the Typewriter.

PARIS, Oct. 1.—The French "midinette" is disappearing, and French girls are throwing aside the needle for the typewriter, according to the large fashion houses of Paris. The apprentice who used to be glad to enter a modiste's or costumer's establishment as midinette, at first earning nothing but her keep, is now learning typewriting, with perhaps a suspicion of shorthand, and can command a fair salary as soon as her course of instruction is completed.

Experienced modistes and dressmakers vainly point out the folly of this course, which, they say, leads many girls into a blind alley occupation instead of providing them with a trade at which they can eventually earn a living running into many hundreds of dollars a year, as a première in a big fashion house receives a salary varying between $3,000 and $3,500.

There is a great shortage of help in the large dressmaking houses in Paris.

A Cree Guide and Cook

This Indian squatting on the bank of the Abitibi River is Cephas, guide and cook to the Revillon director who made the annual tour of inspection to the Hudson and James Bay posts last summer. This annual trip by an officer of the company is never omitted though the journey extends for several thousand miles in the wilderness. The most remote trading post gets the same personal attention from the board of directors as do the main houses in Paris, New York and London.

MRS. BRADLEY MARTIN DIES IN ENGLAND

Mrs. Cornelia F. Martin, who with her husband, the late Bradley Martin, a generation ago was one of the leading figures of the social life of New York, died suddenly yesterday at her country residence at Hamstead Marshall, England. The information was contained in a brief cable dispatch received by her son, Major Bradley Martin, at his home at Wheatley Hills, L. I., where it was said last night that nothing further was known as to the cause of Mrs. Martin's death.

Mrs. Bradley Martin was the hostess of the famous "Bradley Martin ball" at the Waldorf in 1897, an event that remains a landmark in the social history of the city. It is many years, however, since Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Martin, Sr., have lived here. They leased the 65,000-acre estate Balmacaan on Loch Ness in the north of Scotland. Their daughter, Cornelia, married the Earl of Craven and they established themselves as permanent members of London society. The town house there was 4 Chesterfield Gardens. Elaborate house parties were given at Balmacaan during the hunting season.

Mrs. Martin was the daughter of the late Isaac Sherman of Buffalo and New York, who made a large fortune in lumber and barrel staves. Her daughter, the Countess of Craven, lives at 3 Chesterfield Gardens, London. Major Bradley Martin manages the family estates. He has a city residence at 400 Park Avenue. He was Adjutant of the 154th Brigade, Seventy-seventh Division, and was gassed, returning latter to his command. He was educated in England and spent most of his early life there, but came to this country in 1911 and has since made his home in New York.

Professor Arthur Searle.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 24.—Professor Arthur Searle, who ranked all other members of the Harvard University Faculty in length of service, died late Saturday night. He was Phillips Professor of Astronomy (emeritus).

Professor Searle was 83 years old. He was graduated from Harvard in 1856 and became connected with the Harvard conservatory in 1868. He became Professor of Astronomy in 1887.

Thomas Mott Osborne's Management of Portsmouth Naval Prison Also Denounced.

Charges that Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic nominee for Vice President, while Assistant Secretary of the Navy, had personally sought to return men who had been convicted of unnatural crimes from the Portsmouth Naval Prison to active service are made in a letter to Mr. Roosevelt from John R. Rathom, editor of The Providence Journal, made public yesterday by the Republican National Committee.

This charge, with the additional charge that he had sequestered or destroyed Navy Department records and that he and Thomas Mott Osborne, warden of the Portsmouth prison, had "whitewashed and covered up" the conditions there, has been made before during the campaign, but has been denied by Mr. Roosevelt. Mr. Rathom asserted that under Mr. Osborne discipline at the Portsmouth prison became a "joke," and said that had the plan been to carry out a deliberate design to corrupt and demoralize the personnel of the navy no system more likely to achieve that purpose could have been imagined.

"One case is sufficient to illustrate the rotten system inaugurated by you," Mr. Rathom says in his letter to Mr. Roosevelt. "In February, 1918, Clarence A. Parker, chief electrician, U. S. N., was convicted by a general court-martial of unnatural crimes and scandalous conduct tending to the destruction of good morals. He was sentenced by the court to be reduced in rank to seaman, to be confined in the naval prison at Portsmouth for a period of ten years, and to be dishonorably discharged at the expiration of the term.

"One month after this man entered the prison, on March 19, 1918, the Navy Department commuted his sentence from ten to seven years. One year and three months later this convict was placed on probation by your personal direction and transferred to the receiving ship at Boston.

"June 21, 1919, the commanding officer of this receiving ship asked authority of the Bureau of Navigation to discharge this man from the service 'in view of the nature of the offences of which he has been found guilty.' July 10, the commanding officer of the receiving ship renewed his request for authority to hand Parker an undesirable discharge.

"Aug. 4, the Bureau of Navigation reported that the retention of this man 'was highly undesirable' and recommended to the Judge Advocate General that he be given an undesirable discharge.

"This recommendation was approved by the Department. The Bureau of Navigation on Aug. 11 authorized the commanding officer to discharge this man. The naval officers appear to have acted in a manner tending to uphold the honor and dignity of the service while you did just the contrary.

"You, apparently, were not actuated by any such high motives, for upon learning of the discharge of Parker, by the Bureau of Navigation, you wrote a memorandum directed to Captain Raby, Chief of the Enlisted Personnel Division, in which in your own handwriting you directed that Parker be permitted to re-enlist. You further asked Captain Raby why the issuing of the authority to give Parker an undesirable discharge was not an act of insubordination on the part of some officer, after he had been restored to duty 'by my order.'

"There are in the office of The Providence Journal the records of eighty-three separate and distinct cases of men convicted of crime who have been returned to honorable duty by either you or Mr. Daniels," Mr. Rathom charged.

failed to hear shouts of "Look out!" and "Heads Up!" as the floor was sagging, and as the crash came fell headlong to the basement.

While "Smoky Joe" was dispatching firemen to rescue Ford, Captain Dennis J. McNamara and Firemen Charles White and Harry Smith of Engine 16, making their way into the ruins, found Captain Ford lying knee-deep in a pool of water in the basement. Ford was carried to the car barns, where it was found he had suffered a lacerated right eye from the effect of smoke and from shock. He was treated by Dr. Works of Bellevue Hospital and taken to his home by Chaplain Harry Handel of the Fire Department, who had come from Brooklyn.

A back-draught caught Captain Frank Murphy of Engine 23 and six men, but they did not require treatment. Fireman J. Feeley of Engine 14 heard strange, faint cries as he sloshed through the basement. With two other firemen of the same company he finally located their source—two tiny kittens floating on a clapboard. One kitten went to Engine 14 house to become a mascot and the other was taken in charge by firemen of Truck 2.

The police had thrown out lines for three blocks about the burning building, holding in check a crowd estimated at 30,000. Inspector William F. Boettler and Captain William A. Bailey of the West Forty-seventh Street Station directed the work of the reserves from the West Forty-seventh, the East Thirty-fifth, the West Thirty-seventh and the West Sixty-eighth Street Police Stations, and fire lines were established at Forty-ninth and Fifty-second Streets on Broadway. Similar lines were placed in Seventh Avenue and half way up the block between Sixth and Seventh Avenues and half way between Broadway and Eighth Avenue on Fiftieth and Fifty-first Streets.

Traffic on Broadway was tied up from 9:15 o'clock until shortly after noon. There were several futile attempts to break through the police lines, and in one instance a middle-aged woman was arrested and taken to the West Forty-seventh Street Station House. George and Rufus Lemaire, owners of "Broadway Brevities," now running at the Winter Garden, attempted to get through at Broadway and Fifty-second Street, pleading that they had $50,000 worth of costumes at stake. J. J. Shubert meanwhile had ordered the costumes carried to safety.

The Beauty of the Waltham Watch

OH, what a beautiful watch!" How many times we have said that, or heard others say it, when confronted in the jeweler's shop-window or, upon his counter with the slim, golden beauty that has captured our admiration.

A beautiful watch has a strange power of fascination. Its beauty is alive. It speaks to us of Time. It measures for us Time's value and transition. When we buy one, it becomes immediately a part of our life. It goes everywhere with us. We depend on it. And if it fails us, we feel that "a friend" has played us false.

We do not buy a watch merely for its good looks. If that were so, we should not be really buying a watch but a watch case. So the beauty of our watch must go deeper than the outside. It must reach into every part, no matter how tiny. It must delve into and be the sum and substance of the whole "works"—the "movement" that ticks the seconds, day and night, for us.

BEAUTY is much more than appearance. A watch may look good—but is it good? That is what we are most interested in. We hear much to-day of "ultra" this and "extra" that. The "ultra" beautiful, the "extra" thin, and we are apt to be confused as to what is the best value for our money.

We venture to say that there are hundreds of thousands of watches reposing in bureau drawers, or among discarded trinkets, that were once bought because of the "pretty," "cute," "cunning" or "smart" watch case wherein reposed the "works" that refused to keep time.

Of course, you should buy Beauty in your watch. But buy beauty on the outside and "beautiful" time-keeping on the inside.

The Waltham Watch can be bought in the most beautiful cases imaginable. True, you may not find Waltham Watches [illegible]tiful because they are the most desired, the most sought-after watches. From the tiny lady's watch, the works of which are not as large as a dime in circumference (the smallest "movement" made in America), to the generous sized railroad man's watch—the famous Waltham "Vanguard"—the Waltham is "wanted" by those who value time-keeping ability.

THE beautiful "works" of the Waltham Watch have won many honors and gold medals against all comers at the world's great expositions. It was the "works" of Waltham Watches that placed "America first in watchmaking." These Waltham "works" were the wonder and admiration of foreign watchmakers. They openly said so.

The name "Waltham" across the dial of the watch you buy is an American word that carries with it watchmaking leadership, watchmaking integrity, watchmaking dependableness. It means the best watch, for the price you pay, that it is possible to buy.

THE Waltham Watch represents nearly three-quarters of a century of watchmaking improvements. Many of the advancements in modern watchmaking came from the Waltham laboratories. The Waltham Watch embodies many unique superiorities of construction and durability found in no other watch. Often you meet men, and women too, who will proudly show you their Waltham Watch that is still keeping dependable time as it did the day they bought it, twenty, thirty, forty, fifty years ago.

You buy a watch to serve you—to tell the time for you—to outlast the years of life. There is an element of friendship, of almost human association, between the watch that has watched faithfully, constantly, over Time for a long period of years, and the owner of it.

Waltham Watches are heirlooms in thousands of American families. Grandfathers have passed them on to grandsons, and grandmothers to granddaughters. They have become a bond in Time with the Time that has passed and is no more.

AND it is because of their Beauty in Service, their chaste design and their lasting ability to keep time that the Waltham Watch is now the most sought-after watch in the world. It is not easy to obtain. The rigid inspection before it leaves the great Waltham organization limits the output. This insistence upon quality and performance is a Waltham Creed. But it is a watch worth waiting for—worth any man's or woman's determination to own.

The Waltham Watch will repay your faith in it by giving you the lifelong service for which it was made—to keep and tell the time.

D'ANNUNZIO CAST AS ANGEL OF REVOLT

COUP D'ETAT SET FOR NOV. 4

Expectation Was That He Would Proclaim New Regime at Victory Celebration.

ALLEGED APPEAL TO LENIN

Socialist Paper Charges That the Poet Sought Financial Aid from Russian Communists.

MILAN, Oct. 24.—An amusing story of a melodramatic plan on the part of d'Annunzio to play the part of the angel of revolution in Rome is told in the press. The Stampa of Turin calls attention to the nationalist movement for converting the ceelbration in Rome, on Nov. 4, of the final victory of Vittorio Veneto into a plot for the setting up of a military dictatorship. Twenty-five thousand ex-soldiers, it is said, were to gather in the capital. In the midst of the demonstration d'Annunzio was to descend from the clouds in an airplane from Fiume and proclaim the new régime with the active assistance of various Generals, Admirals and others, whose names have been heralded in the newspapers.

D'Annunzio lately made a mysterious night trip across the Adriatic on a torpedo boat with a male companion and a woman friend, landing in the vicinity of Ancona, where he remained in conference with his supporters till daybreak, when he reëmbarked with the woman alone.

The Socialist organ Avanti has startled the public with a declaration in proof of which it avows itself ready to publish full documentary evidence to the effect that d'Annunzio recently cabled to Tchitcherin, the Bolshevist Minister of Foreign Affairs, soliciting material and financial aid from the Russian Communists.

In reference to this affair the Secolo relates how the loquacious Italian Maximalist Deputy Trozzi let the cat out of the bag on his return from the recent Moscow congress, at which Lenin stated that, the end being all-essential, but the means thereto utterly indifferent, he was prepared to effect an agreement with d'Annunzio regarding Italy, as he had done with Enver Pasha regarding Asia. Lenin's attitude in the matter was the principal cause of the rupture of relations with Signor Serrati, the Italian Communist leader.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—The correspondent of The London Times at Milan sends a dispatch in which he says that Italy, which two months ago seemed on the eve of a Bolshevist upheaval, now gives the impression of being on the brink of a military "coup d'état."

"The Nationalist press," he asserts, "is calling for a military dictatorship as a remedy against rampant Bolshevism and hails d'Annunzio as a suitable dictator. Avanti, the Socialist organ, however, alleges that d'Annunzio recently appealed to Moscow for military and moral aid and was approved by Lenin as an instrument of the Soviet Government. All the responsible papers are in accord in deprecating violence from any source.

"As Premier Giolitti is regarded in some quarters as either incapable or unwilling to give a strong Government, his position is shaken, and it is regarded doubtful if he will remain long in power."

ITALIAN PROFESSOR IS KILLED AT DAKAR

Mario Mazzei, Returning from Mission to Brazil, Is Found Dead After Going Shooting.

GENOA, Oct. 24 (Associated Press).—On the arrival of the Italian steamer Principessa Mafalda from Buenos Aires today the police made investigations aboard the vessel concerning the tragic death of Professor Mario Mazzei, who when the steamer touched at Dakar left for a hunting expedition and never returned to the boat, as was his intention.

Professor Mazzei was a member of the Italian mission which visited Brazil in June on the Italian warship Roma and of which the Duke of Spoleto, son of the Duke of Aosta, was the head.

The police interrogated the passengers of the Principessa Mafalda and made special inquiries of Signor Pinotti, who was Mazzei's secretary. Pinotti said that when the steamer arrived at Dakar, on Oct. 14, the professor, who was an enthusiastic sportman, landed, promising to return before it departed. Pinotti himself went ashore but returned after having left Mazzei going in the direction of the village of Bellaire to continue his shooting.

Two days later a wireless message was received by the liner conveying information that near Bellaire a body, supposed to be that of Mazzei, was found. This news was confirmed by the Italian Consul at Barcelona when the steamer arrived there. It was stated that no money was found on the professor. When he landed at Dakar he carried 15,000 lire. The reports said no traces of violence were found on his body.

COUNCIL OF LEAGUE GETS VILNA REPORT

APPROVES ALAND PROPOSAL

Also Accepts Guardianship Over Minorities Creater by Austrian and Bulgarian Treaties.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 24.—A particular point considered by the Council of the League of Nations at yesterday's session was whether French or English should be the official language of the permanent International Court, but no decision was arrived at.

The Council decided to refer back to the Supreme Council of the Allied Powers the question of Armenia, it being unable to accept a mandate for the country. The Council decided, however, to accept the guardianship of minorities in the territories transferred under the Austrian and Bulgarian treaties.

The appointment of a commission to settle the dispute between Sweden and Finland over the Aland Islands was approved. One member of the commission will probably be American.

Ignace Jan Paderewski, former Polish Premier, representing Poland, and Augustine Waldemar, for Lithuania, arrived today and will be heard by the League Council regarding the Polish-Lithuanian differences.

The League of Nations Military Mission that went to Vilna after its occupation by General Zellgouski's troops, has also reached Brussels and was being heard by the Council in Special session this afternoon. This Council meeting was absolutely private, not even the confidential secretaries being admitted.

The Council will take up the mandate question tomorrow if it finishes with the hearing to be given to M. Paderewski and M. Waldemar.

It is expected the Council will soon discuss the report of Tomasso Tittoni, former Italian Foreign Minister, in which warning is given against the dangers of inequitable distribution of raw materials and which proposes a League of Nations Commission to evolve a concrete plan to prevent monopolies of such materials, either by governments or industrial organizations, and arrange for satisfactory apportionment among all countries.

Leygues Against Premier's Meeting.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 24.—The French Premier, M. Leygues, will not attend the League of Nations meeting at Geneva in company with the British and Belgian Premiers, as suggested by Belgian Premier Delacroix in a recent interview in the Brussel newspaper, Twentieth Century. That 1 the ubtance of a tatement issued tonight by the French Foreign Office. The statement adds that no such invitation has been received by the French Premier and that he would be very unlikely to accept it because "it is feared in French political circles that such a reunion, which the other heads of Governments would not fail to attend, might appear to be interference in the attributions of the League of Nations."

In the interview the Belgian Premier made a suggestion that a preliminary conference of the Allied and German experts should be held as soon as possible at Brussels without necessarily waiting to settle the subsequent procedure definitely. M. Delacroix expressed the hope that the results of that meeting would clear the air and show the different parties where they stood. They would then be all in a better position to decide what was next to be done.

Bishop Proposes Law to Check Their Influence in Hungary.

BUDAPEST, Oct. 24.—A presentation of the Jewish question in Hungary that has attracted wide republication and comment was made by the Bishop of Stuhlweissenburg, Ottakar Prohazka, in the course of a debate in the National Assembly this week.

The Bishop introduced and spoke to a bill intended to restrict the number of Jewish students in the university, the clinics and the colleges of agriculture. It was meant, he said, to guarantee a living to the Hungarian middle classes, and at the same time to afford a basis for a predetermined selection of students. This selection was to have patriotism for a basis. The measure was not a plot against the liberty of education.

"Since 1867," he continued, "Hungarian political economy and Hungarian trade have experienced a great expansion and for this we have to thank the Jews. By dint of their intelligence, their diligence and tenacity of life the Jews have pushed back, as it were, the new Hungarian generation.

"Anti-Semitism as such does not exist in Hungary. Our anti-Semitism is such as bids us to look upon the Jew as an essential portion of the nation, but to prevent him gaining a preponderance over us. We are not faced by the problem of anti-Semitism, but by that of racial self-defense. Our Christianity is being made to feel that it is being pushed back at every step. This process deserves the name of de-Christianization.

"Our attitude of defense must not be looked upon by the Jews as an act of hatred. Merely for the sake of liberalism we must not suffer that half the lawyers and the majority of medical men in the country be Jews. Not only the middle classes but also what may be called the genius of the race is advancing toward its extermination. Hungarian literature is saturated with the Jewish atmosphere. We must defend our national culture when we see it endangered."

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 23 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—Details of the work of the American Red Cross in the Crimea are given in a report received here today from Sebastopol. The report says clothing to the value of 5,547,051 francs and linen to the value of 1,623,027 francs have been distributed. Medicines and surgical instruments valued at 2,990,060 francs were distributed, and a number of children's homes, kitchens and sanitary institutions were established.

3 SLAIN, 1 A WOMAN, ON DAY OF VIOLENCE

TWO OTHER VICTIMS DYING

Caretaker Found Dead in Locked Room—One Killed in Fight Between Brothers at Trenton.

Three more murders, one of a woman, were reported to the police yesterday while they were still at work hunting the slayer of Mrs. Jennie Kassel, whose body was found near West New Brighton, S. I., on Friday. Two attempted murders also were reported, and in a quarrel among three brothers in Trenton, N. J., one was killed and another mortally wounded. In these crimes of violence three are dead, two are dying and two women were seriously injured.

The body of Mrs. Anna Horowitz, 38 years old, caretaker of a tenement house at 429 Cherry Street, was found yesterday in a dark and windowless room on the top floor six hours after her relatives had seen her last. Her assailant had put a heavy padlock upon the dark room after he had gashed and mangled her body, and the police of the Madison Street Station had trouble breaking down the door. They are looking for a man who lived in the house several months ago, but they do not know his name or present address, or where he worked.

Detectives said they believed that the murderer had remained in the dark room with the dying woman for more than five hours after he had attacked her. Surgeons said that she bled to death slowly from stab wounds in throat and abdomen, inflicted with a steel wire from an umbrella frame. A watchman at a building at 434 Cherry Street told the police that in the dusk last night, before the street lamps were turned on, he saw an Italian hurrying down the street attempting to hide an old sword under his coat.

Screams Heard by Women.

Women reported to the police that they had heard screams about 10 o'clock yesterday morning. Philip Schlotkin, a nephew of the woman, said he had seen her earlier in the morning at Jackson and Cherry Streets with a new pail on her arm. He said she had told him that she was going to clean a dark and untenanted apartment on the top floor of the house. He did not see her again nor any other member of the family until about 6 o'clock in the evening, when Herman Horowitz began to search for his wife through the house and then through the streets near the house.

A recluse took a room in the house three months ago, and after remaining a short time was asked to leave because some of the women in the house became frightened at some of his actions. He went muttering through the halls, they said, an, being of small stature, frequently dressed in boy's clothes and played in the streets. Some of the tenants thought he was feeble-minded, but he was asked to go. He had been seen around the house lately, and the police last night sent out a general alarm for him.

It is the belief of the police that this man might have returned to his room yesterday when Mrs. Horowitz went there to clean it and that he might have become angered when she asked him for a small sum of money due on his rent. A $1 note was found on the floor near the body, with the steel wire used by the murderer. There was no furniture in the rooms, and the former tenant apparently had tried to make the middle room even darker by pasting newspapers over the window in an adjoining room. Detectives thought they might have a clue in the heavy padlock on the door, but the woman's husband said that this was the property of the house.

When the news of the murder spread through the east side, police reserves had to be called out to handle the crowds around the house. Relatives of the woman objected to the proposal that an autopsy be performed, and the police had to persuade them by telling them that some valuable clues might be obtained.

Shot to Death in Brooklyn.

In Brooklyn, Charles Calrudo of 26 Skillman Avenue was shot and fatally wounded by Emile Arnellino, whose address was not known to the police. Arnellino's sister, Julia, 18 years old, also was shot through the hand. She was taken to the Greenpoint Hospital, where she said she was injured in trying to protect her brother from attack by Calrudo. She said she did not know what the quarrel was about. Calrudo died before an ambulance arrived.

The body of William Hessner of 120 Nurge Street, Maspeth, L. I., was found in a lot on Harmon Street, near Forest Avenue, the Ridgewood section of Brooklyn, yesterday. His skull was fractured. The police arrested Edward Ehrgott of Maspeth and Charles Rotteck of 599 Forest Avenue on the charge of homicide. William Reimold said there had been a fight in his saloon at 484 Forest Avenue in which Hessner and the prisoners had been engaged.

A sixteen-year-old wife who was separated from her husband was the victim in a shooting at the home of her parents, 351 East 118th Street, last night. At the Harlem Hospital her name was given as Mrs. Rose Faracera, and the police of the East 126th Street Station sent out a general alarm for the arrest of her husband, Michael, of 349 East 118th Street. The police said she was suing for annulment of her marriage and that her husband called last night to seek a reconciliation.

In a second shooting in Brooklyn, Lorenz Givoe of 930 Flushing Avenue was mortally injured. His brother, Salvatore, was taken to the Stagg Street police station. A policeman heard the shots and no one else was in sight but the two brothers, who were standing at Evergreen Avenue and Forest Street, Brooklyn. According to the police, Salvatore said that he had shot his brother in a quarrel over a woman and admitted that the pistol found on the sidewalk had been used by him.

The Jersey City and Staten Island police were not able yesterday to trace the murderer of Mrs. Kassel, although they cleared up many points about the woman's life. They said they were convinced that jealousy, not robbery, was the motive.

Physician Takes Poison.

Dr. Frank S. Hutchinson of 371 East 165th Street was taken to Lincoln Hospital yesterday suffering from arsenic poisoning, and the police and friends of the physician declare that he took the drug in an attempt to commit suicide. The police said that he was separated from his wife and that at first he refused medical attention at the hospital. He will recover.

A friend of Dr. Hutchinson, Dr. Joseph Lippman, of 1,800 Clay Avenue, the Bronx, said that Dr. Hutchinson telephoned yesterday that he had taken arsenic. Lippman told the police he found Dr. Hutchinson at a desk writing a note, which Hutchinson destroyed when Lippman entered the room. According to Lippman, Hutchinson said: "Let me die. I don't want the police brought into this."

Madeline Samsel, 19 years old, of 430 East 153d Street, attempted to commit suicide yesterday because she was disappointed by the lack of attention of a man who had been calling upon her. She called him to the house yesterday, chided him for lack of affection, and then started to drink carbolic acid. He knocked the bottle from her hand. She was taken to Lincoln Hospital in a serious condition.

Edward Terz of 26 Remsen Street, Jamaica, committed suicide yesterday with gas. He was found dead by his wife, who had him in Jamaica Court Saturday night on charges of non-support of her and four children.

Bolsheviki in Portugal Financed Railway Strike in Effort to Seize Power

MADRID, Oct. 24.—Indisputable evidence, it is said, has reached both the Sjanish and the Portuguese authorities that the origin of the railroad strike in Portugal was an attempt by the Bolshevist elements to seize power. The movement had its origin in Barcelona, from which place agents went to Portugal, either crossing the frontier surreptitiously or reaching that country aboard coasting vessels. The agents are said to have carried with them large sums of German money, which was used to influence the unemployed and the extremists among the trade unions.

The alleged plans which have fallen into the hands of the authorities divulge that it was the intention to obtain possession of strategic points on the railroads, the machine shops of the various systems, and the Custom Houses and other public buildings. Clues found by the police led to the search for and discovery of extensive deposits of arms and ammunition just across the Spanish frontier, ready for distribution in the event that the movement was successful. Among the arms found was a large number of American automatic pistols of large calibre, together with quantities of cartridges.

The disclosures enabled the Portuguese Government to take timely measures to prevent a spread of the movement, which started with the railroad strike. The train service, which was restored after several days of complete cessation, is being carried on very irregularly, as locomotive engineers and technical workmen are remaining away from their jobs. A number of high officials are acting as engineers and firemen, but their number is insufficient to permit of a full train service.

The authorities in Portugal, it is declared, became suspicious regarding the nature of the strike from the fact that the men ceased work immediately after the Government had consented to raise railroad rates 100 per cent. and to apply part of the larger revenue to increasing the wages of the men on every system in the country, thereby meeting all the demands of the workers.

PARIS, Oct. 24.—The Leygues Cabinet is threatened with disaster before it even has had occasion to present itself before the Chamber. The source of trouble is the dissensions that have occurred between War Minister Lefèvre and some of his colleagues with regard to the new law of military service.

The situation has become so acute that the Superior Council of National Defense has been summoned to discuss it on Wednesday. The council includes the President of the Republic, the Premier, the Ministers of War, Marine and Finance, all the Marshals of France and the Chiefs of Staff of the army and navy.

It is generally understood that the War Minister has stood out for the two years' term of national service, while many of his colleagues and a large section of military opinion consider eighteen months to be sufficient.

The War Minister's project entails the abolition of the greater part of the garrisons of the interior, and the Senators and Deputies of the areas concerned have been overwhelmed by a flood of protest from the Mayors, Town Councils and political groups, all complaining they will be ruined if the troops are withdrawn from their neighborhoods.

The Nationalist newspaper Intransigeant says that it hopes at least the garrisons will not be abolished in the mining areas and near the important labor centres, where they have a salutary effect in the event of strikes. Beyond arousing the violent indignation of the Socialist press this observation has caused little comment, as there seems a tacit understanding to avoid the question of garrisons.

Generally speaking the opposition to the War Minister is pretty pronounced. His opponents did not hesitate to say that the army chief of staff, General Buat, had been summoned by Premier Leygues and advised against the War Minister in favor of eighteen months' service. This statement has since been officially denied, but it seems highly probable that the War Minister's project will be repulsed, which would entail his resignation. The place might be filled temporarily, though some observers suggest his resignation would pave the way to the accession of a new Cabinet, which many believe inevitable shortly after Parliament reopens.

MOB RABBI FOR DEATH OF BOLSHEVIST BRIDE

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Oct. 23.—Rabbi Joseph Louwisch, principal of the Poughkeepsie Hebrew School and a leader in Jewish activities in this section, was mobbed late tonight by a band of men and women, members of his congregation, who sought him out and demanded information concerning the death of his bride. Louwisch fled to the protection of the police and the angry mob surrounded the police station while another group waited at the railroad station to prevent his leaving town.

According to members of Dr. Louwisch's congregation, the minister brought his boyhood sweetheart here from Russia several months ago. She arrived in New York on Aug. 25 and they were married at once and went to Boston on their honeymoon.

In Boston Dr. Louwisch learned that his bride was a believer in Bolshevism. This information was a great shock to him and he took his bride out to a farm near Boston. Returning to the city he began an action for an annulment of the marriage. The annulment was granted last Wednesday and when the young bride heard of it she committed suicide by hanging herself.

Louwisch returned to Poughkeepsie a few days ago without his bride. This caused some gossip and when relatives of the young women arrived in Poughkeepsie and informed members of the congregation concerning the death of the bride, they retained a lawyer who demanded that the Rabbi state the truth or falsity of the accusation that he had caused his marriage to be annulled.

Louwich made no reply, and tonight a mob of angry members of his congregation gathered at his school. The rabbi barricaded himself in the building and sent word to the police that his life was in danger. Patrolmen rushed to the school, rescued Louwisch and managed to keep him from the infuriated mob. Louwisch was escorted to the police station, which was surrounded by the crowd anxious to get at him. At midnight the police were still making an effort to disperse the crowd.

The rabbi is about 35 years old, and his marriage was the culmination of a long romance.

Clocks Are Set Back in Britain.

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 25.—The annual Summer daylight saving spell in Great Britain ended at 3 o'clock this morning, when all clocks were set back to 2 o'clock.

BOTH SIDES EXPECT VICTORY IN CUBA

MENOCAL GUARDS BALLOTS

Election Will Be Held Next Monday, with Soldiers in Readiness for Emergency.

HAVANA, Oct. 24 (Associated Press).—The Cuban Presidential campaign is nearing an end with little talk this year of a revolution.

The leader of the 1912 revolution, General José Miguel Gomez, a former President, is the Liberal nominee. On the ticket with him is Miguel Arango, a former Conservative and a sugar millionaire. The Gomez attempt to overthrow the Government of President Menocal, who is serving his second term, brought many changes in Cuban politics, and today the old party line-up is shattered.

In place of the once strong Conservative Party there is the Coalition or National League, comprising members of the Conservative and Popular wings. The Coalition nominee is Dr. Alfredo Zayas, candidate for Vice President under Gomez in 1912 and supported by Gomez as the Liberal candidate for President four years later. Zayas, known as the real founder of the Liberals, took no part in the Gomez revolution. The Vice Presidential candidate is Francisco Carillo, a former Conservative.

The election will be held Nov. 1 will be the first under the law framed by Major Gen. Enoch Crowder, the American war-time Provost Marshal General. It is designed to prevent fraud. As adopted by the Cuban Congress and approved generally, it contains many provisions for safeguarding the election, particularly as to registration. General Crowder's main object was to stop ballot-box stuffing and voting on dead men's names.

There is great interest in the campaign. Many business people, however, seem more concerned with the high cost of living, port congestion, financial distress and the resulting moratorium.

While both sides are claiming victory, General Gomez's followers are doing the most shouting. The General is out in the provinces, campaigning being stopped occasionally in his travels by the dynamiting of bridges over which he was expected to pass.

As a precautionary measure President Menocal has issued a decree against carrying arms. Soldiers are held in readiness for any emergency. The army will be around the polls election day. Gomez managers declared today they could be defeated only by fraud. Already they are obtaining evidence, they said, to prove conspiracy to defraud their man. The army, which captured Gomez, seems to be most concerned in the outcome, as some high officers are apprehensive as to how they might fare should Gomez come into power. This is despite the fact that General Gomez has promised that acquired rights would be respected.

Gomez is described as a popular idol and Zayas as an intellectual giant. Unquestionably much of General Gomez's strength is due to the popularity of his wife, whose charity while mistress of the palace is everywhere commended.

Cuba expects some scattering bloodshed on election day, but those who fear another revolution see little danger before Spring, the time set for a change in administration. Gomez himself has demanded that his followers keep within the law. So has Zayas, and President Menocal has announced that outlaw bands may expect short, quick work from army machine guns.

BROTHERS FIGHT, ONE DEAD.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 24.—Three brothers became involved in a quarrel early this morning, either over a love or a financial offair, and one is dead and another dying in McKinley Hospital with five bullets in his body.

The dead man is John Scarlata, who fired a bullet into his head after mortally wounding Joseph Scarlata. A third brother, Samuel, escaped unhurt, although four bullets were fired at him by John.

The three men lived together and conducted a grocery. One version of the trouble is that Joseph and Samuel objected to John's marrying their young niece, with whom he was infatuated. It also is said that John charged one of his brothers with unfairness in their business relations.

While Joseph was cooking breakfast John shot him, emptying a revolver into his body. He reloaded and fired four bullets at his other brother, who escaped up a stairway. The cries of Samuel from a second story window attracted the police and as they entered the building, John ended his life.

Following the shooting $13,000 hidden in the wall by Joseph was found by the police.

Condemn Anti-Semitism in Germany

BERLIN, Oct. 24 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—A mass meeting called by the Central Association of German Jews last night was addressed by a number of non-Jewish clergymen, who protested at the increase of anti-Semitism in Germany. A letter was read from the Minister of Justice of Hesse, condemning anti-Semitism as "utterly un-Christian."

Fayolle Home from American Trip.

BABY IN CARRIAGE KILLED BY AUTO

OWNER JUST BOUGHT IT

Had Temporary Driver's License and Was Arrested—Several Other Accidents.

A 1-year-old baby in a perambulator, which was standing on a sidewalk in Brooklyn, was killed yesterday in another of the Sunday automobile mishaps when a touring car dived into a group where the child's mother was standing with the carriage. The baby was Rhona Swartz, the child of Mrs. Florence Swartz of 893 Lafayette Street, Brooklyn.

Abraham Kosarsky, a leather manufacturer, of 639 Greene Avenue, owner and driver of the car that killed the baby, was held at the Gates Avenue Station on a technical charge of homicide. Witnesses said that Kosarsky had swung his car to the left to allow another car crossing the avenue to pass, and that he was unable to straighten out the car again before it dashed up on the sidewalk. Kosarsky had bought the machine only a few days ago, and had a temporary owner's license.

Louis Leonard, 25, of 1,586 Madison Avenue was taken to Fordham Hospital with a fractured skull after he had been knocked down at Webster Avenue and 197th Street by an automobile driven by Samuel Goldhanger of 1,522 Webster Avenue. Leonard was riding a bicycle.

William A. Keyes, 48, of 20 Stewart Street, Hoboken, died last night from injuries received in an automobile accident Saturday night. Keyes was crossing the street at Warwick and Ridgewood Avenue, when he was struck by a machine driven by Anthony J. Carper of 339 Greenwood Avenue, Richmond Hill.

Patrolman Anthony Mauro of the East Eighty-eighth Street Station was knocked down at First Avenue and Ninety-first Street last night as he jumped from a street car to arrest some crap players. Louis Spivak of 587 Union Avenue, the Bronx, driver of the car, was arrested for operating an automobile without a license.

An automobile owned by Miss Nora Bayes was in collision with another automobile at Seventy-fifth Street and First Avenue yesterday. Joseph Shillinger, the actress's chauffeur, who was alone in the car, was uninjured. Joseph Moskowitz of 756 East 155th Street was his five-year-old son Abraham, who were in the other car, were attended for cuts on their heads and faces.

Three women were injured, one probably seriously, when a "jitney" automobile driven by William Katzoll of 103 Adams Street, Hoboken, dashed on the sidewalk at Washington and Ninth Streets, Hoboken, last night, turning turtle. Olaf Nelson, 56, of 1,110 Park Avenue, Hoboken, a passenger in the machine, was thrown to the pavement but escaped serious injury. Katzoll was pinned underneath the upturned car and escaped with a few bruises. Katzoll ran over a collie dog, which caused him to swerve his car onto the sidewalk.

Mrs. Louise Wills, 52 years old, of 1,037 Garden Street, Hoboken, was taken to St. Mary's Hospital, suffering from a broken nose, fractured ribs and internal injuries. Doctors at the hospital said there was little hope for her recovery. Mrs. Viola Parapart, 24, of 1,006 Park Avenue and Mrs. Mary Haggerty, 56, of 1,019 Willow Avenue, both of Hoboken, had their wounds dressed and went home.

Katzoll, the driver of the car, was arrested on a charge of atrocious assault and battery.

FOUR SHOT IN RAIDS BY DUBLIN POLICE

Shop Attendant Killed by Two Men in Uniform—Bernard O'Rourke Arrested.

DUBLIN, Oct. 24.—James McCormack, a shop attendant, was shot by two men, said to have been in uniform, when the men entered the shop on North Brunswick Street Saturday night. The victim died later in the hospital.

Four persons are reported to have been wounded in police raids in Sackville and O'Connell Streets last night.

While congregations were leaving the churches this morning soldiers posted on street corners searched suspected persons carefully for arms.

BELFAST, Oct. 24.—The police and military Saturday midnight arrested Bernard O'Rourke, a prominent Irish financier, at his home in Inniskeen, County Monaghan, and conveyed him to the barracks at Dundalk. No announcement of the charges against him was made.

O'Rourke is a Director of the famous Belleek Fermanagh Pottery Works and large works at Dundalk and South Monaghan. His home was recently raided and searched by the authorities.

FOR FREE SOUTH AFRICA.

The Nationalist Congress, However, Advises Against Secession Now.

CAPE TOWN, Union of South Africa, Oct. 22.—The Free State Nationalist Congress, in session here, today adopted resolutions supplemental to a declaration of party principles, proclaiming the sovereign will of the people of the Union of South Africa, their right to self-determination, their right to secede from Great Britain or break any existing bond between the Union and Great Britain, and declaring opposition to a closer imperial union.

The resolutions advised, however, that no decisive step regarding secession be taken unless a majority of the people should express such a desire through a referendum.

COX FOR BUDGET PLAN.

Says Delay in Peace Will Cause Worst Reverses in Our History.

Reorganization of the existing departments of the Government under a specific budget plan will be effected by Governor James M. Cox in the event of his election to the presidency, according to his promise in a letter to Edgar B. Davis of this city made public yesterday. Mr. Davis, a student of business organization, wrote both Governor Cox and Senator Harding, but, it was said, has received no reply from the Republican nominee.

In his reply to Mr. Davis Governor Cox said:

"I know that as a result of our failure to make a legal peace in the past we do face an industrial crisis, and unless within a year we become a member of the League of Nations we are going to suffer reverses such as this country has never seen and at a time when we should be enjoying greatest prosperity.

"I have advocated, do favor and have in mind the reorganization of governmental departments under a specific budget plan. The Federal Government is the greatest business of the country and cannot be permitted to continue in haphazard fashion.

"If elected I propose to call to the aid of the Government the best men available in the country. We are in a critical time, when patriotism must rise above partisanship."

Production of Anthracite Normal, with Chance for More

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24.—Current production of anthracite coal is well up to normal, and distribution from the mines is proceeding without interruptions which prevailed last Spring and recently, according to a statement issued tonight by the Anthracite Bureau of Information.

"Existing mild weather has been a great aid in producing and shipping anthracite," the statement said, "and its continuance will be a considerable factor in keeping up the steady output. Given a continuance of average conditions, there will probably be even a little better than average production of anthracite over the remainder of this calendar year. This would indicate a total tonnage at least equal to that of last year, which should mean that under average conditions of distribution among the individual users of hard coal there will be enough to meet requirements."

ARMY SALES ABROAD WERE $822,000,000

E. B. Parker Denies Story That France Got Property Worth a Billion for $4,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Denial that all of the surplus army property in France was sold to France for $4,000,000, or even for $400,000,000, is contained in a letter given to the public tonight by the War Department from Edwin B. Parker of New York, Chairman of the United States Liquidation Committee. Mr. Parker's letter states that the sales of surplus army materials in Europe amount to $822,923,225.82, that of this amount $737,372,000 was realized from stocks located "in" France, and that the stocks sold to France aggregated approximately $532,500,000.

Chairman Parker's letter to the Secretary of War reads:

"New York, Oct. 21, 1920.

"My Dear Mr. Secretary:

"I hand you herewith an article featured in the first page of The New York Herald this morning and call your particular attention to the paragraph I have marked in blue pencil, in which you will note the statement is made that 'Property which had cost this country $1,390,989,302 was disposed of to the French Government for $4,000,000, payable in ten years.'

"I assume that the reporter furnishing the copy lost a couple of ciphers somewhere en route from his mind to the pressroom, and that he intended to print $400,000,000 instead of $4,000,000; but a small matter like a couple of ciphers, even where they should precede six other ciphers, is, of course, of no moment to an ambitious reporter during the closing days of a national political campaign.

"But, be that as it may, had $400,000,000 been used instead of $4,000,000, the figures would still be erroneous.

"The sales of surplus materials in Europe aggregated $822,923,225.82. Of these total sales, stocks located in France sold for approximately $737,372,000.

"Stocks sold to France aggregated approximately $532,500,000.

"It seems impossible to get these figures straight in the minds of our critics, some of whom, at least, do not want the facts. They seem to have the impression that all of the surplus stocks and property located in France were sold to France for $400,000,000.

"It should, of course, be borne in mind that supplies and equipment of the estimated value of $672,000,000 were returned to the United States, and stocks of the value of $10,000,000 were given to the Red Cross. In addition to this, as part of the purchase price for the 'bulk sale,' France waived claims for taxes and customs duties on property imported into France and sold since April 6, 1917, estimated at approximately $150,000,000, and also assumed the payment of rents and claims, approximately 150,000 in number, arising out of American occupation and use of installations and lands.

"Yours very truly,
"EDWIN B. PARKER."

SAYS MEXICO PIPE LINE IS FOR PACIFIC FLEET

Paper in Mexican Capital Asserts Our Shipping Board Is Interested.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 24.—Charges that the United States Shipping Board is indirectly interested in an application now before the Department of Petroleum for an oil pipeline concession across the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, and that its purpose is to secure a ready oil supply for the American Pacific Fleet, are published today by the newspaper Excelsior.

In an article described as a "voice of alarm calling on the Mexican Government to beware," the newspaper asserts that the company making the application, while ostensibly Mexican in its makeup, has representatives of the Shipping Board as members.

The concession first was asked, it is asserted, by a genuine Mexican company, which made application last year. Two other companies besides the alleged Shipping Board organization are stated to have filed applications also.

United States naval strategy, declares the article, demands that the Pacific Fleet secure quick transportation of oil from the Gulf of Mexico fields, and the proposed Isthmus line offers a route many miles shorter than the Panama Canal. British oil monopolies, it is asserted, have limited the United States' activities outside its own borders chiefly to Mexico.

Attention of the Petroleum Department is called to a Mexican law which prohibits the granting of concessions of such a nature to any save Mexicans.

The proposed pipeline would run from Salina Cruz to Puerto Mexico and would cost several million pesos.

Reds Carry Poison Cartridges.

MADRID, Oct. 23.—Three alleged extremists were arrested last night while posting placards calling for violence against employers. The men carried revolvers loaded with cartridges which were filled with poisonous liquid.

FINDS GREEK KING IN GRAVE DANGER

New Specialist Reports He Has Acute Blood Poisoning and Congestion of Lungs.

PREMIER PREPARED TO ACT

NO FOREIGN CANDIDATES

ATHENS, Oct. 24.—The condition of King Alexander today remained most grave. Professor Delbet, the French specialist, arrived today and immediately held a consultation with the other physicians in attendance of the King. physicians in attendance on the King.

The official bulletin issued at 7 o'clock this afternoon said Professor Delbet, after a clinical bacteriological examination, diagnosed the ailment of the King as most acute blood poisoning, coupled with severe congestion of the lungs.

The bulletin declared that the King's condition was very grave.

A bulletin issued last midnight stated that the temperature of the King was extremely agitated, varying from 100.2 to 101.3. The pulse varied from 130 to 148 and respiration from 40 to 48. King Alexander's condition continues grave, the bulletin said, and his physicians remained at the palace throughout the night.

Premier Venizelos when interviewed today said he hoped for King Alexander's recovery, but that it was necessary to be prepared. He believed Prince Paul, brother of King Alexander, would not be prevented from taking the throne by former King Constantine, as Constantine, he declared, would learn from the coming elections that there was no prospect for his return and that it was useless for him to bar his son from the throne.

The Premier asserted that English or French candidates for the throne were not being considered.

If the King dies before Oct. 29 the old Chamber will be reconvened, but if death occurs after that date a new Chamber will be called.

Demetrios Gunaris, former Premier and Minister of War and leader of the Opposition, returns to Greece to stand for election after three years of exile. Gunaris, who is a pronounced supporter of former King Constantine, was among the politicians exiled by the Allies as undesirable before the dethronement of Constantine.

The other exiles returned long ago, but Gunaris remained in Italy, as he was unwilling to face trial.

When a member of the Skuludis Ministry he was accused of treachery toward the allied cause. He now returns after being given formal assurance by the Government of Premier Venizelos that he will not be molested by the police under the warrant previously issued.

Complications Annoy Swiss.

GENEVA, Oct. 24.—The Swiss authorities are becoming somewhat anxious concerning ex-King Constantine's relation to the intrigues of reactionary circles at Athens. Since Alexander's illness Constantine has been receiving daily a large number of telegrams and letters from Athens and Bucharest, but the contents are uncontrollable, as the censorship has been abolished in Switzerland.

The Swiss authorities, however, have indirectly notified Constantine, in order to avoid international complications, that his political intrigues will not be tolerated on Swiss soil.

The ex-King, in the meantime, continues to boast that one day he will return to the throne of Greece, adding that he never abdicated. The propaganda in his favor has been intensified on the Continent.

WON'T TRUST BOLSHEVIKI.

Germans Want One-Third Payment Down on Locomotive Order.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 23.—Fritz Neuhaus, Director General of the Borsig Locomotive Works, denies a story appearing in today's papers dealing with a Russian order for 6,000 or more locomotives and a number of large turbines altogether priced at 600,000,000 gold marks.

Neuhaus admitted that his firm, Krupps and others had been negotiating with the Bolshevist Government ever since February for such orders. Indeed, he admitted that the price mentioned was correct. But no contract has been signed yet, he said. As the principal reason for this Neuhaus mentioned that German concerns demanded one-third payment in advance, because, if this Bolshevist Government should become insolvent or another Government taking its place should repudiate the order, the locomotives could not be used on any other European railways and would represent only so much scrap iron.

Neuhaus hoped, however, that since peace between Russia and Poland had now been made the money advance would soon be forthcoming.

Urge Wrangel to Check Pogroms.

PARIS, Oct. 24 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—The Central Committee of the Russian Cadet Party in this city has sent a telegram to General Wrangel, anti-Bolshevist leader in South Russia, demanding that he check the pogrom movement in the Crimea. The committee also requests the punishment of those responsible for pogroms.

THE SCREEN

To celebrate the first anniversary of the Capitol Theatre this week, S. L. Rothapfel is presenting a program of varied interest. It is not, however, notable for its pictures. Though some of these are interesting, they are overshadowed by musical and dancing numbers, enriched by the stage settings of John Wenger. But as this is a motion picture review, most of its space must be devoted to the screen, so—

After a spirited playing of Tchaikovsky's "1812" overture by the orchestra, and the persuasive singing of three songs by the Russian Cathedral Choir, there comes the always entertaining Capitol News, and then, following "Israel" sung by Elsie Lyon, the first of the featured pictures, "The Art of Diving," with Annette Kellermann illustrating the art. Each movement and position of the diver's performance is brought out by the slow-motion camera, and it is fascinating to observe what the eye ordinarily would miss.

A "Ballet of Flowers," arranged by Alexander Cumansky and led by Mlle. Gambarelli, is an attractive number, enhanced by colored pictures thrown on a transparent screen in front of the dancers. "The Cost of Carelessness," a realistic Prizma picture of a forest fire, follows, and then the photoplay, "Madame Peacock," with Nazimova is the two leading rôles.

This work, which was adapted by Mme. Nazimova herself, and directed by Ray C. Smallwood, claims derivation from a story by Rita Weiman, but whatever Miss Weiman wrote has been used by Mme. Nazimova to display her own virtuosity. The picture is all Nazimova, in various moods and manners, from the extremely simple to the exaggeratedly affected and exotic. She takes the part of an inordinately self-regarding actress who imagines that the world and all its people revolve around her, and also that of her own simple and unaffected daughter, whom she does not recognize and receive until the hour of her humiliation comes. The picture has been richly staged, and several members of its cast do good work, especially George Probert as the regal star's excluded husband, John Steppling as her discerning manager, and Rex Cherryman as the mere author of one of her plays. But "Madame Peacock" will not, therefore, give any one an impression of reality. Spectators may enjoy it, because the extravagant Nazimova is frequently enjoyable, but those who know that she can also impersonate a real character must wish that she would do so soon.

"Such is Life Behind the Scenes of a Circus," a Hy Mayer Travelaugh, accompanied by many and appropriate noises, is amusing, and the program is concluded by Rachmaninoff's "Prelude C Sharp Minor" played on the organ by Melchiorre Mauro-Cottone.

"The Great Redeemer," derived from a story by H. H. Van Loan, and directed by Clarence Brown under the supervision of Maurice Tourneur, is the photoplay at the Rivoli. In some respects it is an exceptional picture. It might have been a great deal better, but, also, it might have been much worse, for its subject lends itself either to inspired treatment or cheap exploitation. "The Great Redeemer," at any rate, is not cheap, and in a few scenes it comes near to being inspired. For the things in it that are good, chief credit must go to Mr. Tourneur. His skill is in making moving picture scenes tell his story, or vital parts of it, and it is safe to say, for example, that a man's entering a prison to serve a long term and his release by pardon have never been more effectively shown than in "The Great Redeemer." Also there must be recognition of the work of House Peters as the story's hero, Marjorie Daw as its heroine, and Joseph Singleton as a condemned murderer. Jack Macdonald, as the villain, has some good scenes, but the excesses of his performance detract from the force of the story.

The crisis of "The Great Redeemer" comes in the prison. A former highwayman, with a talent for sketching, paints a crucifix on the wall of his cell, the figure of which comes to life. The murderer and the highwayman are overwhelmed by the miracle; the whole order of their lives is changed. In this critical scene the work of director, players and camera man is almost faultless, as it must be to save the scene from banality. Whatever one thinks of miracles, and however the strength of the incident in "The Great Redeemer" is weakened by surrounding melodrama, the spectator cannot but be held at the moment of the story's exaltation.

Also on the Rivoli program is a Post Nature Scenic, "As Fancy Paints," which entices one's dulled fancy to paint restful scenes and keep them for a while. Nature and the camera have united to make it charming.

"One Week," a Buster Keaton work, has more fun in it than most slapstick, trick-property comedies.

"The Devil's Garden," with Lionel Barrymore, is the photoplay at the Strand this week, and "The Restless Sex" has moved from the Rivoli to the Rialto.

JULIA ARTHUR TO ACT.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 24.—Julia Arthur, wife of Benjamin Pierce Cheney, once rated as one of Boston's wealthiest men, finds herself forced to return to the stage as the result of reverses in her husband's business enterprises. In a Boston auction room prospective buyers are examining personal art treasures, furniture and knickknacks which once furnished Miss Arthur's palatial home on Calf Island in Boston harbor.

In 1917 Benjamin P. Cheney startled Boston by announcing that he had assigned his estate for the protection of his creditors following the filing of a series of suits and attachments against his property.

Faversham Coming Next Week.

William Faversham will come to the Booth Theatre a week from tonight in Amelie Rives's dramatization of Mark Twain's story, "The Prince and the Pauper." Mr. Faversham will appear as Miles Hendon, and Ruth Findlay will have the dual titular rôle. Others in the cast will include Cecil Yapp, Mary Rehan, Madeleine King and Clara Eames.

Mr. and Mrs. Coburn in "French Leave."

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coburn will be seen at the Belmont Theatre on Monday night, Nov. 8, in "French Leave," a comedy by Reginald Berkeley. The play, which is now running at the Apollo Theatre in London, is being produced here by Marc Klaw, Inc.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

There will be two performances at the Palace Theatre on Election Night, beginning at 7:30 and 11 o'clock. Bert Levy will report election returns.

E. Ray Goetz's new revue, "Piccadilly to Broadway," will be seen at the Shubert-Crescent Theatre in Brooklyn this week in advance of its New York presentation.

MUSIC

By Richard Aldrich

Fritz Kreisler's Recital.

Fritz Kreisler made his first appearance yesterday afternoon in Carnegie Hall before an audience that completely filled the hall and occupied all the space that could be spared upon the platform. It was more than cordial in its greeting of the artist when he first appeared and lavish in its enthusiasm over his playing.

Mr. Kreisler was at his best in a program containing some unfamiliar numbers, the chief of which was Schubert's "Fantasy," op. 159, a work that is practically unknown in the current repertory. It is a long and elaborate composition in several connected sections, among which is an allegretto showing some of the Hungarian influence that has so often beguiled the Viennese composers, and a series of variations—and how often has Schubert done similar things—on his own beautiful song, seldom sung, "Sei mir gegoüsst," which appears in a slightly altered version. Mr. Kreisler played it with sympathy and finely poetic feeling for the Schubertian beauties that are scattered through it and that the Schubertian diffuseness cannot obliterate.

He played also Wieniawski's fourth concerto in D minor, a violinist's concerto, whose musical dullness is no longer concealed, if it ever was, beneath the glittering display of bravado typical of such works. Mr. Kreisler was brilliant in his performance of it, yet not wholly flawless in his intonation. Following this came half a dozen of the lesser pieces that he plays with so much charm, sometimes with more charm than they deserve. There was his own "Introduction and Scherzo Caprice" for violin unaccompanied, a piece richly filled with fancy and captivating effects; an air by Rachmaninoff; Loeffler's arrangement of Chabrier's "Valse Caprice," an arrangement of the "Hindoo Chant" from Rimsky-Korsakoff's opera of "Sadko," which was so popular that he had to repeat it; Godowsky's "Wienerisch," embodiment of the spirit of Viennese dance rhythm, and two caprices of Paganini's, the second of which prompted Brahms to one of his finest series of piano variations.

And then, in response to manifestations of heated enthusiasm, Mr. Kreisler played more, beginning with his "La Gitana," a Spanish movement that he used in his operetta of "Apple Blossoms."

The National Symphony Orchestra.

The second program of the National Symphony Orchestra, played last evening in Carnegie Hall, contained one composition that was as good as new, no doubt, to most of those who heard it—Tschaikowsky's second piano concerto in G. Op. 44. This was played by Mme. Yolanda Merö, a pianist well known in New York.

It is not difficult to understand why the concerto has been heard so much less often than the older brother in B-flat minor, which has been beaten almost threadbare in recent years. Its themes are less taking and also, as it seemed on last evening's rehearing, less musically valuable, less characteristic. The concerto is written with an immense demand upon the virtuoso's powers—and these demands were met with overpowering brilliancy by Mme. Merö, who has the temperament of the whirlwind and endless strength and technical dexterity.

Tschaikowsky's way of driving a short figure relentlessly toward a climax, with all sorts of harmonic devices and with alternating groups of instruments, is repeatedly followed in the two fast movements. The slow movement has an extended passage of no little charm for first violin and first 'cello, into whose intimacy the piano is sometimes admitted. There is an elaborate composed cadenza in the first movement, as in the B flat minor concerto.

The concerto is imposing in its effect, especially when it is played with such bewildering speed and power as it was last evening. There is no reason why it may not be used to enlarge the limited repertory of piano concertos. But it did not seem last evening either "more musical" or "more imaginative" than Tschaikowsky's first published work in the same form.

The orchestral numbers were Beethoven's "Coriolanus" overture and Brahms's second symphony. The overture was impressively played, with strong contrast between the two essential moods of the piece. In the performance of the symphony there was fine poetical feeling, freedom and flexibility of tempo and an obvious attempt at refinement and balance of the orchestral timbres. It was a performance that had much beauty.

RUSSIAN BARITONE HEARD.

Joseph Winogradoff, a mature baritone singer from Russia, instantly recognized as of unusual natural powers, made his first appearance in America last evening before an audience of 5,000 or more that filled every corner of the Hippodrome. He gave in succession three operatic arias, sung in as many different languages, completing the group with the cavatina of Figaro from "The Barber of Seville" in Yiddish, a vernacular unfamiliar to operagoers here, but not so to a great part of his hearers, who made him repeat the air. This was preceded by others from Tschaikowsky's "Pique Dame" in the original Russian and from Meyerbeer's "L'Africaine" in Italian.

The new singer, who is of medium height and sturdy build, has a voice of surprisingly youthful elasticity for his 48 years, and a breadth and volume of tone that, except in lighter passages, easily filled the great hall. His communicative energy, high spirits and native humor were strongly marked traits of popular appeal, especially in a closing group of Jewish folksongs by Milner, Berdichewsky and Bernstein. Arnold Volpe's orchestra accompanied the operatic airs, and also gave selections from Wagner, Tschaikowsky, Moussorgsky, and Mr. Volpe's "Hebrew Intermezzo," which was played for the first time.

Girl Violinist Gives Recital.

Nina Wulfe, a sixteen-year-old violinist, said to have played as a child in Chicago for Frederick Stock and later for Heifetz, who commended her to his master, Auer, here in New York, gave her first recital yesterday afternoon at Aeolian Hall. Of musical heritage, the young girl played with almost a man's strength, the tone verging on roughness, and with a confidence and abandon good to see and good to hear, save in too rash ventures of high harmonic passages in her more ambitious music. With Emanuel Balaban at the piano, she gave the Vitali chaconne, arranged by Charlier; the second concerto of Wieniawski, and two brilliant pieces by Sarasate, as well as a contrasting and quiet group, two of Auer's versions of a Chopin nocturne and Schumann's "The Nut Tree," Kreisler's arrangement of the Paderewski minuet, and Elgar's "La Capricieuse."

Fitziu and Jacobsen at Lexington.

Anna Fitziu sang and Sascha Jacobsen, the violinist, played at the Lexington last night in the sixth of the Sunday night concerts arranged by Misha Appelbaum, who is ill in a hospital. Cantor Bernard Woolff, who was announced in tenor airs, did not appear at the start, though the curtain was held till nearly 9 o'clock in hope of his arrival. Miss Fitziu was heard in a soprano air from "The Daughter of the Regiment" and several English songs, while Mr. Jacobsen gave popular violin pieces, including Cesar Cui's "Orientale," Novacek's "Perpetuum Mobile" and others by Auer and Kreisler.

For President: George M. Cohan

THERE can no longer be any doubt that George M. Cohan is the greatest man in the world. Anyone who can write "The Tavern" and produce it as "The Tavern" is produced places himself automatically in the class with the gods who sit on Olympus and emit Jovian (or is it Shavian?) laughter at the tiny tots below on the earth. In fact, George M. Cohan's laughter is much more intelligent than that of any god I ever heard of, and I don't care if I get struck with a 5,000-volt thunder bolt for saying it.

In "The Tavern" Mr. Cohan has taken what was evidently an exceedingly intense dramatic effort by Cora Dick Gantt, embodying all the familiar situations and lines of the romantic drama and, allowing it to work itself into a fever heat on its own steam for about an act, has then gradually plied it with burlesque hootch until, at the final curtain, it is standing on its head and throwing crockery at itself in an orgy of the most delightful insanity ever seen on any stage.

The process of disintegration is so gradual that during the first act, when wild events are taking place in the tavern and an even wilder storm is raging outside, unsuspecting members of the audience are likely to take it seriously and think that when someone opens the door and, on looking out into the howling wind-machine, says: "Father, no man could ride out on a night like this," or "When I marry, I marry for love!" he really believes that he is saying it for the first time. The opening act is even more delicious than the second, for every line and every situation in it can be either serious or burlesque, according to the individual powers of discernment of the listeners. In the second act even the most naive of the newspaper critics felt the force of the burlesque and commented on it indulgently.

Considerable fault was found with the selection of Arnold Daly for the part of the mysterious stranger around whom centers the whirlwind action of the piece. It was said that he was not young enough, that he shouldn't have tried to be gay and debonair, that he was injudiciously dressed, and so forth. The only gesture on hearing these comments is to raise clenched fists to the sky, and the only reply is to shriek through the teeth. Of course Arnold Daly would not be young enough for the part if it were a serious part, but for the part of a mature madman who thinks he is a Francois Villon, there is probably no one in the world (one has to be extravagant in speaking of "The Tavern"; it is an extravagant event)—there is no one in the world who could have brought the delightful and subtle burlesque romanticism into the play that Arnold Daly brings. Of course he was injudiciously dressed. No two characters in the play were of exactly the same period, a touch which Mr. Cohan tried to make clear to the little ones in the audience by bringing on a sheriff in the last act dressed in modern western garb, whereas the other characters ranged from Bob Acres to Peter Ibbetson in their costuming scheme. Mr. Cohan has every right to be discouraged at the reception accorded "The Tavern" and go back to soft-shoe dancing, which everyone can understand.

But no one missed the fact that Spencer Charters as the Hired Man was supposed to be funny. No one could miss it. He has one of the funniest parts ever written and plays it to perfection. Constantly asking questions which are never answered, he accurately voices the query of the be-jazzed audience in his reiterated demand to be told "What kind of a night is this, anyway?" and "What's all the shootin' for?" That is the big question. What kind of night is this, anyway? And for this section of the audience it may be said that it was the biggest night in its theatregoing career, for it marked the birth of something new on the stage, a gorgeous insanity from which it is to be hoped the drama as an institution will never recover. And if George M. Cohan will run for President, this department will be dedicated to his service.

BIG THREE ELEVENS INCREASE IN POWER

In seasons past it has occasionally happened that football's "Big Three" became the "Big Four" or even the "Big Five," as Pennsylvania or Cornell surged forth with an imposing array of strength for a season or so. Often it has happened that tens of thousands of forefingers pointed at Colgate or Penn State, or Dartmouth, Pittsburgh, Georgia Tech, Centre, Brown, West Virginia, to illustrate how meaningless was the expression "Big Three." And then, as the dust settled and sneers died away, that same trio of elevens have always been observed out there in front, justifying by their power and prestige, as well as by the widespread public interest in their doings, the term usually applied to them and which never fails to cause gnashing of teeth and tearing of hair in some irate quarters.

Harvard and Yale and Princeton have sustained many a defeat at the hands of other institutions, minor because of lesser enrollment and inferior status in the field of higher education. Other universities of the first flight, such as Cornell and Pennsylvania, have beaten them, too, and all these defeats have been good for the victors, the vanquished and for the sport of football. Yet none of these other campuses have ever been able, year after year, to turn out teams worthy of ranking with the wearers of the Crimson, the Blue, or the Orange and Black.

Are in Lead Thus Far.

Attention is called to this point simply because, with the gridiron season of 1920 past the halfway mark, there is pretty good evidence that the strongest elevens of the year, in the East at least, are found among the thoughtful young pupils of Professors Fisher, Jones and Roper. Despite the multitude of silk handkerchiefs proffered to dry the streaming eyes of Tad Jones after Yale's imbroglio with Boston College a week or so ago, it is not believed that his laundry bill will be excessive. And as for Messrs. Fisher and Roper, no one has, as yet, trodden vehemently upon their toes.

Each of these institutions has a powerful squad—of that there is no longer room for the slightest doubt. More than that, each has a well-trained, fast and robust team of first-rate players ready to catapult onto the field in the culminating games now almost at hand. Of the three machines, that of Harvard seems, perhaps, slightly the furthest advanced in smooth-running maturity. Princeton seems about ready for her big battles also, and Yale, slowest to round into form, has now produced substantial evidence of ripeness.

Harvard's first step on the gridiron this season was a trifle tottery, and when Holy Cross held her to a single field goal some anxiety was felt and expressed by adherents of the Crimson. After two easy games Williams was made to look easy by a score of 38 to 0 But Williams is not easy, as that 62 to 0 victory over Trinity on Saturday plainly shows. Ergo, Harvard has much power.

That same power was drawn upon lavishly day before yesterday. It had to be. Centre College sent—or, rather, brought—to the Stadium an eleven of tremendous might, which had played the rôle of juggernaut in all its previous tests. McMillin, Roberts, Weaver, all great names now in gridiron annals, were there, and their mates were measurably well worthy of them. Harvard was played to a standstill for a full half of the game.

Thereafter it was a different story. Fisher drew a sight draft on the reserve strength of his team and it was duly honored. The Cantabrigians grew stronger as the Kentuckians weakened, and the relentless pressure threw the plucky visitors off their balance to the extent of causing them to incur penalty after penalty. They never stopped fighting, but they were opposed by superior power in the line and, despite the splendid McMillin's display, superior speed and prowess in the backfield.

Yes, Harvard looks very good. Virginia will visit the Stadium next Saturday and should advance a sufficient physical argument to keep the Crimson on edge for the debate with the Tigers next week at Cambridge.

Yale's showing against West Virginia in the Bowl was, in some respects, the triumph of the day on Saturday. It was a Blue eleven surcharged with the sympathy and hopes rather than the confidence of its supporters that faced the formidable Mountaineers. But the toxin administered by Dr. T. A. D. Jones, the celebrated osteopath, had done its work since the Boston College game, and the speed, force and grit known to be possessed by the New Haven squad were in evidence against the heavier, huskier men from West Virginia. The latter have no Rodgers this year, and he was the right arm of the eleven. Nevertheless, they were out there trying all the way, but were clearly outclassed in every department.

Colgate and Brown will visit the Bowl before Yale's pilgrimage to Princeton on Nov. 13. Last year this would have sounded like a pretty stiff order even for a hungry Bulldog. This season the Colgate and Brown games seem likely to prove merely hors d'oeuvres for the Elis.

Game Fight by Middies.

Princeton accomplished about the expected in her wrangle with the Navy. The Middies, nevertheless, made a notable stand against a set of Tiger backs of a formidable order. If the backfield of the Annapolis team had measured up to the forwards in effectiveness, the hands of the Princetonians would have been nearly full. As it was, however, there was never any real question of superiority, although there was much evidence that the Navy eleven is slowly finding itself. It will probably be at its best for the annual meeting with the Cadets from West Point.

The Tigers will have their opportunity next Saturday to avenge that 25 to 0 thrashing inflicted upon them by the Mountaineers a year ago. They hope and expect to do so. If they fail in the task they may, in view of what Yale did to those same Mountaineers, look forward with apprehension to the visit of the Bulldog to the Palmer Stadium.

The Quakers may condole with themselves upon having furnished the surprise of last Saturday's gridiron card. Pennsylvania's showing has been rather dismal from the season's outset, and yet a trouncing by a 27 to 7 tally at the hands of the Cadets from the Virginia Military Institute could hardly have been anticipated even by the victors, strong though they knew their team to be. Penn will have to await another season for justification of the result of Heisman's coaching methods there.

Only the size of Cornell's score against unhappy Colgate, and not the victory itself, was cause for comment. The downfall of the Green, outweighed and lacking the services of her captain and other crack players, before the Orange banner of Syracuse was expected, too, as was the defeat of the Golden Tornado from Atlanta by the Pittsburgh Panthers.

Columbia's showing against the alert Wesleyan eleven was a blow which leaves well-wishers of the Blue and White silent. There appears to be no alibi extant to assuage the smart. All that happened was that a better, even if lighter, eleven than Columbia could produce came over to South Field from Middletown, Conn.

That Middlebury should achieve a scoreless tie against the Stevens eleven, unbeaten and not even tied in two campaigns until Saturday was a shock to the Engineers and to the host of admirers gained by the plucky Hoboken team. It might have been worse, however. A defeat by a missed goal, such as N. Y. U. sustained, would have been harder to endure.

THREE CONFERENCE TEAMS UNDEFEATED

Football Honors of Middle West May Depend Upon Last Games of Season.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—The fight for the football championship of the Western conference apparently is developing into another of the bitterly-fought races frequently decided by the last games of the season, which always have characterized the contest for titular honors among the Big Ten teams.

With the season well under way, three undefeated teams now are tied for the lead, but so many contests have been decided by small margins and lucky breaks that football followers have found it impossible to pick less than three elevens as championship favorites.

Saturday's contests left Illinois, Ohio State and Chicago undefeated with two victories each. Their lead, however, was not considered secure, for the first two won by narrow margins and by favorable breaks in the luck of the game against teams showing undenied strength which may result in upsets later, while Chicago has yet to face the stronger elevens of the conference.

Illinois	2	0	Indiana	1	1
Ohio State	2	0	Iowa	1	2
Chicago	2	0	Michigan	0	1
Wisconsin	1	1	Minnesota	0	2
Northwestern	1	1	Purdue	0	2

The outstanding game of the day was the clash between Michigan and Illinois, which Illinois won by a goal after touchdown, 7 to 6.

The victory, although ample for statistical purposes, did not bring the cheer to the followers of Coach Zuppke's eleven which they had hoped for. Michigan led 6 to 0 for most of the game, and lost only when forward passes gave the Indians a touchdown. Then Perrin, Michigan back, got away for an end run on the next to last play of the game, which might have resulted in a touchdown and victory had he not stumbled over the referee.

Ohio State's victory over Wisconsin, 13 to 7, was considerable of an upset, but victory came to last year's runner-up only in the final five minutes of play, when desperate forward passes resulted in two touchdowns.

Although two of the strongest teams—Michigan and Wisconsin—were defeated, they were by no means crushed, and there is little chance of any coach looking upon them as outsiders.

The Chicago-Ohio State contest next Saturday, the first in history between these teams, is expected to clear up the football atmosphere somewhat. Minnesota plays Illinois at Urbana with the psychological advantage of never having lost a game on the Illinois field. Northwestern and Indiana meet in a game of little conference importance, while Michigan and Purdue take on outsiders. The Boilermakers play Wabash, and Michigan has an intersectional game at Ann Arbor with Tulane University of New Orleans.

LAFAYETTE STAR IMPROVED.

Lehecka May Be Able to Play Against Pittsburgh Saturday.

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Pa., Oct. 24.—Joe Lehecka, the sensational halfback of the Lafayette 'Varsity football team, may be in condition to play against the University of Pittsburgh Saturday, according to a statement made tonight by Coach Sutherland. Lehecka, whose great playing in the Annapolis and Pennsylvania games stamped him as of All-American material, was unable to get into his togs last week owing to a bruised leg.

The practice this week will be held behind locked gates. A defensive will be formed for Glenn Warner's aerial attack and the end-running of Davies and Holleran.

Soccer Victory for Paterson Club.

The Paterson Football Club, meeting the Erie A. A. Juniors in the opening round at Paterson yesterday, scored first blood in the cup tie of the American Football Association. After establishing a 3—1 lead by half time, the Paterson team won out by the score of 6 goals to 1.

HARVARD TO REST UNTIL WEDNESDAY

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 24. — The Harvard football team was mighty tired today after Saturday's battle with the Centre College eleven, the team having been pretty much on edge before the game and then going out to play hard football over the whole distance.

There will be only the lightest work tomorrow for those who played as substitutes Saturday and the regulars probably will not even go to the field. Not until Wednesday will there be any hard football for the men who carried the eleven through to victory over the Southerners, but then things will start again in earnest.

Harvard plays Virginia this week, but will not delay its preparation for Princeton, which will be at Cambridge a week from Saturday.

In the Centre game, Hubbard, Churchill and Gaston, three of the most valuable men on the team, were badly used up, and Hubbard's leg may not admit of his playing this week. Churchill probably cannot play much football because of a bad ankle until just before the Princeton game. Gaston has two injuries, the most serious being to his wrist.

Fitts, who did some great kicking before the game, is not likely to be available for the Princeton game, while Sedgwick's condition also is very uncertain. Unless Churchill, Hubbard and Gaston can get back into the game for at least one day's hard work this week the Crimson's plan for getting ready for the Tigers will be severely handicapped.

The eleven improved a lot in its team play against Centre and the return of Captain Horween increased the efficiency of the team 50 per cent. But Harvard needs its regulars badly, for the second string of substitutes does not amount to much.

TIGERS WITHOUT INJURIES

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 24.—The Tigers came through the hard Navy game on Saturday with only minor casualties to report, and Captain Callahan tonight pronounced his men fit for the two weeks of hard work that intervene between now and the Harvard game. Don Lourie, Princeton's sensational quarterback, whose field generalship had so much to do with the Navy's defeat on Saturday, was the only man to be taken out of the game on account of an injury, and his amounted to nothing more than a hard bit of bumping.

In spite of the brilliant and speedy offensive of the Tigers, Coach Roper did not appear pleased with the result. His opinion of the game was summed up in his terse comment as the team went up the Stadium runway after the last whistle had blown: "Today's game was a repetition of those that have been played before this season, in that the scores came directly as a result of individual brilliancy, not of teamwork."

The Princeton coaching staff is still greatly worried over the way in which the Princeton line crumbled before the Navy defense. This was especially apparent in the first quarter, when the Annapolis ends and tackles were stopping the runner before he reached the secondary defense.

"Football is football," said Coach Folwell in commenting on the game, "and the Navy will forget the past and look into the future—which means the battle with the Army, just as sure as the future of the Orange and Black means the struggle with Harvard and that with the Sons of Eli."

A comparison of the ground gaining tactics of the two teams illustrates the different style of play used by each. The midshipmen were far superior in straight football and gained 122 yards through the line yesterday in comparison with Princeton's thirty. The Princeton backs completed five out of six forward passes for a gain of fifty-eight yards, while the Navy made good but four of their seventeen attempts for a thirty-six-yard advance. Nine were grounded, three went wild and one was intercepted. The fast Tiger backs made 101 yards around the wings and the Navy only twenty-seven.

Another point responsible for Princeton's victory came out in the fact that Joe Scheerer's eleven kicks averaged fifty-one yards, eleven more than King's average. Scheerer is playing a much better defensive game than he was at this time last year, and is undoubtedly one of the greatest kickers that ever wore the Orange and Black.

W. & J. SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 24.—Not a great deal of encouragement is taken from the 14 to 0 victory of W. and J. over Lehigh yesterday, except that it demonstrated that the team has become more aggressive and is willing to fight for results, something it failed to do in previous games. But aside from the work of the line, the playing still lacked cohesion that has been sought all year and which, it is realized, must come before the Presidents can hope to cope with Syracuse and Pitt.

Head Coach Morrow frankly admitted his disappointment. While giving Lehigh credit for playing a hard, aggressive game he is of the opinion that his team is good enough to beat it four or five touchdowns, and that is the impression that prevails generally.

One outstanding feature of encouragement was the flashy display given by Wayne Brenkert, back, who relieved West after the latter was injured. The Detroit lad stood out as the best back on the field yesterday, his two sensational runs off tackle which netted 40 yards and which he was forced to negotiate practically without help from his backfield mates making W. and J. victory possible.

Apparently the W. and J. backs will not "take out" men in making interference and the coaches will endeavor to develop this department to the exclusion of nearly everything else during the week. Morrow says his men are all in fairly good shape after the game, and he will stage some terrific scrimmages for at least three days.

KILLINGER NOT BADLY HURT.

But Penn State Gridiron Star May Not Play Against Penn.

Special to The New York Times.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Oct. 24.—Penn State students were overjoyed today to learn that the injury to Glen Killinger in the Lebanon Valley game yesterday was not as serious as was at first supposed. When the plucky Blue and White quarterback was forced to leave the game, it was feared he had received a broken collar bone, but a thorough examination today revealed no broken bones. His shoulder is considerably bruised, however, and the muscles are badly strained.

Trainer Martin hopes to be able to bring Killinger around in time for the game with Penn on Saturday, but admitted that it was doubtful whether the Harrisburg boy would be able to play. His loss will be a severe blow to Coach Bezdek, for since being placed at quarterback Killinger has been one of the stars of the team. If he is unable to play on Saturday, it is probable that Pete Redinger, freshman quarter of last year, will call the signals.

The record-breaking score yesterday has not blinded Bezdek to the mistakes made by the 'Varsity and he will set about remedying them in the few days that remain before the Penn game.

New York Quintet Is Victor.

The New York Separates Basket ball quintet defeated the Yonkers All-Stars yesterday in a keenly played game at Pythian Hall, by the score of 25 to 17. The victorious team led throughout the contest. At the end of the first half the Separates were in front by a score of 12 to 7.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 24.—Yale's application list for the Yale-Harvard game has been insufficient to meet the demand of even the Yale alumni, and it became known today that in many cases the number of tickets to be given would be cut from three to two. The completion of the permanent cement tiers of seats in the bowl is promised for the Harvard game definitely, and rows of temporary seats will be erected around the vast parapet to meet the demand. Yale's entire lot of tickets for the Yale-Princeton game had been applied for before the application period closed last night. Reports from Princeton indicate that the entire Princeton block of tickets also has been taken.

GEORGIA TECH IS DROPPED BY PITT

Southerners Do Not Observe the Usual Eligibility Rules, Is the Charge Made.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 24.—Charles S. Miller, director of athletics of the University of Pittsburgh, tonight gave out a statement that no future football games with Georgia Tech. would be scheduled. He explained that this decision does not exactly constitute a severance of athletic relations with that institution, as the contract between both colleges expired Saturday, when Pitt defeated the Southern team, 10 to 3.

Mr. Miller added, however, that the decision regarding the future was actuated by what he construed as a violation of the contract provisions by the Georgia team in the game Saturday in insisting upon permitting three men who had played more than four years to take part in the game, and also because the usual eligibility rules adhered to by most first class colleges are not observed by Georgia Tech.

These rules provide that every player must be a candidate for a degree and be a resident of the college for one year prior to joining the team. The men against whose playing at Saturday's game objection was made, said Mr. Miller, are Fincher, tackle; Flowers, captain and half back, and John Staton, end.

Several days before the game, Mr. Miller said, he had asked for a conference with the Georgia thletic directors. This conference was delayed until a few minutes before the game Saturday. At this conference, Mr. Miller added, Georgia refused to go on the field if these men were excluded and rather than disappoint the large number of spectators who had already assembled the game was played. At the conclusion of the game, Mr. Miller said, he notified the Georgia managers that no future contract would be entered into.

ARMY PLEASED BY VICTORY.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 24.—Army's easy victory over Tufts yesterday was pleasing to supporters of the West Point eleven. Although Tufts did not display anything like the form which has characterized the Medford collegians in their previous trips here, yet Army followers point to the fact that it was West Point's reserve or mule team in action Saturday and they are satisfied with the result. The keenness which the soldiers displayed in following the ball, a factor which played an important part in three of their four touchdowns, was a feature of the Mules' play that was especially pleasing.

Army's first eleven, which saw Princeton vanquish the Navy at Tigertown on Saturday, will begin tomorrow its drive for the Notre Dame contest, which comes next Saturday. Realizing that this will be the supreme test for the Army, Head Coach Daly and his assistants will devote much attention this week to pointing the Army for the meeting with the Hoosiers. Army wants to win from Notre Dame and will fight hard, but even the most sanguine of the Cadets' admirers admit that Rockne's veteran eleven will be a difficult problem for Charley Daly's green aggregation.

ELIS' BEST TACKLE IS OUT FOR SEASON

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 24.—Yale lost another first-string football player for the season during yesterday's West Virginia game. Tom Dickens, acting captain, wrenched his knee so badly that he is shelved until next year. Dickens was the best tackle on the squad and was also the leader last year. Leon Walker, Bill Mackay, Jack O'Brien and Albert Into will now scramble for the tackle positions, both of which are vacant.

Thorne Murphy slightly sprained his left elbow yesterday and will be unable to play against Colgate next Saturday. Fred Peterson, the emergency halfback whose clever line driving was a big feature, sprained his ankle, but will probably play in the Brown game next week.

Boy Lay, who was regarded a first string back last year until injured, bruised both his arm and his leg yesterday and is now regarded as lost to the team for the second consecutive year because of injury. It was his awkward tackle which injured Carl Beck, the lightning West Virginia halfback. Beck's head was bruised, but he was able to leave here last night with the team for home.

Yale regards the Colgate game as a breathing spell in a hard season, which is fortunate, as none of the team cripples, including Captain Callahan, Acosta, Aldrich, French and Sauerbeck, will be able to line up for two weeks at least. Quaile, third-string guard, will resume scrimmaging this week.

The West Virginia players left a sportsmanlike impression here and were personal guests of the Yale team at their training table. Although the penalties yesterday were more numerous than usual, all were purely technical instead of personal in nature.

TRIAL SPIN ABANDONED.

Gloucester Boat Will Sail for Canada Without Preliminary Test.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 24.—The schooner Esperanto will slip out of this famous old fishing port tomorrow without having been put through any trial spin in preparation for her forthcoming races in Nova Scotia waters with the Nova Scotia fishermen's Delawanna for the supremacy of the North Atlantic fishing fleets. It had been planned to take her out for a short test today, but the fitting and bending on of sails took longer than had been anticipated and it was decided to abandon the trial.

The local lodge of Elks marched down to the waterfront today and presented Captain Marty Welch with two emblem flags to be flown from the masts of the pride of Gloucester fleet. Thousands of sightseers, newspaper men, photographers and motion picture camera men took advantage of the perfect weather to motor into this city, and the wharf was crowded all day with people eager to catch a glimpse of the vessel on which Gloucester and all New England rely to bring back new honors from her invasion of Canadian waters.

Ralph Greenleaf, the pocket billiard champion, will transfer his activities to Brooklyn tonight. He has agreed to play a 150-ball exhibition match against James Lawler at the Lawler Brothers Academy. Lawler claims the championship of Brooklyn and is said to be expert enough to make the champion hustle.

Suits of Blue, Brown and Gray—Special at $50

Occasionally, even in an organization as zealously devoted to value giving as this one, some outstanding value is developed that claims special mention—such an instance is here detailed.

The suits are very special in value—not because we've reduced the price, but because the woolens were purchased before the rise at a lower price than now prevails after the "break"—and we reduced our normal profit when we marked them.

Blue, Gray and Brown—appreciably superior in quality, recognizably correct in Metropolitan styling—worthy of the attention of men who seek economy without sacrifice of their standards of grooming. $50.

REEKIE WINS FINAL IN LIDO TOURNEY

LINKS WORRY NASSAU MAN

William M. Reekie, New Jersey State golf champion, comes from Edinburgh. He learned his golf in that neighborhood, learned to judge the gales which sweep in from the North Sea and swirl around the Firth of Forth. There is little about the treacherous golf links on the east coast of the highland country that he does not know, and all this stood him in good stead yesterday.

On America's counterpart of a truly British seaside course, the Lido Beach Club, near Long Beach, Reekie yesterday played most of his shots as they should be manipulated, smacked his wooden strokes up into the breezes being whipped off the Atlantic, knifed his iron shots and his approaches through the air currents, and with surprising ease won the first Lido invitation tournament ever held. His runner-up was a native American, Gardiner W. White of Nassau. But transplanted, as White was yesterday, to a foreign course, he ran a poor second. Reekie's margin was 6 up and 4 holes to play.

When it wasn't the wind that handicapped White it was his own faulty playing. Lido, probably the most rigidly exacting golf links on this hemisphere, demands straight shots. But White couldn't fulfill this necessity. His principal error was in hooking. Now, the fact is that he can hook fairly safe on his own course, Nassau, for the ball will generally fall on a parallel fairway. But Lido has no such aids to faulty playing. If a ball is pulled or sliced off the line it doesn't drop on rich, verdant, cultivated grass, but in behind sand dunes or in tufts of wiry, treacherous beach weeds. Lido doesn't need any artificial traps or hazards; it has enough natural ones to worry the life out of any average golfer.

Semi-Finals in Morning.

The two-day qualificationless tournament came to an end yesterday afternoon, when finals in all four divisions followed the semi-final matches of the morning. Reekie won his way into the last round by defeating John N. Stearns, Jr., of Nassau, by 5 and 4, while White was winning in the semi-final over Louis Livingston of Westbrook by 7 and 6.

Not excepting the National links or such new golf creations as Pine Valley, Lido stands as a test of perfect golf. In links lingo, "a man must be playing his shots, that's all." Even Reekie set no records in his winning round, but he came nearer to what was demanded of him than did White. Reekie's outward half was made in 40 strokes to White's 46. The Lido record for eighteen holes is a magnificent 75, once shot by George McLean, the young Great Neck home-bred professional.

The cards of the finalists follow, compared to the par:

Out—
Par	4	4	3	5	4	5	5	3	4	—37
Reekie	5	5	3	5	5	5	5	3	4	—40
White	6	4	3	5	6	6	7	4	5	—46
In—
Par	4	4	4	4	3
Reekie	5	5	4	4	3
White	4	4	5	5	4

Lido's first nine holes lay generally along the beach front, several fairways being cut by inlets and channels, and all of them lined by the sand dunes, hummocks raised by tide water, and great wide expanses of beach grass. Both drove into bunkers on the first hole, but whereas Reekie was out on his next, White took two shots in extricating himself and started the round by a loss. Reekie encountered a baffling sand hill on the second, taking three to gain the green to White's two and lost the hole, squaring the match. Two were halved, and then, beginning with the fifth, Reekie won five holes in succession, making the turn for home 5 up.

White topped his tee shot on the 378-yard fifth, and then slammed his third across the green. Even though Reekie took three putts, White lost the hole because of his deviations from the fairway. White's second shot on the long dog-leg sixth hole found more trouble, and although Reekie also was off the course on his second shot, he gained the green on his fourth and took only one putt, a four-footer, which gave him a 5 to White's 6. A fine chip shot saved Reekie his par 5 on the seventh hole after he had pulled his drive, but White also pulled his tee shot, took two getting out, pushed his next over the green and ended up by needing 7 to hole out. By playing short on the eighth and ninth White lost two more.

White Only Three Down.

White started a rally on the incoming half by winning the tenth and eleventh and cutting his disadvantage to three holes. Reekie's second shot on the tenth sailed over the green, and he played his chip shot short, taking 5 to White's 4. The Nassau star played the eleventh as perfectly as anyone could, but Reekie lost distance here by slicing his drive and ultimately lost the hole.

Now 3 up with seven to play, Reekie again settled down to his best form and won three holes in a row, closing the issue. He barely missed a three and one-half foot putt for a birdie three on the twelfth, but won with his 4. He captured the thirteenth when White used up three putts, and then finished his day at the fourteenth, winning it 3 to 4, when White played his pitch off the tee short of the green.

Semi-final Round—William M. Reekie, Upper Montclair, defeated J. N. Stearns, Jr., Nassau, 5 and 4; Gardiner W. White, Nassau, defeated Lewis Livingston, Westbrook, 7 and 6.

Final Round—Reekie defeated White, 6 and 4.

Beaten Eight—Semi-final Round—C. J. Sullivan, Garden City, defeated F. H. Hoyt, Engineers, 2 and 1; A. S. Bourne, National, defeated J. S. Worthington, Siwaney, 5 and 4.

Final—Sullivan defeated Bourne, 1 up.

Semi-final Round—A. C. Gregson, Belleclaire, defeated C. M. Hall, Garden City, 3 and 2; F. W. Pell, Cherry Valley, defeated Lewis Murdock, Nassau, 1 up (23 holes).

Final Round—Pell defeated Gregson, 2 up.

Beaten Eight—Semi-final Round—H. W. Maxwell, Jr., Nassau, defeated Dr. A. T. Haight, Belleclaire, 2 and 1; A. L. Norris, Rockaway Hunt, won from M. J. O'Brien, Oakland, by default.

Semi-final Round—H. W. Brooks defeated Crowell Haddon, 9 and 7; G. C. Miller defeated D. A. Loring, Jr., 2 and 1.

Fourth Sixteen.

Sixty-four in Handball Tourney.

The handball tournament for amateurs under auspices of the Kelton Handball Club will start on the club courts at Fifty-seventh Street and Eighth Avenue this afternoon with an entry list of sixty-four. The club has been admitted into the Metropolitan A. A. U., and the tournament, open to duly registered amateurs, has received official sanction. Many players from the Friars and the Press Clubs are included in the entry list.

FOOTBALL

Football history of the sort that will not be forgotten easily was made at Cambridge on Saturday. When the other victories and defeats of that rather hectic afternoon have been dimmed by time, football followers will still remember, even if only imperfectly, the Harvard-Centre game of 1920. It was a unique contest played under colorful and unusual conditions, with the leading rôle taken by a strange team of players from the Sunny South. This is one invasion, certainly, that Cambridge is not likely soon to forget.

From the technical viewpoint the contest had no more significance than several other battles of the day. It disclosed what had long been suspected—that Harvard has a rugged offense and a considerable amount of power in its backfield. The fact that Centre could score 14 points on a team that has not had its goal line crossed this year is the best tribute of all to Centre's strength as a football team and gives some weight to the team's title of "the wonder eleven." But it should also be remembered that when Harvard rolled up its imposing total of 31 points the Kentucky aggregation was itself being scored on for the first time in two years come Michaelmas. Both teams were powerful scoring machines, and Harvard won by greater power and an ability to wear Centre down to the point of submission.

But all these details are as nothing when compared to the color and the setting of the game. There will be few games played on Soldiers' Field that will equal this one in the spectacular, in those sidelights that make football the great sport it is. The first outstanding fact was that nearly all of Cambridge was rooting for the mysterious colonels from Kentucky, who came on the field clad in strange yellow jerseys and led by the irrepressible and annoyingly confident "Bo" McMillin, who had told Harvard that he would score more points than the entire Crimson eleven. After praying devoutly before the game, the Danville team went out and held Harvard even in the first half. During the intermission between the halves this bizarre aggregation, squatted in the centre of the field and was soundly lectured by Uncle Charlie Moran, its coach. And when even Moran's pleadings finally failed before Harvard's onslaught, there was only regret among the 42,000 who had assembled to inspect this mysterious and likable eleven from the South.

While Centre was being temporarily eclipsed at Cambridge, another unknown from the South—Virginia Military Institute—was flashing a bewildering brand of football that sent John Heisman's Penn team down with a crash. The Virginians combined modern football of a brilliant type with old football of the dependable sort, and taught even the master strategist Heisman some new tricks that had not yet found a place in his considerable repertoire. Is the South sending up another "wonder eleven"? We'll have to wait and see.

TURF

The victory of Cleopatra in the Latonia Championship Stakes was so decisive that there is no doubt she was much the best of the field of crack three-year-olds which sought the rich purse. She proved that she is an excellent performer over a distance of ground and is without question the best three-year-old filly of the year.

But, unfortunately, her victory does not settle the question of which of the three-year-olds is runner up to Man o' War. There is much reason for disputing the claim of the Coe filly. At a mile and three-quarters she is best, but she has been defeated at shorter distances by some of her age which would not have had much chance Saturday against the rivals Cleopatra met, and, moreover, she has been defeated by John P. Grier with a considerable advantage in the weights.

The Latonia Championship, which, of course, did not pretend to settle a championship already held by Man o' War, failed to decide anything definite regarding the other high class horses of that age. At any distance up to a mile and a quarter either John P. Grier or On Watch can undoubtedly defeat the filly at scale weights, so Cleopatra will be regarded only as a superior performer at distances of a mile and a half and upward.

Cleopatra has an advantage in that she has been reserved all season for tests of this kind, while most of the other three-year-olds have been running in sprints and mile races. There are so few races at a mile and a half or more in this country that few owners and trainers care to prepare their horses for them, but the Latonia management has made a very good start with a race which is bound to attract more good horses each year and which will eventually help to popularize distance racing. A few more events of this kind will make an incentive to trainers to fit horses for long races and the breeding industry will then begin to accomplish its real object.

BOXING

Those dwellers in the community of New York, and also the State bearing the same label, who have the real interests of the sport of boxing at heart—which classification includes all those who know what genuinely fine exercise and spectacle the game affords when properly conducted—are quick in their appreciation of the action of the commission in inflicting speedy penalties the other day upon four boxers guilty of infringement of the legal and ethical tenets of clean sportsmanship. The quartet of pugilists whose misdeeds called forth the bolts of the Johnson tribunal had erred in four different ways. One case condemned by the board involved a charge of foul fighting. Another youth was punished for quitting under fire, and a third for lack of caution in the language used when disqualified by the referee. The fourth boxer was ten pounds over the weight at which he had contracted to enter the ring.

It was not only eminently proper, but it was necessary that these infractions of the statute provisions designed to guard and preserve the sport should lead to punishment, and that right speedily, for the sake of the lesson to be drawn therefrom by a lass, many of whom need frequent lessons—namely, the pugilists themselves. In the days when unsavory conditions, due to equally unsavory managers and promoters, were being allowed to throttle boxing hereabouts an unhappily large proportion of the boxers acquired the idea that the game was a shady one, to be practised in the shade, and that they could very well dispense with real sportsmanlike standards. If there are any holdovers from this régime—and there are—they must be speedily taught that a new day is dawning for the game which they have chosen as theirs, and that in its light the evil tactics tolerated or smiled upon before will attract chastisement as soon as the rod can be brought.

As for the promoters who were chiefly responsible for the disrepute into which boxing was allowed to fall, it is to be hoped that none of them will be allowed to creep back into the game in any guise. Even though they protest reformation, it is likely to be with the tongue in the cheek, and the clean-cut manhood responsible for the revival of the sport and for its auspicious launching cannot afford to take chances with men of the type mentioned.

BASEBALL

Unusual quiet pervades the baseball front as two opposing factions spread their lines for a contest that may write a most important chapter in the sport's history. This is a bit unusual, as the public usually is surfeited with belligerent statements and communications whenever the moguls of the national game engage in anything approximating a real fight. The quietude may indicate that the supposed bomb, in the shape of a twelve-club league, will turn out to be simply a dud.

It is to be hoped that such will be the result of the latest upheaval in the baseball world, since followers of the game have had more than their fill of warring by the magnates. The public prefers the eight-club league system as it has prevailed for several years, with its interleague rivalry, and finally a world's series each Fall as a climax to the season. A twelve-club arrangement necessarily has its drawbacks and it would be some time before the fans would become accustomed to the new order of things.

On the other hand, it cannot be denied that evil conditions sometimes arise which cannot be eradicated without drastic changes and no little sacrificing on the part of those most interested. This seems to be true of baseball at this time. The failure of the Presidents of the two major leagues to settle upon a National Commission Chairman has weakened the game and turned into chaos a government that had functioned well before petty politics became paramount. A rearrangement is much to be desired, and if it cannot be brought about without the formation of a twelve-club league such a drastic move will be welcomed.

As the case stands at this time those opposing the proposed changes are decidedly in the minority, and their refusal to confer with the majority club owners in order to help along the sport has swayed public opinion to the side of the magnates who recognize the need of changes. In one league the executive is a leader in the fight for reorganization, while in the other organization five club owners are taking the stand that the plan is to oust Ban Johnson, and therefore they rally to his support. Both leagues will be affected similarly by whatever reorganization plan the club owners may adopt.

There is still time for a settlement of the difficulty in a friendly manner. The club owners demanding a change continue to serve notice on the opponents of the reorganization plan that the door is open for them, and that their counsel will be welcomed in reaching a decision. It is to be hoped that the so-called Johnson faction will realize what the public expects of it, join with the majority and put baseball on a stronger basis than it ever has been, instead of remaining defiant and thereby helping to bring about a baseball war. The game is bigger than any man or group of men in it and it can survive more wars, as it survived those of the past. What it needs at this time, however, is more co-operation and less politics among club owners and officials.

The announcement that Alfredo de Oro intends to come out of retirement and play in the national three-cushion billiard championship tournament at Chicago next month will be welcome news to the followers of the sport everywhere. For a span of a great many years, until he quit public competition a little more than a year and a half ago, de Oro was one of the most brilliant lights in the cue constellation. His expertness at the angle game and at pocket billiards earned for him the sobriquet of "Old Master." Once he held both the three-cushion and the pocket billiard championships at the same time. At various other periods during his career he held one of the other of the titles.

A year ago last Spring he announced his retirement from public competition. His decision was reached after Robert Cannefax had beaten him in a three-cushion championship match in this city. Since that time the veteran Cuban has steadfastly refrained from playing in anything but private matches. These were played purely for the love of the sport. This season, however, the lure of the green cloth was too strong to be longer resisted. De Oro began practicing, and when he found that his stroke was just as good as ever he determined to launch an offensive by which he hopes again to attain the billiard heights.

Before going West it is probable that de Oro will give himself a formal workout in public. At this writing he is seriously considering playing a 300-point match in New York against Ralph Greenleaf, the world's pocket billiard champion. Until this was learned it was not generally known that Greenleaf was a three-cushion player—that is, it was not known that he took the game seriously. It was thought that he played it just as Willie Hoppe, the balkline king, has played it, purely for amusement. It has developed, however, that Greenleaf is quite adept at the angle game. In this way, then, this exhibition will serve a twofold purpose. In the first place it will show whether de Oro still maintains the mastery of the ivories that was once his and it will show Greenleaf in an entirely new rôle. Perhaps Greenleaf entertains ideas of some day holding both titles as de Oro once did. The match should serve to establish the pocket billiard champion's status as a carom player.

David McAndless, the former national amateur balkline billiard champion, has left for San Francisco to engage in the preliminary round of the national championship tournament there. The players who finish first in this event will qualify to play Willie Hoppe in this city for the title. McAndless turned professional two weeks ago. He is the third former amateur champion to go in quest of the professional title in recent years. His predecessors were Calvin Demarest and Joseph Mayer. Neither of them succeeded. McAndless will have to show greatly improved form over what he displayed in his recent exhibition matches in this city if he is to earn the right to play against Hoppe.

By defeating the crack soccer eleven of the Disston Athletic Association of Philadelphia, by 2 goals to 1, at New York oval yesterday, the New York Football Club re-established itself in the good graces of Metropolitan followers of the game and at the same time gained two more points in the championship series of the National Football League. The visitors, however, furnished a fine exhibition for the large crowd and led at half time by 1—0.

After twenty minutes of play, Cleary, Disston's inside left, netted the ball off a pass by Andrews. New York had to play second fiddle until five minutes after the restart, when Bleich fed up to McDonald on the right. The latter crossed to McGreevey, who passed to Bell, the last named reaching the Quakers' goal with a hard, low drive. With fifteen minutes to go, Meyerdierks kicked down the field. Bell and Bustard advanced the ball and Hardy, getting possession, whipped it smartly into Disston's net.

The line-up:

NEW YORK (2).		DISSTON A. A. (1).
Derham	G.	Ness
Kelly	R. B.	Fleming
Gilfillan	L. B.	Morrison
Mackie	R. H.	J. Kirkpatrick
Bustard	C. H.	Napier
Meyerdierks	L. H.	W. Kirkpatrick
McDonald	O. R.	Andrews
Hardy	I. R.	Blair
Bell	C.	Hossack
Bleich	I. L.	Cleary
McGreevey	O. L.	McEwen

Goals—Bell, Hardy, Cleary.

Tebo Yacht Team in Soccer Tie.

The Tebo Yacht Basin soccers, who furnished a sensation in the U. S. F. A. cup competition by eliminating the New York Football Club, had to be content yesterday with a draw against the eleven of the Brooklyn Football Club in the New York State Football League at the Ridgewood baseball grounds. The score was 1 to 1.

All-Leaguers Win, 4 to 3.

Special to The New York Times.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Oct. 24.—A team of major and minor league balltossers, with Al Schaight of the Washington American League pitching and Pichinich of the same club catching, defeated the Pond Tool Works nine, 4 to 3, in an exhibition game here today. Tone Denny, a local pitcher, held the All-Leaguers to eight hits and fanned nine men.

SOCCER TEAMS DEADLOCKED

Robins Dry Dock and Erie A. A. of Newark Play 1 to 1 Tie.

Todd Field in Brooklyn had one of the best soccer attractions yesterday in the National League fixture between Robins Dry Dock and the Erie Athletic Association of Newark, which resulted in a 1 to 1 tie.

The Jerseymen were the first to tally when, midway in the first half, Brown on the left crossed to Heminsley, who reached the Robins' net. The Eries led by 1—0 at half time.

Harry Ratican, Captain of the American team that visited Sweden, equalized the score off a pass by McKelvey, the outside right in the Robins' lineup, fifteen minutes from the end.

The lineup:

ROBINS D. D. (1).		ERIE A. A. (1).
Renzulli	G.	Ward
Ross	R. B.	Ingram
Brownlee	L. B.	Post
Pepper	R. H.	T. Stark
Beardsworth	C. H.	Cooper
Sundberg	L. H.	Blakey
McKelvey	O. R.	Ford
McGuire	I. R.	A. Stark
Ratican	C.	Koelsch
Hosie	I. L.	Heminsley
McKenna	O. L.	Brown

Goals—Heminsley, Ratican.

ASTORIA BEATS MANHATTAN

Astoria soccers won again in the Metropolitan Football League's championship series at Astoria yesterday, but only after a stubborn resistance on the part of the Manhattan F. C., which was eventually defeated 3—2.

Honors were divided in the first period of play, Lynch scoring first for Manhattan. Frost equalized and Moffat placed Astoria in the lead. Luckor in turn evened the score for the visitors and, when ends were changed, the figures were 2—2. For twenty-five minutes thereafter the teams struggled vainly to break the deadlock, which feat was at last accomplished by Haupt of Astoria.

The lineup:

ASTORIA (3).		MANHATTAN (2).
O'Leary	G.	Heiser
Wilson	R. B.	Kratz
Hart	L. B.	Nusbaum
Reid	R. H.	Gall
Stahl	C. H.	Costa
Lee	L. H.	Gallagher
Haupt	O. R.	Bianco
Moffat	I. R.	Lynch
Frost	C.	Luckor
Shaw	I. L.	Kiehl
Kay	O. L.	Reishman

Goals — Frost, Moffat, Haupt, Lynch, Luckor.

WEST POINT TEAM WINS POLO VICTORY

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Oct. 24.—The polo season on the Gedney Farm Field closed this afternoon with a game between Gedney Farms and the West Point four, the latter again demonstrating its superiority by winning by a score of 14 to 8.

The first half ended in a tie with the score of 4 to 4. The West Point team played very loosely but found itself in the second half, and by clever teamwork easily ran away from its opponents.

The West Points were the winners of the tournament and today's game was for a special cup. There was a very large audience and the army four brought a very large delegation along with it.

CHANGE IN BOXING BILL.

Puryear Unable to Meet Goldstein at Commonwealth Club.

An eleventh-hour change has been made in the boxing bill to be offered at the Commonwealth Sporting Club tomorrow night, as a result of the announcement that Earl Puryear of Denver, who was to have met Abe Goldstein, Harlem bantamweight, in the principal bout at fifteen rounds, will be unable to compete. A cut over his eye, sustained in his recent bout with Pal Moore, prevents Puryear from returning to the ring at this time.

The club management stated last night that in place of this bout a ten-round match between Frankie Jerome and Johnny Wallace, both Harlem bantams, would be added to the card. The other ten-round bouts, already announced, will be between Harvey Bright and Frankie Edwards and Frankie Rice and Georgie Brown.

Annunciation Wins at Basket Ball.

The Annunciation A. C. basketball team added another victory to its list yesterday by defeating the Columbia five in a close and exciting game at Ebling's Casino, by a score of 48 to 46. A rally in the final few minutes of play brought victory to the Annunciation quintet. Both teams battled on practically even terms until the second half was nearing completion, when the Annunciation team scored the baskets which brought victory. At the end of the first half the Columbia aggregation led by 25 to 24. Stanley and Kennedy were the most potent factors in the Annunciation triumph, and Taleferio and Houlihan starred for the Columbia five.

CUMMINGS WINNER IN HANDICAP RACE

The lid was lifted off the local road running season yesterday when the Harlem and Heights Athletic League conducted a handicap chase over a course of about four and one-half miles under the auspices of the Glencoe A. C. A field of twenty-nine harriers started in the grind and all but three finished.

William Cummings, Alpha P. C. C. emblem wearer, who formerly competed for the University of Pennsylvania, carried off the premier laurels of the race. Cummings, with the aid of a handicap of 2 minutes 30 seconds, showed the way over the finish line, leading Albert Sands, Morningside A. C. and C. C. N. Y. runner, by a matter of fifty yards. P. Hecht of the Glencoe A. C. was third.

Cummings did his greatest running in the closing mile. He went to the front of the field at about the three-mile mark, displacing G. Baulsir, Harbrook Heights A. C., a limit handicap starter, as pacemaker. Over the final mile and a half Cummings raced at an even pace and at a clip which discouraged attempts to overhaul him. Sands weakened in the last quarter mile and gradually lost ground to his colored rival. Cummings's actual time for the journey was 24:26. Sands was clocked in 24:18 from the 3:15 mark.

C. McCann, Morningside A. C. veteran, made the race the occasion for his first competition in eight years. McCann was a member of the old Winged M team which in 1912 won both the metropolitan and national junior hill and dale titles. He was allowed 2:45 against his younger rivals, and finished twelfth in the actual time of 25:02. His position at the finish earned him a place on the Morningside team, which led in the point battle with 30 tallies. The Glencoe A. C. was second with 32 and the Harbrook Heights A. C. finished last with 58 points.

Eddie Weiman, Morningside A. C. distancer, carried off the fast time laurels. Weiman started from scratch and finished tenth in the actual time of 22:15.

Pos.	Name and Club.	Hdcp.	Actual Time.
1	W. Cummings, Alpha P. C. C.	2:30	24:26
2	A. Sands, Morningside A. C.	3:15	24:18

TIKKA WINS PENTATHLON.

Has Low Total of Ten Points in Finnish-American A. C. Games.

A. Tikka carried off the Pentathlon championship of the Finnish-American A. C. yesterday in the annual test, held at Macomb's Dam Park. Tikka, in the five events conducted, compiled the low winning score of ten points, a margin of one point lower than the total of W. Nappa, who finished second with eleven tallies. L. Renporo was third, with fourteen points. The events which comprised the test included the discus, 12-pound shot-put, 440-yard run, running hop, step and jump and running broad jump.

In addition to the Pentathlon competition, a three-mile handicap run was conducted, in which Otto Laukka raced to victory. Laukka started with a handicap of 2 minutes 45 seconds, and broke the line a winner in 17:57. A. Koskinen, who started with a similar handicap, was second, and W. Ritola, the scratch starter, finished third. Ritola scored the fastest time when he covered the twelve laps in 15:12.

TUNNEY TO MEET SAMPSON.

Much-Postponed Bout to Take Place Tonight in Paterson Ring.

The much postponed twelve-round bout between Gene Tunney, Greenwich Village heavyweight, and Paul Sampson of Harlem, will be conducted this evening in the Sixth Regiment Armory, Paterson, N. J. This contest was originally scheduled for the open-air arena at the Armory A. A., Jersey City, but inclement weather forced three cancellations.

Two other bouts will be conducted in addition to an exhibition in which Georges Carpentier, European heavyweight champion, will demonstrate his skill on Italian Joe Gans. Jimmy Duffy, west side lightweight, will engage Gene Delmont of Memphis in a ten-round struggle, and Ralph Brady, Syracuse lightweight, and Willie Herman will clash in another ten-round encounter.

Holy Name Big Five Winner.

The Holy Name Big Five defeated the Parsons Big Five in basket ball yesterday afternoon at the Manhattan Casino by a score of 27 to 13. Garland and McDermott were the principal scorers for the winners, the former netting four baskets while McDermott scored three. Driscoll and Wassmer caged two apiece. Acker played a good defensive game. For the losers, the goals were scored by Burns and Hoey, with Baker, Wallack and Butler participating in a scoring of goals from fouls.

Shipyards Soccer Eleven Wins.

The Federal Shipyards soccer team easily vanquished the Bunker Hill eleven of Paterson by 8 goals to 1 in the first round of the annual cup competition of the American Football Association at Clark's Field, Newark, yesterday. The Feds scored first after twenty minutes of play, and soon after Gleason equalized for Bunker Hill. From then on the victors had it all their own way. Richardson shot four goals, M. Jamieson, two; S. Jamieson, one, and Field, one.

ESSEX NET TITLE GOES TO OELSNER

Victors' Superior Teamwork Decides Issue—Mrs. Mills and Emerson Take Mixed Doubles Honors.

Edward Oelsner of Montclair won the tennis championship of Essex County, New Jersey, yesterday afternoon, defeating Gerald Emerson of Orange and Columbia University in the final round in a four-set match scored 6—3, 3—6, 6—3, 6—3, thereby gaining the first holding of the new challenge cup. The doubles championship, also contested yesterday afternoon, went to Leonard W. Knox and Anton Von Bernuth, who won the final from Oelsner and L. Gwynne French at 6—4, 6—0, 3—6, 6—0. In the mixed doubles the honors went to Mrs. D. C. Mills and Gerald Emerson. They won an evenly contested match from Miss Ceres Baker and C. E. Cameron, Jr., in three sets scored 4—6, 6—0, 6—4.

Oelsner's powerful forehand drive was his most effective weapon against Emerson's well-rounded net game. The Montclair man never let up in the speed of his driving from start to finish of the match. Emerson depended largely upon his skill in volleying and overhead, taking the net at every opportunity, and these tactics kept him on even terms with his more experienced opponent through the first two sets. For a time it looked as though he had Oelsner on the run, but the latter is at his best when things seem to be going against him. He has an almost Tilden-like capacity for raising his game to its highest possibilities at such times as he stands in greatest need of the points. Though Emerson continued his excellent volleying at the barrier, Oelsner was the master at all times in the last two sets, repeatedly manoeuvring the Columbia star out of position and then sending through the finishing shots with unerring aim.

In the doubles, Oelsner and French had no easy task reaching the final at the expense of Bennett and Roche. They won, 6—3, 6—8, 8—6, but they were in danger all through the third set. Bennett and Roche were twice within the match point, but faltered with victory in their grasp. Knox and Von Bernuth gained an impressive victory in the semi-finals over Philip Vandeventer and R. M. Kirkland, whom they defeated in straight sets, 6—3, 8—6, the second set producing some of the best doubles play of the tournament. The winners continued their excellent teamwork and fast individual play in the final, while Oelsner was obviously tired from his exertions in the other doubles match and in the singles, and his partner's game is never so effective in team play as in the singles. Oelsner and French staged a rally in the third set, which they won at 6—3, but they fell off decidedly in the next and final set, which Knox and Von Bernuth captured at love.

The mixed doubles final brought together two well matched pairs in Mrs. Mills and Emerson, winners of the Englewood tourney last Summer, and Miss Baker and Cameron, youthful Orange players whose games have great promise. The losers made the struggle even closer than the set scores indicate, and Mrs. Mills and Emerson had to fight to the limit for every point. In a large proportion of the games, the points went to deuce.

The summaries:

Singles—Final Round—Edward Oelsner defeated Gerald Emerson, 6—3, 3—6, 6—3, 6—3.

Doubles—Semi-final Round—Edward Oelsner and L. G. French defeated R. P. Bennett and August Roche, Jr., 6—3, 6—8, 8—6; L. W. Knox and A. F. Von Bernuth defeated Philip Vandeventer and R. M. Kirkland, 6—3, 8—6.

Final Round—Knox and Von Bernuth defeated Oelsner and French, 6—4, 6—0, 3—6, 6—0.

Mixed Doubles—Final Round—Mrs. D. C. Mills and Gerald Emerson defeated Miss Ceres Baker and C. E. Cameron, Jr., 4—6, 6—0, 6—4.

HIGHER GAME FEE SOUGHT.

New Jersey League Wants Fifty Cents Added—Means More Quarry.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 24.—That the effort to secure more funds for fish and game propagation and protection in this State will be continued this Winter is indicated by the action of the New Jersey Fish and Game Conservation League, the State organization of hunters and anglers, which has written all nominees for legislative office asking their attitude toward a proposed increase of 50 cents in the resident's license fee.

Apropos of the letter and the endeavor to raise more money, Kenneth F. Lockwood, President of the league, said:

"The State Fish and Game Commission has declared that with the revenue from the small increase of 50 cents a year it would be able to more than double its present output of fish and game. That prospect, entirely aside from the fact that more funds are needed to meet increased costs of production, leads the league strongly to favor the higher license fee. Although we represent thousands of hunters and anglers all over the State, we have heard nothing but approval from them. Indeed, several of our clubs suggested a $2 license fee—and they are not 'rich men's' clubs, either.

"The league cannot believe that there are in New Jersey any men seriously interested in fishing and hunting—red-blooded men—who would object to paying half a dollar a year more for a more than doubled output of fish and game and to permit a State department adequately to fulfill the other duties for which it was created. If there are, we should like to hear from them, to get their viewpoint."

That the cost of fish and game propagation and protection has increased with the cost of everything else is an open-and-shut proposition. It is equally plain that the constantly growing population and the wider use of the automobile—to mention only two factors—make unusual efforts necessary in order to maintain worth-while sport in this State. Therefore, reason confirms the statement of the Fish and Game Commission that more funds are needed properly to administer the department.

The logical way to secure these funds, since the State makes no appropriation for the work, is by an increase in the sportsmen's license fee. This plan has found wide favor among the hunters and anglers themselves, who realize that the benefit of the increase would be returned to them in the more effective work of the department.

This league, composed of twenty-five leading clubs in fourteen counties and, besides, individual members in nearly 150 communities, representing, in all, between 9,000 and 10,000 outdoorsmen, has gone on record as unanimously indorsing the proposal.

Naturally, we are interested in the possible attitude of the forthcoming Legislature on this subject and we are, therefore, putting to each of the nominees the following question:

"What will be your attitude, if elected to the State Legislature, toward a measure purposing to increase the resident hunting and fishing license fee from $1.15 to $1.65?"

For your information please let us say that such a bill passed the Assembly last year by a vote of 51 to 6, but was not brought to a decisive ballot in the Senate.

Will you please let us hear from you as soon as possible?

WALKER-M'BEATH TEAM WINS RACE

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 24.—Cecil Walker and Alex McBeath, two strong young bicycle riders from Australia, won the 100 kilometer (62½ mile) team race at the Velodrome here this afternoon. This is the first season these two Australians have ridden in America and their performance today stamps them as two of the best distance riders astride a bicycle. Percy Lawrence and Willie Coburn were second, with Frank Kramer and Reggie McNamara third.

Alfred Goullet and Jake Magin finished in fourth place and fifth honors went to Pete Drobach and Fred Weber. John and Menus Bedell were sixth, Gus Lang and Lloyd Thomas seventh and Ted Byron and Alfris Verraes eighth.

The race was run on a point basis with a sprint every two miles for points. There were thirty-one sprints in all. First place in each sprint counted seven points, second three points, third two points and fourth one point.

Up to the forty-sixth mile Kramer and McNamara were leading and they were battling with the team of Goullet and Magin to hold the lead. With these two star teams pretty tired from sprinting, the teams of McBeath and Walker, Lawrence and Coburn, Drobach and Weber went out and lapped the field.

Due to the race being scored on a point basis this did not give them the first three places. It did, however, give them first three places in each of the remaining eight sprints without battling for them. McBeath and Walker just sat in and saw to it that they beat the teams of Coburn and Lawrence and Drobach and Weber each time. This was all they had to do to win the race.

Kramer and McNamara had been riding wonderfully well up to the time the field was lapped. They chased hard after the three teams that went out for a lap, but could not do it all and as a result were lapped with the rest of the field.

The summaries:

One-hundred Kilometer (62½ Miles) Team Race (Pro.)—Won by Alex McBeath and Cecil Walker, Australia, 83 points; Percy Lawrence, San Francisco, and Willie Coburn, Newark, 68 points, second; Frank Kramer, East Orange, and Reginald McNamara, Australia, 55 points, third; Alfred Goullet, Newark, and Jacob Magin, Irvington, 43 points, fourth; Peter Drobach, Boston, and Fred Weber, Irvington, 42 points, fifth; Gus Lang, Irvington, and Lloyd Thomas, San Francisco, 18 points, sixth; Ted Byron, Australia, and Alfris Verraes, Belgium, 17 points, seventh. SIX-DAY RACE PLANS.

Final plans for this year's six-day bicycle race will be completed this week at a meeting of the officials in charge of the annual grind. The amount of purse money to be distributed will be determined at this meeting and other details discussed. It is understood the riders in this year's race will strive for the greatest purses ever offered in the six-day whirl about the Madison Square Garden oval.

Tex Rickard, Garden promoter, the National Cycling Association, John M. Chapman of the Newark Velodrome, and Charles H. Hanson, Brooklyn promoter, have joined forces in the promotion of the race. It has been definitely settled that the grind will be held during the week commencing Dec. 5 in the Garden. The customary sprinting events will be held preceding the opening of the six-day event.

Already plans have been completed for the entrance of ten foreign teams. Maurice Brocco and Oscar Egg, with Buysse and Spiessens, are among the riders already reported under contract for the coming race.

Whiteman to Manage Houston.

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 24.—George Whiteman, former Boston Red Sox outfielder, and star of the 1918 world's series, will manage the Houston club of the Texas League next season, it became known here today. Whiteman, a former Texas League player, has been with the Toronto Internationals for two seasons.

RICHARDS CAPTURES ANOTHER NET TITLE

Vincent Richards added the singles title of the New York Tennis Club to his long list of championships yesterday afternoon, defeating Allen Behr, his former doubles partner, in the final round of the club tournament on the courts at 238th Street and Broadway. The victory went in straight sets, 6—2, 6—1, 6—3. Behr played his customary aggressive tennis, but Richards knows every angle of his game, and was able to force him out of position whenever he chose. The young Fordhamite won practically as he pleased.

The club title in doubles was won by Albert J. Ostendorf and Francis T. Hunter, who defeated Richards and C. A. Anderson by scores of 6—4, 7—5. Nearly every rally in this match brought lightning exchanges, with little to choose among the four. Hunter and Ostendorf directed a majority of their shots in Anderson's direction, but the latter stood up well under the battering and played steady tennis.

In the club's handicap tournament in singles F. G. McMann won the final from Elmer M. Cleveland in a long-drawn-out tussle, which went the five-set limit. The scores were 6—3, 6—2, 2—6, 3—6, 6—1. Cleveland had a handicap of half fifteen over his rival.

Miss Margaret Grove won the women's singles championship of the club from Mrs. Edward V. Lynch in another of those endurance battles in which these two players are accustomed to engage. The result was an exact reversal of their recent match at Sunningdale, which Mrs. Lynch won by a margin equally slight. The scores yesterday in Miss Grove's favor were 12—10, 3—6, 8—6. The match occupied nearly the entire afternoon and both were near exhaustion at the finish from the long drill in backcourt covering.

The mixed doubles final also produced a close match. In this Mrs. Gouverneur Morris and Alex Iler defeated J. Harry Steinkampf and Miss Margaret Grove, 1—6, 8—6, 6—4.

CYCLISTS ARE WARNED.

Suspension Will Follow Competition in Unsanctioned Six-Day Race.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 24.—A warning to bicycle riders not to compete in any six-day race in New York City other than the Madison Square Garden event, which will receive official sanction for the week of Dec. 5 to 11, was issued here today by Richard F. Kelsey, Chairman of the Board of Control of the National Cycling Association, which governs amateur and professional cycling in this country. A similar event has been scheduled for the week of Nov. 21-27 at the Twenty-second Regiment Armory.

"Announcement is made officially by the National Cycling Association, under whose sanction and rules cycle racing is conducted in this country, that the only six-day team race that will receive official sanction in New York is the one to be held in Madison Square Garden Dec. 5-11 inclusive. Any registered riders competing in any six-day race in New York City other than the one held in Madison Square Garden will be automatically suspended from competition under National Cycling Association rules."

Tyrconnell Celts Win at Soccer.

After a fierce struggle in the Metropolitan Football League match at Woodside, L. I., yesterday, the Tyrconnell Celts gained the upper hand over the soccer eleven of the Woodside A. C. by the score of 1 to 0. There was no scoring in the first half. Vaughan, off a pass by Dugan, shot the goal that brought victory to the Celts. C. Ferro, former New York F. C. goalkeeper, donned a referee's uniform for the first time and acted acceptably in that capacity.

Mrs. Stenz Wins Tennis Final.

Mrs. B. F. Stenz, one of the leading women tennis players of Long Island, won the women's tournament at the Notlek Courts, 119th Street and Riverside Drive, yesterday afternoon. She defeated Mrs. J. W. Farden, women's champion of Yonkers, in straight sets, scored 6—1, 8—6. The finalists survived a field of thirty-two entries.

MANY ENTRIES FOR FOXHALL FARM CUP

The Foxhall Farm Cup, to be competed for next Saturday, at Foxhall P. Keene's farm, Monkton, Md., promises to be the sportiest as well as the most novel race ever held in this country. The conditions of the race call for entries by recognized hunt clubs of the United States, each club to nominate three horses, and the winner is decided by the lowest score attained by these three horses, which means that all three of the entrants must finish the course.

More than 1,000 invitations have been issued, and acceptances have been received from between six and seven hundred from the prominent social and hunting sets of Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and New York. Governor Albert T. Ritchie, of Maryland, is the presiding honorary steward, the board of stewards being composed of prominent men of New York, Baltimore and elsewhere.

The course can be reached by motor from Baltimore and Philadelphia, by rail from the Union Station, Baltimore, or from Broad Street Station, Philadelphia, where special conveyances will meet the patrons and convey them to the course. The race is scheduled for 3:30 P. M.

There are thirty-six horses entered by the following hunt clubs: Harford Hunt (two teams), Essex Hunt (two teams), Rockaway Hunt, Elkridge Hunt, White Marsh Hunt, Radnor Hunt, Meadowbrook, Pickering Hunt and Cheshire Hunt.

The honorary patrons are: Governor Albert T. Ritchie, John Sanford, H. K. Knapp, J. E. Cowdin, Devereux Milburn, S. D. Riddle, Charles Mather, Frank Carolan, Redmond Stewart, Spalding Lowe Jenkins, William H. Hazzard and H. L. Herbert.

The sign of a reliable dealer and the world's best Gasoline

Every motor highway and by-way throughout picturesque New England and New York is a part of the long "Socony Trail".

THESE three strategically located Socony "bases" are typical of the scores that supply their respective communities with Socony products. Their motor tank wagons and trucks may be seen starting out early every morning to furnish dealers with their full requirements of gasoline and motor oils.

To thousands of gasoline users, "Socony" and "satisfaction" are synonymous. The quality of Socony gasoline is constant. It isn't "streaky"—powerful today in Boston, weak tomorrow in Albany, N. Y., but "Every Gallon is the Same". Socony standards of quality are the result of an unequalled experience in petroleum refining and distribution.

Socony in your tank is a promise of maximum power and mileage from your motor. Start using it regularly today.

Studebaker
Coupé

THERE is a charm of good taste in every feature of this distinctively designed and elegantly appointed four-passenger SPECIAL-SIX Coupe. It is the ideal enclosed car for women — for, the theatre, shopping and social functions—as well as for use by the business and professional man.

Soft carpeting, subdued harmony of coloring in the upholstery, inviting depth of cushions, completeness of appointments—all offer an irresistible appeal. Silk roller-curtains are provided at windows, and electric dome and side lights glow softly at your touch.

An important and unique feature of this Coupe is the folding seat, for the fourth passenger — it is, in reality, a cozy chair with cushioned seat, arms and back — giving a maximum of riding comfort. When not in use, it folds out of the way.

Also on exhibition, distinctively designed custom-built enclosed cars, including the Studebaker Suburban, Limousine, Seven-passenger Sedan and Landaulet, all of which are mounted on the 60-horsepower BIG-SIX chassis. Prices range from $3975 to $4600.

For the Cool Days— an Essex Sedan

THE season when the Essex Sedan will be most enjoyed and appreciated is at hand.

Its protection and comfort are genuine necessities for the growing class of automobile owners who rely altogether on motor transit to and from their business affairs.

Commodious and luxurious, it combines the riding comfort of the large costly car, with the advantages of economy and easy handling, exclusive to light cars.

Plenty of surplus power makes the Essex Sedan accelerate quickly, and gives it easy dominance in the hills.

That performance ability is especially prized by owners. For in the case of the Essex it removes the objections long held against enclosed bodies on light cars, that they have insufficient power for the additional weight, which results in sluggish performance.

Railroad Bonds

(38 Issues)

In our circular entitled "Factors Favorable to the Railroad Bond Market" we divide into four groups thirty-eight issues of railroad bonds according to our judgment of their investment merits, and indicate present prices and yields, compared with the range of the past twenty years. A number of the issues mentioned are legal investments for trustees and savings banks in New York State.

The Advancing Bond Market

In the latter part of May of the present year, many railroad and utility bonds, as well as Liberty bonds reached the lowest prices in their history. At about the same time it became quite apparent that consumers were beginning to curtail their purchases and consumption of commodities. Since that time prices of goods of almost all kinds have fallen rapidly, attended by equally rapid advances in prices of securities bearing a fixed rate of interest.

We have prepared a booklet which discusses the recent decline in commodity prices with the accompanying advance in bond prices, copies of which we shall be glad to send to investors upon request.

We suggest you ask for booklet "The Advancing Bond Market"

FINANCIAL SITUATION

Stock and Bond Markets, the Federal Reserve and the Fall in Commodity Prices.

Uninterrupted continuance of the Autumn's 8 per cent. rate for loans on time, with recurrence of a 10 per cent. rate for call money in the Stock Exchange; an irregular foreign exchange market, generally tending lower; uncertain fluctuation in the stock market, but continued recovery in bonds (many of which reached the highest prices of 1920); the year's largest deficit in reserves at the New York Associated Banks, but little change in the Federal Reserve position—these have been the outstanding incidents of the financial week. Closely connected with the movement of the financial markets, the general decline in prices of commodities has been carried further. The week, in other words, has marked the progress of those economic tendencies which came strikingly into view six weeks ago.

The money market is admittedly the key to the financial situation, and it became evident months ago that the weekly Federal Reserve reports would indicate the money market's real position. The ratio of the system's cash reserve to its deposits and circulating notes—43 1-3 per cent. at the end of last week—is close to the legal untaxed minimum of 35 per cent. cash against net deposits and 40 per cent. gold against outstanding notes. Since midsummer the ratio has fluctuated only between 44½ and 42¼, the lowest percentage on record having been 42¼. When the percentage rises sharply it may be inferred that the acute strain on credit facilities is over, but not until then.

At the end of last week the note circulation of the entire system was at the highest point on record, and its total loans only slightly below the maximum reached on Oct. 8. The change will probably come with the first weeks in January, when in all probability the Federal Reserve's loan account will be reduced with great rapidity, retirement of circulating notes will proceed at a hitherto unprecedented rate, and the "ratio of reserve" will go much higher. In the first month of 1920 the system's discounts decreased $126,000,000, its outstanding notes $213,000,000; then the steady advance was resumed in both. That was the response to increasing speculation and rising prices. The system's early statements of 1921 will reflect—as they cannot do in the present season of maximum normal use of credit—the collapse of speculation, the great fall in commodity prices, the trade reaction, the real reduction in demands on credit and a greatly decreased circulating medium in a time of lower prices and contracting payrolls.

The halt in the stock market, which in the main depends on facilities of credit, has been quite inevitable under the circumstances. But the continuing rise in prices of investment bonds reflects even more closely the release of credit from the lately active trade and over-expanded speculation. The fact that this recovery in prices (which has already brought many of such securities 15 to 25 per cent. above last Summer's prices) has occurred in face of the 8 per cent. interest rate still asked on new investment bonds of high quality merely emphasizes the character of the economic forces which are now at work. Whether we shall see at the end of the old year and the beginning of the new year one of the old-time "January reinvestment markets," whose traditional recurrence has been almost forgotten since 1914, remains to be determined.

It is no longer necessary, after the experinces of 1919 and 1920, to explain why values of investment securities are bound up with prices of commodities; why they are inevitably forced down in a period of inflated prices and inflated speculation, and why they are as surely enhanced by a continuous downward movement of speculative prices. In many respects, then, the economic problem immediately ahead of us is that of the commodity markets. There has been no "panic" in the sense in which the uneasy prophets of last Summer used the word, and there will be none. Something much like a panic, however, has unmistakably occurred among holders of commodities who had bought with a view to a further great advance.

If it had not been for the wise and firm restrictions placed six months ago by the Federal Reserve and the banks on use of credit for speculative ventures, this Autumn might have witnessed a grave financial crisis also. We have escaped that calamity, but a situation full of hardship and difficulty is left for the producers and the merchants. The one class is confronted with the public's refusal to buy except at prices in many cases below the cost of production with manufacturing costs where they now stand. The other is confronted with the problem of finding a market for stocks of goods bought at the high prices of last Spring.

To a very considerable extent this situation is the inevitable and not unreasonable penalty for the manner in which the consuming public was penalized by both producers and merchants during a full year before the retail buyer rebelled and the banks had to take in sail. Nevertheless, all the experience of episodes of panicky reaction goes to prove two things—first, that the fall in prices will soon be carried too far through the momentum of forced liquidation; second, that the return of real consumers at the level thus reached will be very sudden and will restore at least a temporary equilibrium. What the commodity markets will have ahead of them, after this period of hysterical disturbance has run its course, is one of next year's economic secrets.

Expiring Oil Leases

It is within the last five years that the general oil industry began to take seriously the fact that there was something definite to "geology." The result was the greatest era of oil-land leasing ever known in the Mid-Continent Field. The general type of lease was for a period of from three to five years. The acreage leased was so enormous that relatively little drilling could be accomplished. These leases are now expiring and the man who is in a position to agree to drill can pick up some attractive leases at a nominal sum.

MORE RESTRICTIONS ON STEEL OUTPUT

Market Falling Capriciously May Account for Mills Not Working to Capacity.

RAILROADS' STAND ON COST

Expected Freight Car Orders Held Back to Await Better Money Conditions.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 23.—Steel prices have softened somewhat more rapidly in the past week than previously, though some producers, to protect the contract tonnage on their books, have even made nominal advances in the past two or three weeks. The most conspicuous case of cutting is that of a Pittsburgh district interest which began last Monday quoting merchant steel bars in rounds, squares and flats at $2.35, which is the United States Steel Corporation price. This interest had been doing a prompt business in bars, at high prices for early deliveries, but from the circumstances had no large volume of business on books when the pressure ended. Other mills with well filled order books continue to quote bars at $3 to $3.25. Lower plate quotations are found in the West than in the Pittsburgh district or in the East. Two Western mills have quoted $2.65 and $2.75, respectively, Pittsburgh basis, while in the local market $3 seems to be the minimum.

Throughout the industry it is the case, naturally enough, that the mills that have been holding to the lower prices have the greatest amount of unfilled tonnage, while those that sought the highest prices have the least. Some mills are, consequently, much more ready to make reduced prices than are others, and in general it is the mill that had the highest price that is now disposed to make the lowest price, among the independents. Only in very exceptional cases, however, is any independent down to the Steel Corporation level.

There has been further restriction of output on the part of not a few of the mills. One large Western Pennsylvania independent, engaged largely in prompt and nearby delivery, is reported to be down to a 60 per cent. operation. The Steel Corporation mills, running to the physical limit, are probably producing somewhat more steel than a month or two ago. A fair guess seems to be that October, as a whole, will show a rate of production of about 41,000,000 tons a year, against a rate of about 42,700,000 tons in August and September.

September bookings of fabricated steel contracts, as reported by the Bridge Builders and Structural Society, amounted to 43 per cent. of the shop capacity, against 40 per cent. reported for August, 50 per cent. for July and an average of 72 per cent. in the first half of the year. Prospective investors are waiting for better money conditions. For the same reason freight car building continues light. The railroads may be unable to borrow money on entirely satisfactory terms, but the chief obstacle seems to be not particularly the cost of the steel involved, but rather the cost of many of the parts and appurtenances.

Following quotations on basic pig iron by several producers last week at $42, valley, and the resale of 1,500 tons at $40, valley, it is now reported that two good-sized sales have been made by producers at $40, valley, setting the market $8.50 below the top point, reached late in August. Connellsville furnace coke has declined $2 in about ten days, to $15. Scrap market prices show no change.

Early in the week the Pittsburgh Crucible Steel Company began offering merchant steel bars at 2.35c. The next day everybody seemed to know about the offer, and it was then explained that the bars were offered in a wide range of sizes of rounds, squares and flats for immediate specification and rolling. However, others stated that their price policy was unchanged, and it is believed that the Crucible people will withdraw their offer when it has affected a pre-determined volume of sales. A common quotation among independents for bars is 3.25c. The Crucible kept its order books relatively clear during the period of scarcity, and thus was able to secure large delivery premiums at that time, approximately as high premiums as were obtainable anywhere. It is not believed that the Steel Corporation price of 2.35c will be changed, but a slight advance in its prices on shapes and plates is looked for, perhaps from 2.45c to 2.55c and 2.65c to 2.75c, respectively.

There has been no further improvement in transportation conditions at the pipe mills, and they are still unable to move their accumulations. While there are heavy shipments the distribution is poor. A heavy tonnage is being moved by river and lake, but certain points only are reached. As to oil country goods, since the cancellation of Order No. 207 another has been issued, No. 1001, giving the pipe mills the same car allotment for shipping oil country goods to the Southwest and West that was given by the previous order, but not allowing any accumulations, which means that if a mill cannot ship the number of cars allowed on a certain day it cannot ship correspondingly above its allotment the next day. The call for deliveries of tubular goods continues to be in excess of the quantities the mills are able to ship, and the situation is a strong one. Some sellers are still obtaining large delivery premiums. Regular basing discounts on standard steel pipe remain at 54 per cent. for the independents and 57½ for the leading interest.

The sheet market, as made by the bulk of the transactions in the last week or so, is 6.75c. to 7.25c. for black sheets, 5c. to 5.25c. on blue annealed, and in galvanized at 8.25c. to 9c., the latter being rather exceptional. As heretofore, the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, oversold, is not a seller. Its prices have been: Blue annealed, 3.66c.; black, 4.35c.; galvanized, 5.70c. When books are opened for the first half, which will probably be some time next month, there is a probability that these prices will be advanced $3 to $5 a ton, while the independent prices will probably continue to fall. Operation of the sheet industry as a whole continues at about 85 per cent., the chief restrictive influence being the insufficient supply of steel.

The American Sheet and Tin Plate Company's tin plate obligations are equal to all the tin plate the company could make from now until April 1 if it were operated at absolutely full capacity. The company will probably open its books for the new period in the middle of November, and there is no indication that the price will be advanced above the $7 standard of three half years. The independent tin plate manufacturers are very desirous that there should be an advance. Their common quotation now is $8.50. Taking the tin plate mills at a whole their operations average about 85 per cent.

There is an easier tone to the sheet market this week. A mill in the West has quoted 2.65c., Pittsburgh, on plates, which is the Steel Corporation price, and another mill, also in the West, has quoted 2.75c., Pittsburgh. In each case, if the mill sold for local delivery it would be getting a shade above 3c. net. The independent plate market continues to be quoted at 3c. to 3.15c.

The continued lightness of demand for cold finished steel bars has caused a progressive weakening in prices. A few weeks ago a quotation at 4.25c. was exceptional, most sales being at higher figures, 4.50c. and even beyond that. At the present time the common quotation is 4.25c., and this figure is not infrequently shaded, there being some reports of tonnage placed at 4.10c. The American Steel and Wire Company, in line with its recent advances of $5 a gross ton on wire rods and $12 a net ton on hot rolled strip, has advanced its price on cold finished bars $8 a net ton, from 3.60c. to 4.00c.

The mills hereabouts continue to quote common iron bars at 4.75c., Pittsburgh, and refined iron bars at 5.00c., Pittsburgh, but considerably lower prices for Pittsburgh deliveries are now possible. Until recently the Eastern mills were firm in their 4.50c. quotation, which meant that Eastern bars would have cost 4.85c. for delivery at Pittsburgh, with a 35-cent freight rate that became effective Aug. 26. On the other hand, the Chicago mills had quotations of 3.75c. to 4.00c., Chicago, but one could not buy for Pittsburgh delivery. The situation is now changed in both quarters, and one or two Eastern mills are willing to shade their quotations to 4.00c., which means f. o. b. Eastern mill in the case of shipment to Pittsburgh, so that the price delivered Pittsburgh is 4.35c. One or two Western mills are also quoting 4.00c., f. o. b. mill, which means 4.38c., delivered Pittsburgh. Thus the market for common iron bars, Pittsburgh, is quotable at 4.75c. for local product, 4.35c. for Eastern bars and 4.38c. for Western bars. The market is quiet.

Principal and interest payable in dollars in New York at the fixed rate of exchange of $4.86½ per pound sterling.

In our opinion, these bonds are among the most attractive of all long term Foreign Government bonds on the market to-day.

With the present great demand for long term Foreign Government issues, these bonds, yielding as they do about 9% to maturity, offer an unusual opportunity.

A Complete Cycle in the Oil Industry

American Fuel Oil & Transportation Co., Inc.

The American Fuel Oil & Transportation Co., Inc., is assured a supply of 75,000,000 barrels of 16 gravity° refined fuel oil, to be delivered to it during the next 10 years, through its contract with responsible producing interests.

This supply is irrespective of its present and future production from holdings of approximately 71,450 acres of oil lands.

The Company has contracts to deliver over 10,000,000 barrels of fuel oil over a period of years, which it will carry in its own tank steamers.

Its fleet of oil tankers now in operation will be increased from 37,500 deadweight tons to 75,000 deadweight tons by January 1, 1921.

Canadian Trade and the World's Markets

A Canadian Bank's ability to serve the American Exporter depends upon the clearness with which it foresees the problems its clients have to confront.

Through the actual operations of the Bank's own Foreign Exchange Departments in London, New York, Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver, the officers of the Union Bank of Canada are closely in touch with all the financial markets of the world. They are in a position to "keep an eye on the future" for the American Exporter.

RAILROADS BEAT AUGUST RECORDS

1920 MAY SET TOP NOTCH

Congestions in Terminals Practically Eliminated—Heavy Coal Shipments.

The wisdom of the public in having the railroads returned to private control after twenty-six months of Federal operation has been proved in the first six months of private operation, according to The Railway Age, which calls attention to the fact that the roads are going ahead with their increased efficiency program, and are making records never before attained.

"Statistics already made public," says The Age, "regarding the number of carloads of freight moved in August have shown that in that month more freight was handled than in any previous August in history. Statistics more recently compiled by the Interstate Commerce Commission disclose the fact, which even those in close touch with traffic conditions did not know, that even in July, when the effects of the switchmen's strike were still felt, the railways handled more business than in July of any preceding year.

"With the facts now before us it is safe to predict that the total amount of freight handled in the entire year 1920 will be greater than in any earlier year in history. The number of cars loaded week by week still continues to show increases over the corresponding weeks of previous years. In the week ended Oct. 2, the latest for which a report has been made, the number of cars loaded by Class 1 roads was 955,946, as compared with 957,596 in 1919 and 971,895 in 1918. In the week ended Oct. 9, as the statistics of the United States Geological Survey show, the number of tons of bituminous coal transported was 12,075,000, which sets a new record for this year and closely approaches the highest record ever made in any past year.

"One of the most important results the railways have obtained is the practical elimination of all congestions in their terminals. When they were returned to private operation on March 1, the number of loaded cars accumulated in the terminals awaiting movement was almost 100,000. In the week ended Oct. 8 this had been reduced to 41,135, of which nearly 18,000 were being held at the ports for ships in the transoceanic and coastwise service. The accumulations of cars are now so small that it may be said without exaggeration that congestions have ceased to exist."

The Old Sugar House of WILLIAM RHINELANDER

A GREAT part of the uniform progress of the Bank of the Manhattan Company may be ascribed to the fact that so many of its Directors have been connected with the great fundamental industries. Among its founders, William Rhinelander, Isaac Roosevelt, and the Livingstons were sugar importers and refiners. Oliver Vanderbilt was engaged in the manufacture of boots and shoes. Leonard Lispenard was the leading brewer. John Stevens established the first steam ferry boat, the first steam ocean lines and obtained the first charter for a railroad in America. On the Directorate of the Bank today you will find men whose combined activities cover practically the entire field of industry and commerce and Officers who know the needs of your business and how to serve you in development, finance and investment both at home and abroad.

TERMS

No mortgage or other lien can be placed on the real property of the company, including machinery, while this stock is outstanding, except purchase money mortgages for the acquisition of new property.

No additional preferred stock can be issued except with the consent of 66 2-3% of the outstanding preferred, and no class of stock having priority over this preferred can be issued.

Current assets must at all times be maintained equal to or greater than current liabilities.

Sinking fund of 1½% semi-annually of the greatest amount of preferred at any one time outstanding.

Reserve for depreciation provides that a minimum of $59,788.00 shall be set aside semi-annually for this purpose, based on the rate of $0.50 per spindle.

SECURITY

The audited balance sheet as of September 30th, 1920, shows net quick assets of $1,181,242.00 or $147.65 per share of preferred. Total net assets are $768.43 per share of preferred.

Average net earnings over the past four years, 1916-1919, were $521,718.00 after Federal Taxes, or over 8 times the preferred dividend requirements.

For the first nine months of 1920, before Federal Taxes, but with inventories based on present market prices, actual earnings amount to $1,315,987.00.

The $800,000.00 of preferred stock is followed by junior securities having a par value of $5,000,000.00.

THE COMPANY

The Chadwick-Hoskins Company was incorporated in 1908 under the laws of North Carolina as a consolidation of five cotton mills located in and near Charlotte, N. C. Since that date the consolidation has acquired the properties of the Martinsville Cotton Mill Company, at Martinsville, Virginia. The six mills, operating 119,576 spindles and 2,757 looms, form one of the largest cotton manufacturing concerns in the South. The Company has offices in both Charlotte and New York. Its product of fine lawns, sheetings and print cloths, enjoying an enviable reputation in the markets of the country, are distributed through the agency of the Turner-Halsey Company, Inc., of New York.

The officers of the company are:

COMMODITY PRICES

Declines in Nearly All Markets During Last Week—Grain and Textiles Weakest.

Prices of the great majority of commodities on the wholesale markets have fallen sharply during the last week. Of twenty commodities quoted in the subjoined table, eleven have declined, four have advanced and five ended the week unchanged from the previous week's closing quotations. Grain markets have alternately recovered and declined again on separate days, but ended with a considerable net decline. Among the metals, iron and copper have been conspicuously weak. The noteworthy recoveries have been in coffee and cotton, though cotton touched its lowest price of the year on Monday.

Advertising is an Investment

"Staple-izing" Specialties By Advertising

Mr. Arthur Kimball, President of Landers, Frary & Clark, makers of Universal Home Needs, said:

"Advertising has so 'staple-ized' our specialties that dealers consider them a dependable investment and not uncertain speculation. Advertising has so stabilized our business that our products have been less affected by rising costs than those of our non-advertising competitors."

Here is a man who pays so much attention to creating and maintaining public good-will for quality products by honest advertising that he need not worry about the weather-vane of price.

To the manufacturer who is ever disturbed by shifting winds, we say, there is no stabilizer like advertising planned and directed by the experience and skill that knows how to make it a profitable investment instead of an expense.

"Put it up to men who know your market."

SAVINGS BANKS MAY AID FOREIGN TRADE

Financiers Discuss Removal of Restrictions on Purchases of Bankers' Acceptances.

LIMITED BY STATE LAWS

Need of Some Form Liquid Security In Which to Invest Part of Funds Is Urged.

A fair part of the $7,000,000,000 belonging to 11,000,000 savings bank depositors in the United States may be made available for assistance in financing America's foreign trade, if the restrictive State laws which limit the purchases of bankers' acceptances by the savings banks are removed. This can be done, some bankers believe, without lowering the high standard now exacted for savings bank investments. If it is, the editor of The Acceptance Bulletin, the official monthly of the American Acceptance Council, points out, the savings banks are likely to become very much larger purchasers of prime bankers' acceptances in the future, when the volume of Treasury certificates is reduced to normal, than they have been in the past. In an article dealing with this subject, The Acceptance Bulletin says, in part:

"With the rejection of the proposal to forbid the savings banks of New York State from investing in acceptances, so as to make available larger funds for employment in real estate mortgages and thus relieve the housing shortage, the availability of bankers' acceptances as investments for savings banks and trust funds has come up for general discussion among bankers and investment experts everywhere. As the savings banks of the country have assets of more than $7,000,000,000, and as the laws of many States are so framed as rigidly to restrict their investments, these institutions are in dire need of some form of liquid security in which they may invest a portion of their funds.

Must Be Quickly Convertible.

"A prime requisite is that these securities shall be self-liquidating and quickly convertible into cash. The New York savings banks have never been much of a factor in the collateral loan market for the reason that they can lend only on the securities in which they are allowed to invest.

"Before the war financing began, the only recourse for the savings banks in making temporary investment was to bid for municipal or State warrants, which normally sold at prices to yield a very small income return, or to place the funds with their depositary banks at interest rates varying from 2½ to 3 per cent.

"There was no other avenue open to them, except in rare instances where they were able to purchase an approved long-term bond having only a few months left to run.

"This situation lasted until the World War began and the United States Treasury commenced to put out its short-term certificates of indebtedness. These certificates were taken readily by the savings banks in large blocks, and they have always been popular with these institutions because they represent an exceptional opportunity to invest in a temporary obligation of the United States. A high-grade note of this character is always quickly marketable, and since the United States Treasury advanced its interest rate to 5¾ and 6 per cent. the present return compares favorably with the rate paid by other forms of temporary investment.

"Even at these rates, however, the return compares unfavorably with that derived from high-grade bankers' acceptances, which can be purchased at a price to yield about 6¼ and which will liquidate within ninety days, as compared with the larger maturities of Treasury certificates.

Must Look Elsewhere.

"With the restoration to normal of United States Government finances, however, these issues of Treasury certificates will cease and the savings banks will be compelled again to look elsewhere for temporary investments. This means that they must fall back upon the acceptance market and make larger purchases than ever before of prime bankers' acceptances.

"In the natural order of things, therefore, the demand of savings banks for high-grade bankers' acceptances may be expected to enlarge and these securities become better known as an ideal form of temporary investment. This possibility is very interesting and suggests that absorption of bankers' acceptances by the savings banks ultimately will make available a large portion of the savings of 11,000,000 savings bank depositors for the expansion of American trade abroad and the development of foreign markets for our producers, manufacturers and exporters.

"Such increased investments, however, may be restricted in New York State by the law which limits savings banks' investments in acceptances to those accepted by a national bank located in the State or by a State bank or trust company incorporated under the State laws, and further and properly provides that these shall be only of the kind eligible for purchase or rediscount by the Federal Reserve Banks."

FINANCIAL NOTICES.

TO THE HOLDERS OF CERTIFICATES OF DEPOSIT REPRESENTING PREFERRED AND COMMON STOCK OF THE DENVER AND RIO GRANDE RAILROAD COMPANY DEPOSITED UNDER AGREEMENT OF MAY 22, 1917:

The undersigned Committee, acting under a deposit agreement dated May 22, 1917, has received on deposit a number of shares of preferred and common stock of the Company.

The Committee was formed in 1917 immediately after a judgment had been obtained against the Company on behalf of the Western Pacific bondholders. The Committee has investigated the affairs of the Company, and since the end of Federal control and in view of recent efforts of the Western Pacific Company to enforce the judgment against the Denver Company, the Committee has attempted to negotiate a plan for the reorganization of the Company under which the stockholders might acquire the judgment or otherwise protect their interest in the Company. The Committee has not, however, been able to obtain the agreement of the Western Pacific Company to any plan the acceptance of which the members of the Committee are willing to recommend to the stockholders of the Denver Company.

In view of this situation the Committee, acting under the authority of the Deposit Agreement, has terminated that agreement. Each holder of a certificate of deposit issued under the said agreement should, within twenty-five days from the date hereof, present and surrender such certificate of deposit duly endorsed in blank, with signature properly guaranteed, at the office of the Depositary, United States Mortgage and Trust Company, 55 Cedar Street, New York City, in order to effect withdrawal of deposited stock. Such withdrawal will be without expense to the certificate holders.

Dated October 20, 1920.

HARRISON WILLIAMS,
R. WALTER LEIGH,
Committee.

C. H. MURPHEY, Secretary.
J. P. COTTON, Counsel.

To the Holders of the First and Refunding 5% SINKING FUND MORTGAGE BONDS of the INTERNATIONAL PAPER CO.:

Notice is hereby given that the amount of funds now in the Sinking Fund provided under the First Mortgage of the International Paper Company, dated January 1, 1917, is $56,666.91, and that Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee under said mortgage, and pursuant to Section 1 of Article V. of said mortgage, will receive at its Corporate Trust Department, No. 16 Wall Street, New York City, until twelve o'clock noon, November 11, 1920, sealed proposals for the sale to it of bonds secured by said mortgage sufficient in amount to exhaust such funds, at the lowest prices at which said bonds may be offered for sale, but at a price if so purchased not to exceed the par value of the principal of said bonds with accrued interest and two and one-half per cent. (2½%) premium upon the amount of said principal. Accepted bonds should be delivered on November 18, 1920, accompanied by Federal Income Tax Ownership Certificates for amount of accrued interest, on which date payment will be made.

Such proposals must state the numbers and aggregate principal amount of the bonds offered for sale and the price at which such bonds are so offered, and must be signed by the holder thereof, and state his address.

TWO FAMILIES KILLED.

Five Persons Die in Auto Hit by Philadelphia Train.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Oct. 24.—Two families were killed near Quakertown Saturday night when a Philadelphia-bound electric express of the Lehigh Valley Transit Company crashed into an automobile.

Those killed were Mr. and Mrs. Hardie H. Fehnel, aged 33 and 27, respectively; their daughter, Beatrice, 2, all of 5,908 North Thirteenth Street, Philadelphia, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Miller, 26 and 22, of 2,025 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

The two parties were on their way to Bath, Northampton County, in Mr. Miller's machine, to visit relatives of his bride of Sept. 13 last. The accident happened at a point south of Quakertown, where the trolley tracks cross the highway.

Miller was a bookkeeper with the Commercial Trust Company of Philadelphia, while his wife's cousin, Mr. Fehnel, was a salesman for P. W. Kiefaber & Co., butter and egg dealers.

FLEEING MAN SHOT THROUGH BOTH LEGS

PHONE TIP FOILS ROBBERY

Bandits Demand $5,000 Auto from Two Cleaners, but Flee When Third Man Notifies Police.

When Policeman Brienback of the East Eighty-sixth Street Station attempted to question three young men standing at East Ninety-fourth Street and Second Avenue, following an attempted holdup in the Ninety-fourth Street Garage early yesterday, one of the youths held Brienback at the point of a pistol while one of the others toppled the policeman over. Then all three fled, followed by Brienback and Policeman Treitler.

One of those who ran, later described as William Reichel, 29, a driver of 308 East Ninety-fourth Street, was shot through both legs by Brienback as he ran, and the second was captured in a basement at 312 East Ninety-fourth Street. He said he was James Gilmore, 19, of 215 East Ninety-fourth Street. The third man got away.

Brienback and Treitler were detailed to investigate a report, received by telephone from the Ninety-fourth Street Garage, two doors from the house Reichel gave as his address, that the garage was being held up by two men who demanded possession of a $5,000 automobile, then in the hands of two car cleaners.

The cleaners, the police were informed, were standing with their hands up and the intruders had just fired two shots. Hugh Jenkins of 40? East 100th Street and John Hartman proved to be the cleaners in question, and Frank J. Zerambsky, another cleaner, was the man who gave the alarm. Zerambsky said that the three holdup men had fired two shots at him as he dashed into the garage office to a telephone. After the men fired the shots, he said they made an effort to drive away with the car, but fled when they saw he had reached a telephone.

Brienback charged Reichel with felonious assault and Gilmore with resisting arrest. At Bellevue Hospital, however, the car cleaners failed to identify either Reichel or Gilmore. What became of the weapon Brienback reported he was held up with was not learned.

The police believe the holdup was attempted by striking garage workers.

The Oklahoma Wins a Trophy.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—The Battleship Oklahoma, attached to the Atlantic fleet, has received the award of a bronze trophy for excellence in small arms practice for vessels of the battleship class for the year ended June 30. Operating conditions in both the Pacific and Asiatic fleets during the year were such that only a very limited amount of small arms practice was conducted, the Navy Department announced today, and no trophies were awarded in those fleets.

CHURCH 125 YEARS OLD.

St. Mark's-in-the-Bouwerie Unveils Three Statues on Anniversary.

The one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of the Episcopal Church, St. Mark's-in-the-Bouwerie, at Second Avenue and Tenth Street, and the tenth anniversary of the Rev. Dr. William Norman Guthrie as rector, were celebrated by that congregation yesterday.

A feature of the celebration was the unveiling of three statues. Two are in the portico and one is on the lawn. Those in the portico represent "Inspiration" and "Aspiration," and they are figures of two American Indians.

The statue on the lawn is called "The Little Lady of the Dew," and is of a nude woman. The sculptor was Solon Borglum. There is a niche, representing the spirit of baptism, with its running water, its arbor vitae, and the girl holding forth the waters.

An address was delivered by the Rev. Dr. William T. Banning, rector of Trinity Church, on the topic, "The relations of City to Church."

Edgewater Has $50,000 Fire.

EDGEWATER, N. J., Oct. 24.—The machine shop of the Warner sugar refinery was badly damaged by fire today. The blaze extended to the storehouse and garage of John J. McGarry, a contractor. A number of trucks were burned. The loss was $50,000. Fireman William Ingold's right hand was lacerated by broken glass.

Heirs' Enigmas:
How thoughtful men safeguard their families' future

A MAN dies. The will is clean-cut. The estate is quickly settled. Financially, at least, the prospects of the family seem rosy.

A few months pass. Then—

The wife discovers that the option of convertibility contained in certain bonds must be exercised at once, if at all. She faces a puzzle. She seeks and secures a friend's advice. But is it sound advice? Perhaps! Perhaps not!

Next—an owner takes up his mortgage. The heir must re-invest the money.

An acquaintance offers a return of 10%. Is it safe? More advice is sought and given. Such advice is often unsound. It is sometimes tinctured by personal motives.

So it goes. The puzzles of the wife pile themselves on her perplexities. Under such conditions estates often dwindle. Heirs often come to want common necessities.

But you can easily remove from your family's future any such unhappy possibility, by establishing

A COLUMBIA TRUST FUND
for safeguarding the money you leave

The plan is this:

1. A Columbia Trust Fund is simply money set aside under the protection of the Columbia Trust Company and invested with the judgment of trained experts to provide periodical income for definite objects.
2. Life insurance or any other money may be used to form the Trust Fund. We are bound by a written agreement to carry out your wishes definitely and absolutely.
3. We will make investments of the Trust Fund for you in such securities as are lawful for Trustees, or, if you prefer, you can give us definite instructions to follow.
4. Income from the Trust Fund will be paid in installments to whom you wish and when you wish and in the amount you wish.

You can take up this matter at any one of our offices. The Vice-President or Manager in charge will be glad to talk to you personally and promptly. Of course, there is no obligation on your part.
